HEART CUT OUT OF COVENANT OF LEAGUE BY DRASTIC RESERVATION TO ARTICLE TEN

JOHN BARLEYCORN BROUGHT TO LIFE BY COURT'S ORDER

Following United States Judge Evans' Decision Against War-Time Prohibition, Liquor Is Sold Without Interference in Kentucky City.

GOVERNMENT TO FIGHT FOR WAR-TIME DRYNESS

Attorney General Palmer Says Louisville and Other Cases Will Be Appealed—Chicago Saloons Preparing for Decision Against Bone-Dryness.

Louisville, Ky., November 13.—For the first time since July 1, when war-time prohibition went into effect, whisky was sold in Louisville today without interference by the federal authorities.

The sales were made by two Louisville distillers from their tax-paid floor stocks, under the protection of a temporary injunction issued by Federal Judge Walter Evans, but in the face of a government warning that if the supreme court finds war-time prohibition constitutional, prosecution was possible.

The action of Judge Evans today apparently attracted wide attention. Many messages were received asking for copies of the brief and arguments in the case in which the court, in effect, held war-time prohibition unconstitutonal and upheld an attack upon the Volstead enforcemen act. Pennsylvania liquor interests appeared especially interested.

The government immediately took an appeal to the United States circuit court at Cincinnati and announced its intention of asking the higher court for a writ of supersedeas which would have the effect of staying the injunction.

The suit was brought by W. Marshall Bullitt, Louisville, on behalf of the Wright & Taylor and the Brown-Forman Distilling companies of this city, and seeks to prevent government interference with sale of nearly a million gallons of tax-paid whisky owned by the companies.

Lot of Liquor Involved.

In a similar suit recently Judge Evans declared the war prohibition act unconstitutional and granted an injunction to the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse company, forbidding interference by the government with sale of approximately 69,000,000 gallons of whisky owned by the plaintiff. This case was appealed to the United States supreme court and, according to announcement, a hearing will be had on it some time next week, probably November 20.

Granting of an injunction in the present suit would permit sale of tax-paid whisky by the two companies. However, according to announcement by District Attorney Gregory, "if the supreme court reverses Judge Evans' decision on the suit, appealed to it by the government, then, in my opinion, all persons who sell distilled spirits between now and the time of rendition of the opinion by the supreme court would be liable to prosecution."

Propped in Bed, Wilson Receives Prince of Wales

President in the Bed in Which Prince's Grandfather Slept When He Visited Washington in 1860.

Washington, November 13.—President Wilson, propped up in the great mahogany bed in which Baron Renfrew, later King Edward VII., slept when he visited Washington, in 1860, greeted today the grandson of that British king in Albert Edward, Prince of Wales.

The prince was taken to the president's sick room after he had had tea with Mrs. Wilson and the president's daughters, Miss Margaret Wilson and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre. The visit to the white house followed a motor trip to Mount Vernon, where the youthful British heir laid a wreath on Washington's tomb and planted a young cedar before the resting place of the leader of the American colonies in their struggle with England.

Wilson Told About Bed.

Soon after the president and the prince had exchanged greetings,

FULTON TO DECIDE SCHOOL TAX TODAY

Special Election Called to Pass on Increase From 50 to 75 Cents—Atlanta Not Affected.

A special election will be held today in which voters of Fulton county will decide whether or not to raise the school tax from 50 cents to 75 cents per $100. This increase will not appl yto the cities of Atlanta, East Point or College Park, which have municipal schools.

The tax increase was authorized by a bill passed by the last legislature, which, however, provided that in order to effect the increase, two-thirds of the voters voting must favor the raise. Fulton county officers expressed themselves as confident that the election would result in favor of a higher tax to be used for the schools.

A campaign for the increased tax has been waged in every part of the county, and the tax raise plan has been indorsed unanimously at the close of the meetings that have been held throughout the county.

Officials have stressed through the campaign the fact that the county system will become bankrupt unless a higher tax rate be authorized in order to provide additional funds.

RAIL UNIONS AND HINES REACH NO AGREEMENT

Washington, November 13.—Chiefs of the four railroad brotherhoods and Director-General Hines continued their conference today regarding wages and working conditions on the roads, but late in the day it was said that no agreement had yet been reached.

FLAT FOOT THEORY ABOUT THE BLACKS EXPLODED BY WAR

Washington, November 13.—The theory that most negroes have flat feet was exploded by the war, Dr. A. B. Jackson, superintendent of Mercy hospital, Philadelphia, told a negro reconstruction and adjustment conference in session at Howard university. But the war likewise revealed through the draft, Dr. Jackson added, that the percentage of social diseases is three times as high among negroes as whites.

Other speakers at the conference, which is attended by both negroes and whites, were Dr. W. F. Draper, of Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Alice Dunbar Nelson, Wilmington, Del.; Miss Julia Lathrop, Charles Edward Russell, New York; Assistant Secretary of Labor Post and E. C. Brown, Philadelphia.

METHODISTS PLAN FOR NATION-WIDE CHURCH REVIVAL

Evangelism Proves Keynote of Meetings Held at North Georgia Conference on Thursday.

WESLEYAN ADVOCATE TRUSTEES ARE NAMED

Plans Are Launched for Adequate Compensation for Ministers — Reports of Pastors Asked.

By Rev. Thomas M. Elliott.

The keynote of the current session of the North Georgia conference, which is in convention at the Wesley Memorial church this week, is evangelism, and its highest pitch was reached at the Thursday sitting. More time was given to that one feature than to any other one thing considered during the morning. In the afternoon it was stressed again in the sermon delivered by Dr. Plato T. Durham, while at the church extension board anniversary at night it was the theme of the several speeches delivered.

Continued balloting for Wesleyan Advocate trustees was taken up Thursday morning. Four ballots were necessary before the third and fourth men could be named. Dr. J. A. Sharp broke what threatened to be a deadlock when he asked at the conclusion of the third ballot that no man vote for him, as it would be impossible for him to serve as trustee should every man in the conference vote for him. On the fourth ballot 224 votes were cast. W. T. Hunnicutt received 129 and C. O. Jones, 124. They were declared elected. Rescinding the former action of Wednesday, Dr. Jones and Mr. Christian were named as their own successors, while Mr. Yarbrough and Mr. Hunnicutt were named as successors of Dr. B. P. Allen and Rev. S. B. Ledbetter. The full board of trustees, composed of twelve men representing the two Georgia conferences, will hold a meeting today and consider vital matters pertaining to the welfare of the church paper.

Reports on Pastors.

Under the guidance of Bishop Candler the conference business was expedited on Thursday. For the first time in many years the program had been sufficiently advanced for question 22 to be asked, which calls for the reports of individual pastors and the passage of their characters. The Athens district pastors all made reports under the call.

At the conclusion of the call of the Athens district, Dr. Jerre M. Pound, on behalf of the preachers and laymen of that district, presented Rev. S. P. Wiggins, retiring presiding elder, with a silver platter and silver service set as a token of love and esteem.

The names of eight men were referred to the committee on conference relations for superannuation, the largest number ever known to be referred at any one conference. Those whose names were referred are J. D. Hammond, W. O. Butler, F. R. Smith, L. L. Landrum, Fletcher Walton, J. W. Bailey, O. M. Ponder and M. K. Patillo. Advanced age with consequent feebleness or extreme ill health were the causes of their retirement. Dr. Fletcher Walton asked that he be given a supernumerary relation for a year. The combined years of service rendered the church by these eight men is 231.

S. D. Cremaine, who was granted a location at his own request two years ago, surrendered his credentials as a minister Thursday. S. A. Bales and G. T. Sorrells were granted locations at their own request Thursday.

Dr. C. O. Jones Reports.

In the call of the Athens district the name of Dr. C. O. Jones was called. In making his report as superintendent of the Georgia Anti-Saloon league, Dr. Jones told of the nature of the work he is engaged in and also revealed something of the fight all temperance lovers must engage in. He declared it to be the purpose of whisky interests to make prohibition laws inoperative and were devoting their energies toward electing officers and judges who would wink at law violation. He asserted that illicit distillers now

RED CROSS DRIVE TO COME TO CLOSE AT MEETING TODAY

Membership Campaign Has Been Complete Success, But Quota of Subscriptions Is Not Yet Secured.

SEND CHECKS TODAY, SUBSCRIBERS URGED

Final Tabulation of Returns Will Be Made at Luncheon by Executive Committee at Noon.

The executive committee of the Third Red Cross roll call campaign in Atlanta will meet today at 12 o'clock at the chamber of commerce. That meeting will mark the close of the active campaign in Atlanta.

Of the twin drives which have been conducted for the past ten days—one for the 26,000 membership for 1920, at one dollar each membership fees, and the other for $34,000 of subscriptions to the special war fund—the first has gone to complete success and the second has not yet reached its quota.

Trolley Magnate Putting Screws On Toledo Folks

Doherty Tells Mayor the Voters Must Repeal the Ouster Ordinance Before He Will Bring Cars From Michigan.

Toledo, Ohio, November 13.—The conference held today in an attempt to devise a way of getting Henry L. Doherty's street cars back into service failed to bring out anything definite to show whether Toledo is to have car service or whether the people will have to go on indefinitely with an unsatisfactory omnibus system.

The conference, which was held in the city hall, developed into a verbal combat between Mr. Doherty and Mayor Cornell Schreiber, the official who introduced the ouster ordinance which was approved by the people and which resulted in the cars being taken into Michigan last Saturday night.

The New York magnate, replying to a question from the mayor, declared that such assurance must come through a vote of the same people who had voted to drive the cars from the streets.

The city received another setback today in its negotiations with outside concerns for the furnishing of power to operate cars, when the Auglaize Power company of Defiance, Ohio, announced through W. P. Wallace, its general manager, that the company does not care to mix up in the Toledo fight."

Mexico Buys Arms And United States Fights Shipment

LOT OF THE MUNITIONS ALREADY IN MEXICO

Washington Asserts That Carranza Has Placed Enormous Orders in Preparation for Possibility of United States Intervention.

Washington, November 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—Large orders for arms and ammunition, placed by Mexico in Belgium and Spain, in preparation for the possibility of American intervention, came to light today when the state department let it become known that the government had taken steps to prevent their shipment.

The charge d'affaires of the United States embassy in Brussels has protested, under instructions, that shipment of the munitions would be in violation of the international arms convention. As Spain is not party to the agreement which was designed to aid in keeping the peace of the world during the after-the-war transition period, no such direct action is probable at Madrid.

The order in Belgium was placed with the Frabique Nationale d'Arms at Liege, probably under the direction of Candido Aguilar, Mexican minister of foreign affairs and President Carranza's son-in-law, who went to Europe recently after stopping here and placing a wreath on George Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon.

Arms Passing Into Mexico.

The orders in Spain, which included rifles, millions of rounds of ammunition, and a large number of machine guns, were negotiated through the Mexican minister there, Eliesco Arredondo, former ambassador to the United States, and President Carranza's nephew.

The Spanish munitions, according to information in the hands of the government, began passing into Mexico more than a year ago while the European war still was going on and in violation of the inter-allied embargo. Rifles and ammunition and some sample machine guns are reported to have passed Havana on their way to Mexico as late at June of this year. For later shipments, cargo space had been reserved for October 19 on Holland-American line steamers sailing out of Antwerp, and further space had been reserved for Tampico, Vera Cruz and Puierto Mexico, on December 3.

The United States has been denying shipments of arms and ammunition into Mexico for many months for the reason that they generally fell into hands of bandits and often were used against Americans. Soon after the end of the war the Mexican government asked for the release of munitions bought in this country in 1917, but it was refused.

Such information as has come into the hands of the government shows that Mexico already was turning to European manufacturers for her supply and has since placed enormous orders.

Large Orders Placed.

It appears from the government's information that while the peace conference was in session in Paris and General Mondragon, a prominent Mexican, was there advising his government of its probable course toward Mexican affairs and particularly the attitude of the United States, the Spanish munitions workers, with whom large orders had been placed, were being urged to speed up the delivery of powder and cartridges and particularly of the machine guns, which were reported to be a new type described as perfect and unimprovable.

General Mondragon, it appears, reported from his conference in Paris that Mexico need not fear intervention by the United Staes, but information received at the same time disclosed that the orders for munitions steadily were going forward. The information in the government's hands also disclosed that the Mexican officials managing the affair were attempting to estimate the attitude Peru, Chile, Argentina and other South American countries would assume if the United States should decide on intervention. That phase of the incident however, is not regarded by officials here as threatening. Such information as the government has, however, shows that Aguilar discussed the South American attitude toward intervention during his conferences in Europe, but officials here realize that the subject has

NATIONAL GUARD PLAN FOR ARMY

Force of 348,000 Officers and Men Proposed—Voluntary Training Through Schools and Colleges.

Washington, November 13.—The plan of the National guard association of the United States for the reorganization of the state militia of the country, embodying a proposal for a system of voluntary military and physical training, functioning through the schools and colleges, was submitted to the senate tonight in a bill by Senator Frelinghuysen, republican, New Jersey. It was referred to the military committee. The measure provides for an armed froce of approximately 348,000 officers and men, augmented by a reserve force of former service men.

The bill was drafted by a special committee appointed at the association's convention in St. Louis last May. Owing to the pending army reorganization bill, the senate committee will give immediate consideration to the measure. Colonel R. H. Gillette, who assisted in drafting the bill, will appear before the committee tomorrow.

Under the bill's provisions for the present, a militia bureau would be substituted by a national guard bureau, which would be under the direct supervision of the secretary of war, with a major general as chief-of-staff of the bureau, appointed by the president. The bill would also establish a national guard council, composed of one officer of the national guard from each state, who would have charge of the reorganization and development of national guard.

Military and physical training for boys from 16 to 18 years of age, under national guard officers, also is provided, with federal financial aid for equipment and maintenance of high school cadet corps and similar organizations. Federal assistance for maintaining officers' training corps in colleges enrolling at least one hundred male students also is proposed.

The present pay for national guard officers and men would be retained under the bill. The national guard units could be used both inside and outside of the United States by the bill's provisions. As part of the general plan to divorce, as far as possible, the regular army organizations from the state militia, the attirney generl, and not the judge advocate general, would be required to interpret provisions of the bill.

The bill left to congress to determine the cost of putting the plan in force.

American "Dry" Rudely Handled By London Mob

"Pussyfoot" Johnson, Anti-Saloon League Organizer, Captured by Medical Students and Ridden on Plank.

London, November 13.—Crowds of medical students bearing banners with the inscription "We Want Beer and Stout," organized a demonstration against a prohibition campaign meeting in the heart of London this afternoon. The crowds were so dense in the Strand that traffic was held up for some time.

Essex Hall, where the meeting was held under a plan arranged by American prohibition workers, was virtually surrounded by noisy demonstrators when the meeting was held.

Captured "Dry" Organizer.

The students finally captured the Anti-Saloon league organizer, W. E. Johnson, commonly known as "pussyfoot," who was to have addressed the meeting. Johnson was lifted to the shoulders of students and car-

'TOTE FAIR' PLEA BY MINER CHIEF TO GOVERNMENT

OPERATORS REPORTED IN CONCILIATORY MOOD

Believed That Satisfactory Settlement Will Be Reached by Conference. Indications, However, Are That Miners Propose to Await Result of Conference.

Washington, November 13.—Coal miners and operators from the nation's bituminous fields will enter into negotiations here tomorrow for a new wage agreement with the question of the time of termination of the Washington wage agreement of 1918 apparently as the chief stumbling block.

Both miners and operators, on the eve of the conference at which the points in dispute in the recent strike are expected to be settled, were hopeful, however, as to the outcome and expressed belief that the question of when the Washington agreement terminated could be disposed of through mutual agreement along with the demands of the miners for 60 per cent increase in pay and shorter hours.

Operators Not Standing Pat.

Announcement by the executive committee of the operators of the central competitive field, in a formal statement tonight, that the Washington agreement is one of the matters "to be determined by the conference," was taken generally to mean that the operators do not intend to stand pat on their contention that present contracts remain in effect during the "duration of the war," or until March 31, 1920, in case a satisfactory settlement is made with the miners on that and other points.

The statement disclaimed that the message from T. T. Brewster, president of the Coal Operators' association in the competitive field, inviting the miners to a conference "to negotiate a contract to be in force upon the termination of the contract now in effect," was an attempt to "entrap the miners into a tacit acknowledgment" of the binding force of the contracts, and pointed out that the text of the message was almost identical with that of the call for the Buffalo conference.

It was said by those in close touch with the situation that the operators were going into the conference tomorrow in a conciliatory spirit, and would not insist on the interpretation that the war is not over, although their stand has been supported by the pronouncement of the administration and the mandate of Federal Judge Anderson at Indianapolis.

Garfield to Attend.

Miners arriving here today for the parley attached significance to the announcement by Secretary of Labor Wilson that Fuel Administrator Garfield has accepted his invitation to be present at the opening of the conference. No explanation of the role Dr. Garfield is to play was given other than the statement that as it was through his influence that the "Washington agreement" was negotiated, his presence was logically to be expected. There was speculation as to whether the fuel administrator, with revived war powers, might not be able to exercise his authority in a similar manner on this occasion.

Dr. Garfield will not arrive until tomorrow morning, but at the fuel administration offices here it was said that Dr. Garfield's opinion must be asked as to how much of the burden of increased cost of production of coal, in case a wage advance is agreed to, the public should be called upon to bear.

The conference will begin at 2:30

DEFYING WILSON, SENATE ADOPTS LODGE PROPOSAL WITHOUT CHANGE

Solid Republican Lineup, Aided by Hoke Smith and Three Other Democrats, Adopted Reservation That Wilson Says Cuts Heart Out of the Treaty.

CLIMAX FIGHT WON, REPUBLICANS MOVE FOR CLOTURE RULE

This Motion Will Be Voted on Saturday—Final Vote on Reservation to Article Ten Comes After Long Struggle, During Which Every Amendment Offered by Wilson Forces Was Defeated.

Washington, November 13.—Squarely joining the issue with President Wilson, the senate adopted today a reservation qualifying the obligations of the United States under Article X. of the league of nations covenant.

A solid republican line-up, reinforced by four democratic votes, put the reservation across exactly as it came from the foreign relations committee and in virtually the language which the president declared on his western tour would cut the heart out of the covenant and mean the rejection of the treaty. The vote by which the reservation won was 46 to 33.

Hoke Smith With Republicans.

Four democrats, Gore, Reed, Smith, of Georgia, and Walsh, of Massachusetts, voted with the republicans for adoption.

The vote on the committee reservation to Article X. was taken after the senate had rejected, 45 to 34, an amendment offered by Senator Hitchcock, which incorporated a paragraph from a resolution by Senator Knox, republican, of Pennsylvania, declaring it the general policy of the United States to interfere whenever civilization was threatened.

Republicans Propose Cloture.

The fight for reservations having thus been carried to a climax, the republicans presented for future action a cloture proposal designed to bring final action on the question of ratification within a week. A less sweeping measure, proposing limitation on the reservation debate only, had been put in by the democrats earlier in the day but rejected when the republicans voted to sustain a point of order against it.

A vote on the question of clamping down a cloture on debate will come Saturday morning, and the republican leaders say it will depend entirely on the democrats whether the move rallies the necessary two-thirds to make cloture effective. The democratic leaders were not ready tonight to say how they would vote, being fearful that agreement to so sweeping a program might imperil their chances to secure action on a ratification resolution of their own.

Article X. Reservations.

The Article X. reservation as adopted by the senate follows:

"The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country or to interfere with controversies between nations—whether members of the league or not—under the provisions of Article X., or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States under any article of the treaty for any purpose, unless in any particular case the congress, which under the constitution has the sole power to declare war or authorize the employment of the military or naval forces of the United States, shall by act or joint resolution so provide."

In only two particulars does this language differ from the proposed reservation which the president declared at Cheyenne, Wyo., he would be obliged to regard as a rejection. As read by Mr. Wilson, the phrase "under the provisions of Article X." occurred at a different place, and the final word "provide" was changed to "declare."

How Senators Voted.

The roll call on the committee reservation follows:

For adoption: Republicans—Ball, Borah, Brandegee, Calder, Capper, Colt, Cummins, Curtis, Dillingham, Edge, Elkins, Fall, Fernald, France, Frelinghuysen, Gronna, Hale, Harding, Johnson, California; Kenyon, Keyes, LaFollette, Lenroot, Lodge, McCumber, McLean, McNary, Moses, New, Morris, Page, Penrose, Phipps, Poindexter, Sherman, Smoot, Spencer, Sterling, Southerland, Townsend, Warren and Watson. Total 42.

Democrats—Gore, Reed, Smith, Georgia, and Walsh, Massachusetts. Total, 4. Total for, 46.

Against: Democrats — Ashurst, Beckham, Dial, Fletcher, Gay, Gerry, Harris, Harrison, Henderson, Hitchcock, Johnson, South Dakota; Jones, New Mexico; Kendrick, Kirby, McKellar, Myers, Nugent, Overman, Owen, Phelan, Pittman, Ransdell, Robinson, Sheppard, Smith, Maryland; Smith, South Carolina; Stanley, Thomas, Trammell, Underwood, Walsh, Montana; Williams and Wolcott. Total, 33.

Sixteen senators not voting were paired as follows:

For adoption: Jones, Washington; Kellogg, Knox, McCormick, Nelson, Newberry and Wadsworth, republicans, and Shields, democrat, Tennessee.

Against—Bankhead, Chamberlain, Culberson, King, Pomerene, Simmons, Swanson and Smith, Arizona, democrats.

Wilson Gorces Fought Hard.

The administration forces fought stubbornly through the day and into the evening to secure some modification of the committee measure, but to all of their proposals the united republican organization remained adamant. Finally forced to yield, Democratic Leader Hitchcock put into the senate hopper a set of five reservations on which he will ask for a vote later as a substitute for the committee program. The reservations cover withdrawal, the Monroe doctrine, Article X, domestic questions and voting equality into the league.

A sharp parliamentary battle was precipitated by the democratic cloture proposal, which had been drafted at the morning conference of democrats to replace one drawn up yesterday. The original plan was to propose a cloture up on the treaty itself, but it was decided to confine it to the committee reservations when the point was raised that it might otherwise defeat the democratic plan to vote down the committee's ratification resolution and then offer one acceptable to the administration.

In the conference considerable difference of opinion developed over the alternate plan, but twenty-two signature were secured to the petition, which is necessary to get a cloture vote. When it was filed by Senator Hitchcock, howeevr, objection was made by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, that the cloture rule could not be applied to one feature only of the measure. President Pro Tem. Cummins, presiding, sustained the point of order; Senator Hitchcock appealed from the ruling, and on motion of Republican Leader Lodge, the appeal was tabled, 44 to 36.

To Limit Treaty Debate.

The republican petition, although prepared yesterday by the mild reservation group, was not presented until just before adjournment tonight. It called for limitation of debate on the whole treaty.

The petition was admitted without objection, and was ordered to lie over under the rules until Saturday, when a vote must be taken without debate. Should a two-thirds majority favor cloture, no senator then could speak more than an hour in all until a final ratification roll call had been reached. A plan to hold night sessions beginning tonight was abandoned when it was decided to adjourn over tomorrow for the funeral of Senator Martin.

The first amendment voted on, a motion by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, to amplify the reservation, mustered only four votes. Pending for several days, the proposal had been characterized in debate as a "trick" to attract irreconcilable republicans away from their party leaders to make the reservation so sweeping that the mild reservationists could not vote for its adoption.

On all of the other proposed amendments and substitutes the vote was virtually the same, no republican voting for any change and from thre to five democrats helping vote them down. A motion by Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, to extend aid in protecting Alsace-Lorraine went out, 45 to 36.

Hitchcock Substitue Beaten.

By a vote of 44 to 32 the senate rejected a substitute by Senator Hitchcock, which would declare the recommendation of the league council to be "merely advisory," and a similar proposal by Senator Owen, democrat, Oklahoma, failed, 44 to 33. Mr. Hitchcock's final effort at amendment, a motion to add a resoltion drawn some months ago by Senator Knox, republican, Pennsylvania, relative to the nation's duty in any European emergency, was rejected, 45 to 34, Senator Knox voting with the other republicans against it.

A motion by Senator Thomas, democrat, Colorado, to so amend the reservation as to make article ten binding for a period of five years only was rejected, 46 to 32, the republicans presenting a solid line-up against it.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, offered an amendment adding a proviso for the United States to assume the obligations of article ten for five years as regards Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and the Jugo-Slavs. It was defeated, 44 to 32.

Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, introduced a reservation designed as a substitute for the defeated amendment of Senator Johnson, republican, California, regarding inequality of voting power in the league. It would permit empires and self-governing colonies to cast but one vote, and have no voice in a dispute with the United States.

HOKE SMITH VOTES WITH REPUBLICANS TO KILL ARTICLE 10

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, November 13.—Senator Hoke Smith, who declared in a recent public address in Georgia that he would introduce a set of mild reservations to the peace treaty in order "to assure the ratification of the treaty" and "to remove certain ambiguities," threw himself whole souled into the Lodge element tonight by his vote with the radicals on article ten. It must be understood that this is the reservation, as proposed by the Lodge faction and supported by the Georgian, that President Wilson declared would, in its purpose, cut the heart out of the treaty.

The Lodge committee reservation to article ten was adopted by the senate tonight with the normal line-up which has been shown on previous reservations and in attempts to amend the program of Lodge. Senator Hoke Smith's vote for the Lodge reservation was together with Senators Gore, Reed and Walsh, of Massachusetts, the other democrats who belong to the "battalion of death." Senator Shields, of Tennessee, was absent and paired in favor of the committee reservation.

Several amendments and substitutes were proposed to the reservations on the democratic side. On a substitute offered by Senator Hitchcock, democratic leader, article ten was defined as being only of "advisory strength in action." Senator Hoke Smith voted against this Hitchcock substitute. Later the Georgia senator supported an amendment offered by Senator Hitchcock, which would place the United States on record as viewing with concern any trouble in Europe, etc., this being in fact the exact wording of a resolution introduced earlier in the session by Knox, republican, of Pennsylvania, and one of the "hell-bent" element. It was introduced for the purpose of throwing the gauntlet directly into the teeth of the republicans and demonstrating the animus behind their present tactics.

The final attitude of the Georgian is no surprise to officials in Washington, who know his strong anti-administration tendencies.

Honolulu, November 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—The evacuation of Omsk, Siberia, by the anti-bolshevik forces of Admiral Kolchak has been ordered, it was reported here today in cable advices received by The Nippu Jiji, a Japanese daily newspaper. NEGRO STEAMSHIP LINE

Frederick Douglas, Flagship, Now on High Seas.

Announcement has been made of the sailing of the Frederick Douglas, flagship of the Black Star line, the line of steamships that is to be operated by negroes between America, Liberia, Sierra Leone and West Africa. The Frederick Douglas is now on the high seas and will be followed on the first of January by the Phylis Wheatley, a sister ship that will make the same voyages.

The Black Star Line corporation, owners of the above named ship line, is a commercial and shipping venture on the part of the colored race, and the organization had its inception in a meeting of 15,000 negroes who gathered at Madison Square Garden, New York city, in October. At this meeting the negroes got behind the commercial undertaking, assuring its operation.

The sailings of the Black Star line are expected to be on a regular schedule, and Estelle A. Henderson, a colored woman, who is also an attorney-at-law, of 136½ Whitehall street, has been appointed general agent and southern manager for the line.

RED CROSS DRIVE TO COME TO CLOSE

was to be raised, that every one of these former subscribers give the sum asked. Large advertisements were published in the newspapers last Friday, again carrying the appeal for 25 per cent. Many firms and individuals have responded. Some have voluntarily sent more than the sum asked. But many others have either not received the appeal, or else they have found it necessary to ignore it. Anyway, the subscriptions have not been received at the headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce building.

Any who have overlooked this matter are earnestly requested to either send their checks so that they will be delivered to the headquarters before noon today, or to bring them in person. At the noon meeting of the executive committee the final tabulations will be made, and it is hoped that there will be no dilatory subscribers who could send their gifts by that time, but who delay.

A very pleasant communication received by the executive committee on Thursday was from the Murray Body and Fender company, a new comer to the ranks of Atlanta's industrial concerns, having come here from Cincinnati.

The letter contained a check for $125, covering a subscription to the Red Cross war fund of $100 and 25 membership subscriptions to the roll call, this putting their establishment into the hundred per cent class for membership among the employees.

Honor Roll Increased.

From day to day, there has been published the list of subscribers who have responded to the special appeal for the war fund. Added to that honor roll were thirty odd additional names on Thursday, including the following:

U. S. POTASH DEMAND TOO BIG FOR GERMANY

Berlin, November 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—Owing to inability to make sufficient deliveries to pay for the amount of textiles and leather goods offered Germany for potash by Americans, the potash syndicate has been forced to break off negotiations for the deal. The syndicate was offered commodities estimated at 1,500,000,000 marks by American officials in the occupied zone. Available potash, however, is far below the volume required to complete the transaction.

EISEMAN'S 51 YEARS IN ATLANTA

SHORT LINE RAILROADS NOT PROTECTED BY BILL

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, November 13.—Representatives of the short-line railroads in the south are pointing out that the Esch railroad bill, now before the house, contains no adequate provisions for short lines. Many districts in Georgia are today witnessing the dismantling of short lines because of the lack of proper or commensurate federal co-operation, and if the railroad measure that is finally passed does not provide for them as they justly demand the south will witness the scrapping of scores of these lines.

In Georgia today among the short lines being dismantled is the Georgia Coast and Piedmont, a line of 98 miles length. Another is the Register and Glanville, over 40 miles in length.

These and all such roads in Georgia and in the south, as for that matter, are important connecting links with trunk lines and traverse rich and prosperous agricultural sections that must necessarily suffer and the public suffer as a consequence by any injustice done them. Short-line railroads are pioneer developers and their success or failure affects acutely the whole people.

It is a notorious fact that the Esch bill does not require a mandatory provision requiring the commission to establish an adequate rate structure. It does not require the commission to distribute unrouted traffic nor fully protect the short lines in the establishment of through routes nor does it contain a rule which will require the commission to establish adequate division of joint rates.

To cure these and other defects the American Short-Line Railroad association prepared a set of amendments to the Esch bill, but it was decided tonight not to offer them in the house for the reason that the Cummins senate bill does provide in general effect provisions for the short lines and an effort will be made to have these provisions perfected and incorporated finally in the conference measure.

It is not conceivable that the final railroad legislation will be enacted until adequate protection for these lines in which the south is so deeply interested, certainly in view of the fact that the south is the only section of the United States in which federal operated railroads are self-sustaining.

10,000 Requests Made For Return of Bodies Of Dead U. S. Soldiers

Washington, November 13.—The war department has received 40,000 requests from relatives for return of the bodies of soldiers dead in France, Colonel E. W. Anderson, assistant city attorney of Richmond, Va., told the house foreign affairs committee today. Representative Flood, Virginia, ranking democratic committee member, said this had caused a "turn-about in the policy of the war department" and that the bodies would be returned as soon as arrangements could be made with the French government.

A delegation from Pittsburg, headed by J. D. Foster, also asked for return of the bodies, but no action was taken by the committee which was considering a resolution by Representative Bland, republican, Indiana, for appointment of a commission to decide the question.

DEATH HALTS AIRMEN FLYING TO AUSTRALIA

London, November 13.—Lieutenant R. M. Douglas, of the Australian flying corps, and Lieutenant J. S. L. Ross, his navigator, who started from Hounslow today for a flight to Australia, were killed shortly after they began their journey. Their airplane crashed near Surbiton, in Surrey.

Lieutenants Douglas and Ross were the Australian entrants in the reliability flight from England to Australia for the Australian government's prize of $50,000. Several English aviators also have entered the contest. The conditions of the flight are that a distance of 11,500 miles must be covered within thirty days.

FRENCH CROSS GIVEN TO CAPTAIN MILLS

New York, November 13.—The cross of the Legion of Honor has been bestowed by the French government on Captain Arthur R. Mills, master of the American line steamer St. Paul and formerly in command of the Mongolia. The decoration was granted in recognition of Captain Mills' seamanship last July when he towed the disabled French cruiser Jeanne d'Arc more than 400 miles to a safe anchorage at the Azores.

On board the cruiser at the time was President Pessoa, of Brazil, who was transferred at sea to the transport Imperator, bound for New York. Captain Mills is commodore of the American [illegible]

DRIVE IS RESUMED FOR AGNES SCOTT

Counties Outside Fulton and DeKalb Must Raise $70,000 More to Secure $175,000 From Educational Board.

The various counties in Georgia have resumed their work which has been held in abeyance during the Red Cross drive, for the Agnes Scott $500,000 campaign and a great effort must be made to raise their quota of $100,000 by the expected time, December 1. Outside of the counties of DeKalb and Fulton, $70,000 is to be raised in the remaining Georgia counties.

Thirty-seven of Georgia's counties have already raised $30,000. It's up to the other 118 counties to function in a like manner. If the counties of Georgia do not raise their quota of $100,000, the whole plan of procedure falls through, and Agnes Scott will not receive the $175,000 conditional offer of the general education board.

The benefit derived by the state from Agnes Scott is inestimable. The public looks to Agnes Scott to furnish its Christian influence. There is scarcely a high school in the state where some Agnes Scott alumna is not teaching. In the Girls' High school of Atlanta this year there are seven Agnes Scott girls in the capacity of teachers.

Now that the Red Cross drive is over, active work has been resumed in the counties by Malcolm Lockhart, Dr. J. R. McCain and Dr. S. R. Preston. A number of counties are being visited this week by these workers.

The following is a list of counties having subscribed 10 per cent or more of their quotas. The actual per cent subscribed is given below:

LOUISVILLE IS CHOSEN BY SOUTHERN DOCTORS

Asheville, N. C., November 13.—With the adoption of a resolution pledging the association to the work of assisting the United States public health service in the program to save 250,000 lives next year, the thirteenth annual session of the Southern Medical association selected Louisville, Ky., as the next meeting place, elected officers and adjourned this afternoon.

The officers elected are: Dr. E. M. Cary, of Dallas, Texas, president; Dr. H. H. Briggs, Asheville, first vice president, and Dr. A. L. Gray, of Richmond, Va., second vice president. The other officers will be appointed by the executive committee. Louisville won over New Orleans, Baltimore and St. Louis, each of these cities putting up a fight for the next convention.

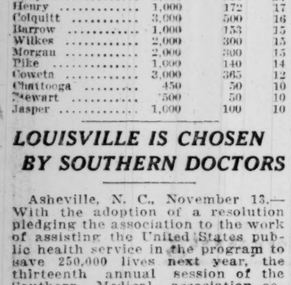

The association created the sections on orthopedists and urology and adopted a resolution from the Southern States Association of Railway Surgeons, an auxiliary, to request the governors of sixteen southern states to start a movement to secure specific information in protecting vehicles at railroad crossings.

It was decided that members of the medical corps and medical officers of the national guard are not entitled to the same privileges of membership as extended to the medical officers of the regular army and navy, and public health service.

A committee of three was named, one each from the surgical, medical and special section, to review the original work done by members of the association and bestow medals where justified.

Asheville, N. C., November 13.—At the final session of the American Child Hygiene association here today, officers for the ensuing year were elected and the invitation of St. Louis for next year's meeting was accepted. Dr. Philip Van Ingen, New York, president-elect, automatically becomes president.

KREISLER TO PLAY OWN COMPOSITIONS AT RECITAL HERE

Fritz Kreisler, who appears at the Auditorium Monday evening in his first Atlanta concert, is to play a number of his own compositions, which will be unusually appealing to the large audience which will greet him at that time. Mr. Kreisler is one of the best known of living composers, having a large number of short violin pieces to his credit which are universally played, and this season he has been presented to the American public as a composer of light opera.

His "Apple Blossoms," which was produced a month ago, is now one of the Broadway sensations. A number of his best loved violin numbers are included on his Atlanta program.

Tickets for the concert continue to go at a rapid rate at the sale which is being held at the Cable Piano company. Prospects for a sold-out house loom larger every day. The concert, which is under the auspices of the civic concert series of the Atlanta Music Study club, is presented at popular prices, the scale running from 50 cents to $2.00.

STATE SCHOOL FUND WILL BE CONSIDERED

Amicable Settlement of Puzzling Problem May Be Reached.

A joint meeting of the finance committee of council and a committee from the board of education will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the city hall, when an effort will be made to arrive at an agreement concerning the state school fund.

The question will be taken up and threshed out in all its phases and it is believed that an amicable settlement may be reached.

SUCCESSOR FOR MARTIN CAUSES SPECULATION

John Skelton Williams Is Boomed by Treaty Friends For Post.

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, November 13.—There is a great deal of speculation in official Washington as to the possible successor to the late Senator Martin, of Virginia.

Because of the present state of the treaty fight it will be necessary for Governor Davis, of Virginia, immediately to name a successor. Although Senator Martin had been absent from his seat since July, he had been paired in favor of the administration side of the fight on every ballot, and thus his vote was not lost.

A boom for John Skelton Williams, now fighting for confirmation as comptroller of the currency, was the principal feature of today. The boom was sponsored by friends of the treaty, who declared that Williams could be depended upon staunchly to support the treaty, which, it was said, represented the sentiment of Virginia.

Mr. Williams' friends also felt that a seat in the senate for him would be sweet revenge for the report of the senate committee on banking and currency against his confirmation to his present post.

Another report, that apparently had foundation, was that Governor Davis would appoint Harry St. George Tucker, a Richmond educator, to serve until the election next year, and that Davis himself would be a credit for the remainder of Senator Martin's term, entering the primaries for that purpose. Governor Davis previously has announced he would be a candidate against Senator Swanson.

ADMIRAL BENSON IS TO BE GUEST OF MACON GIRLS

Macon, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—Because of a conflict in the plans for entertaining Admiral Benson when he arrives in Macon on November 20, the plans for Macon's Georgia Products' Day dinner have undergone a change and the senior class of Wesleyan college will be host both to Admiral Benson and the members of the Macon Chamber of Commerce.

A few days ago the chamber announced plans for a Georgia Products' Day dinner, at which Admiral Benson was to be the guest of honor. The chamber did not take into account a promise Admiral Benson had made some time previous to the seniors and Wesleyan that he would spend his first evening in Macon with them. When the Wesleyan girls heard of the arrangements made by the chamber of commerce they protested and displayed a letter from Admiral Benson accepting their invitation. They stood firm and refused to give way to the chamber of commerce despite the fact that 750 invitations had already been sent out and all preliminary plans for the dinner completed.

An appeal was taken to Dr. C. R. Jenkins, of Wesleyan, who agreed to talk the matter over with the girls, with the result that the Wesleyan seniors have now invited the chamber of commerce members, as well as Admiral Benson, to be their guests on the evening of November 20, and the dinner will be given at that time. The only difference will be that instead of appearing in the role of hosts to the distinguished naval officer, the members of the chamber of commerce will be guests and the Wesleyan girls will be the ones to entertain.

METHODISTS PLAN CHURCH REVIVAL

find it more profitable to plead guilty than to fight their cases in court and referred to one court where over a hundred cases of illicit distilling were on the docket and the greater portion of them were disposed of with a light fine on the entering of a plea of guilty. He urged the influence of the conference members be exerted in the election of men who will enforce the law.

A number of south Georgia conference visitors was presented to the conference Thursday. They were C. R. Jenkins, T. D. Ellis, J. A. Harmon, J. A. Smith and Bascomb Anthony. J. M. Bass, another from that conference, came in at noon.

Dr. L. S. Letbetter, a lay member of the conference, introduced a resolution Thursday asking that $5,000,000 of the centenary fund be set apart as a fund for the relief of superannuated preachers and the widows and orphans of deceased preachers. J. P. Erwin amended the paper by making the amount $10,000,000.

Eakes States Views.

J. H. Eakes, who was a member of the general conference that enacted the centenary program, stated the views of that conference when the program was inaugurated, and S. E. Wasson, missionary secretary and centenary supervisor in this conference, referred to a visit just made to the Tennessee conference, where a similar paper had been brought forward.

He informed the conference that Bishop Atkins, who was presiding over the Tennessee conference, called the centenary commissioners together to consider their powers in the matter. Bishop Atkins ruled that the centenary commission had no authority to divert the centenary money from the causes other than those enumerated in the centenary campaign. The superannuated fund is not among those causes.

Bishop Candler ruled that he could not entertain the motion.

However, it is the recommendation of Mr. Wasson to the board of missions in this conference that a certain per cent of the centenary money that comes to north Georgia shall be used for this purpose. And, whether any centenary money is ever used for this purpose or not, southern Methodism in the next four years plans to raise a fund of $15,000,000, the interest on which shall be devoted to the relief of the superannuated and their dependents.

An important paper, signed by John B. Hutcheson, Jerre M. Pound, John S. Candler, Sam Tate, Robert L. Cox, Dr. L. S. Ledbetter, Major Robert L. Guinn, A. H. Thompson, Dr. N. G. Slaughter and Claude Tuck, all laymen, was circulated in the conference Thursday. The paper's purpose is to have the conference give consideration to the matter of an adequate compensation for pastors. The committee on lay activities voluntarily took the paper in hand and will make a recommendation today or Saturday.

Nation-Wide Revival.

As the southern Methodist church led the way among the Christian denominations in inaugurating a great campaign to raise a large sum of money for seizing the day's opportunity for the church to win the world for Christ, so it will act as pioneer in the advance movement for a nation-wide revival of religion among the church people. This fact was attested Thursday in the pastoral address by the College of Southern Methodist Bishops to the ministers and church people throughout the connection.

In their annual meeting at Shreveport, La., a short time ago, the college of bishops prepared an address as stated, which was read to this conference Thursday by Bishop Candler. In the address, the fact is brought forward that revivals and providential movements always go togethehr; and the appeal was made, in view of the providential crisis through which the nation is now passing, that the Southern Methodist church arise in her might to take advantage of the offer of Providence and become yet more and more a spiritual organization. To this end exhortation was made that both preachers and laymen humble themselves before God, and in prayer and faith receive of that spiritual enduement that will make all as one in a body of many members.

The pastoral address refused to conceal the worldliness of the day, by which the church has become somewhat corrupted, the decadence of family religion, the failure in fruitfulness, and the gloriousness of the fight he has waged, attest well the impregnability of his foundation and the wisdom of his judgment. No man in America can get a more attentive hearing than Bishop Candler when he speaks.

However, Bishop Candler tells this story on himself: He said he was traveling in a distant state on one occasion, and fell in with a stranger who learned he was a Methodist preacher from Georgia. The stranger inquired of one Warren A. Candler, whom he had heard so much of years before. The bishop replied that Warren A. Candler had been made a bishop in the Southern Methodist church. The stranger replied, "Well, well. I'm sorry to hear of that; for I had hoped young Candler would amount to something and do something for the world."

The number of lay brethren and sisters of Thursday morning had been increased over Wednesday, until on the second day only 21 were absent, instead of 54, and only one woman was not in place, instead of four.

Rev. M. B. Whittaker, of the Sharon charge, carries off the banner in the matter of centenary subscriptions. Mr. Whittaker reports that every member of every one of his churches excepting two subscribed to the centenary fund.

Has Tried Most Everything.

Dr. George W. Yarbrough always carries a spirit of humor with him. Reporting Wednesday morning, he said he had answered to roll call 60 times, having missed only once, on account of war. He also said he had tried every kind of work a preacher can do, except being a bishop. He declared he would have tried that if he had received votes enough.

Rev. J. V. M. Morris, another superannuate, is quite matter-of-fact in his make-up. He takes everything seriously and looks ahead. Mr. Morris brought out a laugh from the conference when he reported that he had bought a little home some years ago, paying $450 for it, and had just recently bought him another and better one. He said he sold the first little home for $2,500.

Rev. L. L. Landrum stirred the conference heart Thursday as he made his last report before superannuation. Broken completely in health, with an incurable malady, disappointed in his life plans, he took his seat weeping. Rev. J. F. Yarbrough, his presiding elder, testified of Mr. Landrum's devotion to his work, and declared that he was almost compelled to use force to influence Mr. Landrum to give it up.

Dr. Fletcher Walton, retiring from the pastorate of Park Street church, says that 350 new members have been received into that congregation since he went there, and that finances in the church work have had a remarkable growth.

Some folks say the presiding elders have a ring or clique among themselves. Bishop Candler denies the assertion. He says he has been mixing it with them for 21 years, and he has never found a ring among them yet. He facetiously declares that, if they were to agree on anything, he would be astounded. Both the bishop and the presiding elders probably come in for a great deal of criticism that they do not merit. And a further probability is that comparatively few people realize the difficult and heart-rending problems they have to solve in cabinet meetings in furnishing churches with pastors and pastors with churches.

Interesting Sidelights On Methodist Conference

By Rev. Thomas M. Elliott.

Three blushing brides of preachers are either in attendance on conference, or will be here before the week is over. They are Mrs. R. F. Elrod, Mrs. A. E. Silvey and Mrs. W. S. Norton. All of them were married during recent weeks or months.

Many rumors are to the effect that several more brides might have been here had it not been for Mr. High Cost and the meager remuneration of the minister who is just starting out his career. Several of the younger brethren have an expression of hopefulness on their faces, indicating that they hope to receive an appointment this time that will enable them to take on a life-partner.

Rev. J. M. Hawkins, superintendent of the Orphans' home at Decatur, has the largest family of any one preacher in the conference to look out for. Under his care are some 150 orphan children, and he declares them to be a husky bunch. Mr. Hawkins has been exceedingly successful in his work at the home, and all the children love him. He says his most perplexing days are the 20th to the 26th of December each year, when he has to be Santa Claus for so many.

Bishop Candler's Story.

Bishop Candler has no sort of sympathy for the new thought in theology or modern philosophy. He says the most of it is not first-class nonsense. The bishop believes in the fundamentals as laid down in the one revealed word, and he has made his way and fought his fight standing on those fundamentals. The bigness of his labors in large part on the part of the pulpit to proclaim the cardinal doctrines of the Bible and the preaching on current topics, and the using of mechanical and material means to bring about spiritual results.

Address of Bishops.

The address of the bishops urged Southern Methodists not to boast of their unexampled liberality in the centenary campaign; nor accept it as an evidence of profound inward spirituality; but the rather they were exhorted to give of themselves and their lives to the Spirit-baptized service of God. Such a revival as desired, it was pointed out, cannot be experienced if sought on any lower plane than to know God through Christ Jesus, and such experience comes out of a deep conviction of sin, and a hearty repentance towards God and exercise of true faith.

The call was sounded out to the whole denomination to come into such an experience, and all church people, of whatever office or rank, co-operate to this end, laying aside all strife, holding fast the teachings of the scriptures, grieving not the Holy Spirit and to walk and dwell in Christ as members of one body; to seek not enlarged membership, but the renewal of souls in Christ.

The address made a profound impression on the conference, which, on motion of Rev. J. P. Erwin, expressed determination to respond to the appeal of the address and comply with its admonitions.

AMERICAN "DRY" MOBBED IN LONDON

ried along the Strand at the head of a long procession which cheered and sang. The police were swept aside.

The meeting had been arranged under the auspices of the Overseas club and the Patriotic league. F. A. Mackenzie was the chairman. Mr. Johnson was announced as the principal speaker for prohibition while the anti-prohibition debater was R. Mitchell Banks. The subject of the debate was:

"The why and how of American prohibition." An admission fee was charged and the hall, which holds 500 persons, was filled.

Before the time for the debate to start the organizers became nervous because of the large crowds of students and others outside the hall. They called for police assistance and locked the outer gates of the building. The students, however, rushed the police, broke through the gates and entered the hall. They seized Johnson, after pelting him and Mackenzie with bags of flour, and then carried Johnson on their shoulders from the platform into the streets.

Placed on a Plank.

Mr. Johnson was carried through Piccadilly circus, Regent street and Oxford street. Leaving Essex hall he made stout resistance, but was placed on a wagon. He continued to make a strong fight until the procession reached Leicester Square, when he reconciled himself to the situation. He was then placed on a plank and hoisted to the students' shoulders.

At first the police walked with the procession without interfering, but they finally diverted the course of the march and rescued Johnson near Oxford Circus. He was taken to the Bow street police station.

Johnson suffered an injured eye and was given first aid by the police. Then he went home to his own flat.

"We've Got Pussyfoot."

As the procession passed through the street, with banners adorned with black cats, pictures of beer steins and other decorations, there were frequent cries of "We've got Pussyfoot!" But Londoners, accustomed to students' marches recently, did not really believe that it was Johnson, and the march did not cause as much excitement in the streets as might be expected.

Some of the prohibition campaigners, mostly Americans, declared to the Associated Press that they did not believe the police had made a sincere effort to break up the crowds, and contended that they could have rescued Mr. Johnson much sooner if they had so desired.

GOVERNOR BACKS COTTON MEETING

Issues Proclamation Urging Farmers and Business Men to Attend Conference in Macon, November 21.

Governor Hugh M. Dorsey yesterday issued a special proclamation urging farmers, business and professional men from all over the state to attend the cotton conference in Macon Friday, November 21, called by the American Cotton association.

Simple announcement of the meeting has already created widespread interest over the state, because it is known it will be followed by the American Cotton association's intensive membership campaign, which will mean thorough and active organization of the farmers and business men of the state in their own interests.

Telegrams from Newnan announce that Coweta county will have fully 100 of her most prominent farmers and business men at the Macon meeting. Other counties are responding and indications are already that it is going to be the most important cotton meeting in the history of the state.

Governor Dorsey, who is deeply interested in the organization of a cotton bank in Georgia, is lending every effort to the success of the organization of the American Cotton association, which is strongly aligned with the cotton bank movement.

Governor Dorsey's proclamation calling for a large and general attendance follows:

To the People of Georgia:

The American Cotton association is in process of formation, for the purpose, as stated in the literature, of bettering agricultural conditions in the cotton-growing sections of the south.

The method proposed by the association to effect this is to bring together in the association, not only the farmers, but the manufacturers, bankers, merchants and professional men of the south to co-operate in furthering all legitimate and practical agencies to secure these ends.

Therefore, I, Hugh M. Dorsey, governor of Georgia, do hereby join the association in inviting representation from all counties and urge the attendance of farmers, business and professional men upon a conference which has been called to assemble on Friday, November 21, at 10 o'clock a. m., eastern time, in the city of Macon, at the City Hall auditorium, there to confer as to the best methods of accomplishing these results.

Given under my hand and the seal of the executive department at the state capital, in the city of Atlanta, November 12, 1919.

HUGH M. DORSEY,
Governor.

There will be no regularly appointed delegates at this meeting. All farmers and business men interested in successful and profitable production in Georgia are invited and expected to attend. There is a place for every one and there is much important work to be done.

Macon, too, is deeply interested in this convention and has promised to lend every possible assistance to its work.

Stolen Auto Recovered.

An automobile, the property of L. M. Crawford, of Lyerly, Ga., which was stolen from the owner last Monday night, was recovered by Lieutenant Oliver and Officer Cates, of the Fulton county police force, Thursday. The car had been abandoned on Chattahoochee avenue, near the waterworks.

Compress Companies Allowed to Increase Rates by Rail Board

Authority was granted by the railroad commission yesterday to compress companies to increase their rates for cotton compression. The new schedule of charges is as follows:

Standard compression at interior points, increased from 70 to 75 cents per bale; high density, interior ponits, from 99 cents to $1.10 per bale; at ports, standard compression, from 80 to 90 cents pere bale; high density, from $1 to 1.25 per bale.

The commission authorized the Baker County Power company to create an issue of $450,000 stock. Of this $100,000 is to be issued immediately at par for acquisition and construction purposes. The balance will be issued as the development of the company warrants it. The hydro-electric plant will be located near Newton, in Baker county.

The application of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad to discontinue Jakin, Brinson, Cyrene, Iron City, West Bainbridge and Hanover as flag stops for its passenger trains Nos. 57 and 58 was denied, except as to Hanover and West Bainbridge.

The Clayton Light and Power company, of Rabun county, was authorized to increase its minimum electric rate from $1 to $1.25 net per month.

The railroad commission heard three cases, as follows:

The application of the Gainsboro Telephone company, of Carrollton, to continue the rates fixed by the postmaster general for the present.

The petition of the Rome Municipal Gas company to be allowed to make a surcharge of 50 cents per month per meter. This petition was vigorously opposed by the city of Rome and the Rome chamber of commerce, Max Meyerhardt, city attorney, appearing for the former and R. A. Denny for the latter.

The petition of the Valdosta Gas company to increase gas rates from $1.50 net per 1,000 to $1.75 per thousand.

Decision has not yet been rendered on these cases.

Worth County Man Is Slain by Negro; Posse Searching

Moultrie, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—W. E. Smith, a prominent Worth county farmer, was shot and killed this afternoon by a negro farm hand. The report received here stated that the negro fled immediately following the shooting. A posse is searching the woods near the scene of the crime for him.

No details of the shooting were received here. The slain man was one of the best known men in the section of the county where he made his home. He was 43 years old and is survived by his wife and three children.

Farmers Organize.

Anniston, Ala., November 13.—(Special.)—Farmers of Friendship, one of the best farming communities in this part of the state, have reorganized the Farmers' union local here. Reorganization was effected at a meeting of practically all the farmers of the entire neighborhood. Addresses were made by County Agent L. G. Prentice and Messrs. Draper and Snasing, of Anniston. ADOPT NEW TAG FORM FOR DEALERS IN CARS

Secretary McLendon Makes Announcement of Interest to Auto Trade.

After several consultations with representatives of the State Automobile association, Secretary of State Guyt McLendon announced yesterday that he had adopted a form of pasteboard ten-day tag for dealers and that he would ask for bids for printing them at an early date.

Under the old law dealers paid $10 and received two metal tags. They were allowed to secure additional tags, if they needed them, at $1 each. After January 1, when the new law goes into effect, dealers pay $50 for a tag number. They are allowed to furnish pasteboard tags to purchasers of cars, good for ten days only, each bearing the dealer's number. The penalty for the use of these tags beyond the ten-day limit is $100.

Purpose of Law.

The purpose of the law is to allow purchasers of cars to use their cars immediately after purchase and to give them ten days in which to secure tags from the secretary of state's affice.

In order to guard against fraudulent use of these pasteboard tags, Secretary McLendon has instructed the dealers to require purchasers to tear off the end of the card and return it to them before the expiration of the ten-day period. As there are 937 automobile dealers in Georgia, Mr. McLendon is having dealers' cards printed bearing numbers from one to one thousand. He will have these cards packed in bunches of twenty-five so that he can hand them out in that number to dealers applying for them.

Besides carrying the dealer's number printed in large type on its face, the card will also carry the inscription: "Ten-Day Card" at the bottom, "Penalty for longer use $100." The stub side of the card to be torn off and returned to the dealer will also carry the number with the words "Loaned to (name and address of purchaser) by (name and address of dealer). "These names, together with the date of sale, are to be filled in by the dealer of the car. In addition to the pasteboard cards for customers, dealers will also be furnished with five metallic cards instead of two as heretofore.

Charge on Motor Vehicles.

One feature of the new tax law which will prove a surprise to most owners of cars is the higher proportionate charge on motor vehicles exceeding 23-horsepower. The law reads: "For each passenger-carrying motor vehicle not exceeding 23-horsepower, $11.25; for each motor vehicle, exclusive or non-passenger carrying motor vehicle or truck exceeding 23-horsepower, per horsepower, 60 cents."

It has been the idea of most owners of cars as well as that of some of the members of the legislature which passed the law that a 24-horsepower car would pay 60 cents more than one of 23-horsepower. That, however, is not the way the law reads, nor the way Secretary McLendon interprets it.

Instead of paying $11.85, as many have figured it, a 24-horsepower car will pay a tax of $14.40; a 25-horsepower car, $15. In other words, for all cars above 23-horsepower the tax will be figured by multiplying the rating of the car by 60 cents.

Secretary McLendon has already ordered 125,000 tags for next year's use. The order was awarded to the Grimm Stamp company, of St. Louis, and the tags will cost the state 1¾ cents apiece. One-half of the order is to be delivered by December 1, and the balance by January first.

Mayor Key at Office.

Mayor Key, who has been ill for several days with a cold, returned to the duties of his office Thursday morning. Mr. Key's illness was attributed to his visit to the Barnum & Ringling circus, where he received a drenching in the heavy rain that fell on that night.

McMillin Appointed Associate Manager Of Dixie Red Cross

The appointment of Joseph L. McMillin as associate manager of the southern division of the American Red Cross was announced yesterday by Eugene R. Black, division manager.

Mr. McMillin's appointment, which dates from November 1, will be very gratifying to all friends of the Red Cross in the division, for he is known throughout the division as one of the most capable and energetic Red Cross executives in the nation.

Mr. McMillin, a native of Mississippi, was superintendent of public schools at Macon, Miss., when war was declared, and he resigned his position to become an educational instructor in several army camps. During the war he performed valuable service for the government and war work organizations, serving as rural executive secretary for Mississippi in the united war work campaign and later with the federal board of vocational education, first as supervisor of advisement and field work at New Orleans and then as a member of the central office case board at Washington, D. C.

He has been with the Red Cross since last spring, coming to Atlanta as director of development for the southern division. He was chairman of the third Red Cross roll call in the division, directing what has proved to be one of the most successful campaigns staged in the south since the war.

Mr. McMillin succeeds B. L. Parkinson, who resigned recently to re-enter educational wokr.

GROTTO GOING TO 'EM IN BIG CEREMONIAL

Student Government Will Be Inaugurated By the Auburn Faculty

Auburn, Ala., November 13.—The faculty of the Alabama Polytechnic institute today voted unanimously to install the student plan of government at once, doing away with the faculty discipline committee.

This decision grew out of the hazing episode a week ago when 13 members of the sophomore class were expelled from the institution and several more permitted to resign, because of violation of the rules against hazing.

Members of the second year class state that matters will be brought to a climax Monday, when the sophomores meet.

Criticism and Citizenship

It is the plain, public duty of every citizen to criticize proposed government measures believed to be harmful.

Swift & Company is in a better position perhaps, than others, to understand the meat packing business in all its relations to public and private interests, even though the others may have been giving the subject a great deal of sincere attention.

Swift & Company is convinced that interference with its legitimate business function by governmental agencies, however well intentioned, would be an injury to every man, woman and child who wants meat to eat, as well as to the men who raise the meat and to those who dress and distribute it.

Maximum service that cannot monopolize because of keen competition and lack of control over sources of supply is furnished at a minimum of profit—a fraction of a cent per pound from all sources.

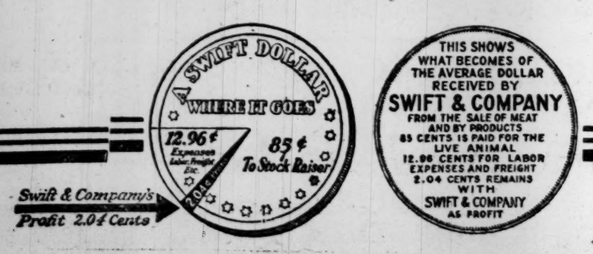

Therefore Swift & Company is taking every legitimate step of citizenship to prevent such interference.

These advertisements are intended to help you, and to help Congress decide what is best to be done. Mistakes are costly and apt to be harmful in these trying times.

SAYS FAIR WAGES PAID COAL MINERS

Public Has Been Misled Concerning Working Conditions and Pay of Miners, According to Statement.

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, November 13.—J. W. Dawson, of Charleston, W. Va., president of the Kanawha and Michigan Railway Coal Shippers' association of West Virginia, which operates approximately thirty miles in the Kanawha field, made public the following statement today:

The public has been misled often during the past two weeks by statements purporting to show the coal miner as underpaid and engaged in a grinding battle with poverty. Such is not the case certainly in the coal field with whose conditions I am familiar. Figures showing actual earnings refute any such statement.

In the Kanawha field of West Virginia there are approximately 100 mines, giving employment to about 15,000 men. These men are union men. They obeyed the strike order of the United Mine Workers of America, although the wage increase and other questions in controversy had not been under negotiations between miners and operators in that district.

In the Kanawha field, as in other coal fields, the mine employees are divided into two classes. The pick miners, machine cutters and loaders, all termed miners, are paid by the tan. The more coal they mine or load, the greater their income. The other employees—motor, runners, drivers, track layers, cagers, tipplemen, etc.—are, from the nature of their work, paid by the day. The more days they work, the greater their incomes.

Highest Paid Class.

The normal work day is eight hours.

The highest paid employees are the machine cutters, loaders and pick miners; the lowest paid are the trappers, couplers and greasers—boys from 16 to 18 years of age.

Pay rolls of twenty-five mines—one-fourth of the total number operating—have been examined to determine the actual earnings of cutters, loaders and pick miners. The earnings of 300 men of this class who worked every day the mines operate, putting in full time, have been selected as typical.

These 300 men earned on an average of from $6.18 per day, the lowest, up to $19.14 a day. The lowest paid employee of this class working full time, earned $166.85 for twenty-seven days' work; the highest earned $210.63 for eleven days' work. Other earnings, typical of the entire 300 men's pay, were $251.39 for twenty-five days' work; $265.60 for twenty-six days' work; $239.78 for twenty-two days' work; $210.59 for twenty-four days' work; $249.92 for twenty-three days' work; $216.42 for twenty-five days' work; $155.43 for twenty-three days' work, and $335.32 for twenty-six days' work.

Figures Not Misleading.

No attempt is made in presenting these figures to cite extreme cases. Some of the men earned up to $400 for twenty-six days' work.

The figures cover a period of six months. They show that the average earnings of cutters, loaders and pick miners, working full time, range from $166 to $250 per month. The average cutter, loader or pick miners can earn from $2,000 to $3,600 a year in my field, depending upon his ability, if he works every day he has an opportunity to work. Specially skilled miners, cutters and loaders can earn up to $4,800 a year.

The other class of mine employees, the so-called day men, working for day's wages earn from $4.25 to $4 per day. If they were to work every day they could work, they would earn from $85 to $154 per month.

It is said that the mines do not operate regularly. Following is the actual record of mine operation at five large mines employing 2,500 men:

Mines Run Steadily.

In May, 25½ days; in June, 23 days; in July, August and September (a period of acute car shortage), 18½, 16½ and 17 days, respectively, in October, 22 days. The average working time at these mines for the six months period ending with October was 20½ days per month.

During this six months' period, these mines paid out $290,497.57 in wages, an average of $108.59 per month to every man on the payroll.

During this period, however, the men on the pay roll worked only an average of 15½ days per month. The mines operated 20½ days a month. In other words, the employees worked only 62 per cent of the time they could have worked. Had they worked every day the mine was in operation they could have earned an average of $175 per month for the six months, notwithstanding the short running time in July, August and September, because of the car shortage, and their average earnings could have been at the rate of $2,100 per year.

These figures include all employees. They include the boys from 16 to 18 years, who earned from $2.30 to $2.55 per day as couplers, greasers and trappers. It is not true that the employees have not had material wage increases. The pick miners, who constitute less than 10 per cent of the total number of miners (most of the coal being cut by machines), earn form $9.38 to $11.77 per day, by actual pay roll figures, and are working now at an advance of 43.8 per cent over the 1917 scale; the machine cutters' advance has been 53.8 per cent, and the machine loaders' advance has ranged from 60.4 per cent to 69.2 per cent.

Great Wage Advance in Wages.

Greater wage advances than these, however, have been made to the men working for day wages. Such advances range from 86.8 per cent to 164.3 per cent.

The advance in wages made coal mine employees under the Washington wage agreement was the greatest ever accorded workers in any occupation in this country. It placed the coal mine employees far in advance of wage scales paid in other occupations. The scale was intended to endure until April, 1920, unless peace should be proclaimed earlier. It was also intended to obviate the necessity of a number of smaller increases made at shorter intervals.

Now here is an interesting sidelight as to the miners' living expenses:

Employees of the five mines cited above bought their household supplies at the operators' commissaries. After all deductions for living expenses—fuel, rent, store, doctor, lights and union dues—the men received, in actual cash, an average of 68.29 per cent of their earnings, this percentage representing their net savings out of their incomes, after all living expenses had been paid.

I believe the foregoing figures are typical of the entire coal industry. Certainly they are accurate, so far as the Kanawha district of West Virginia is concerned. They do not substitute the clause that mine employees are not making a living wage. They show that by working only 62 per cent of the time he might work, the average employee is earning more than sufficient to pay all his living expenses and to enable him to spend sixteen or seventeen days each month in idleness.

Funeral Services Held For 111 U. S. Soldiers Killed in North Russia

New York, November 13.—Funeral services for 111 American soldiers who gave their lives on the battlefields of northern Russia were held today on the long pier at Hoboken, where the bodies were landed by the little transport Daraga.

The services, held with full military honors, were attended by representatives of official Washington, many foreign governments and the states from which the soldiers entered the service.

Scarcely a timber on the pier was visible under the decorations of flags and crepe; while over the shore entrance hung a great reverred red, white and blue streamer bordered with deep bands of black.

Addresses were delivered by Senator Wadsworth, of New York, for the nation; Major General O'Ryan, for the American legion; Major Ralph Duff, for Michigan, and James A. Martin, for Detroit.

The war department announced that bodies not claimed by relatives would be buried either in Cypress Hills cemetery, or some national cemetery to be selected later.

SCOTCHMAN OFFERS BILLION FOR HOUSING

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

London, November 13.—(Special Cable.)—Ian Robertson, a Scotchman who stated that he was acting for a trust composed of Scottish and American millionaires, whose names he does not disclose, has offered a sum of one billion dollars to the prime minister for investment in housing at a rate below the current market rate. Mr. Robertson was introduced by Lord Willoughby de Broke and Sir Warren Fisher, secretary of the treasury, was present at the interview. This is not the first time Mr. Robertson has offered these mysterious millions. During the summer he offered large loans to Birmingham and other English municipalities. To no one has Mr. Robertson disclosed the names of those for whom he states he is acting.

There is no evidence that he succeeded in convincing the prime minister of treasury representatives of the existing of the money. But Mr. Robertson and Lord Willoughby both declared after the interview that it was satisfactory.

NEW ORGANIZATION FORMED BY FARMERS

Chicago, November 13.—A new organization of agriculturalists entered the economic field of the United States today with the preliminary organization of the American Farm Bureau federation. That is the name expected to be officially chosen.

Its purpose, it was stated, is "to protect the business, economic, social and educational interests of agriculture and to represent the farmers of the whole nation." About 500 delegates from farmers' bureaus and associations in thirty-two states attended the sessions, which will be resumed tomorrow.

Speakers were plain spoken in putting the federation on an independent basis, free of any alliance with labor, capital or any other organization.

G. E. Bradfute, of Xenia, Ohio, temporary chairman, said it was to the interests of the farmers "to see that representatives of organized agriculture shall not make any entangling alliances with any group or class."

DULUTH SELLS BONDS SOON TO BUILD SCHOOL

Duluth, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—After opening all bids for the Duluth school bonds, the board of trustees rejected all bids and the bonds were sold at auction. Hilsman & Co., of Atlanta, represented by Mr. Lowndes, bought the issue of $25,000 Duluth district 6 per cent bonds, paying $1,295 premium.

The work of construction will begin in the early spring and Duluth plans to build an up-to-date school building, which will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000.

COMMERCIAL BODY OPENS ITS OFFICES

Dr. Owens Prepares for Opening of the Annual Southern Commercial Congress at Savannah, December 8-10.

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, November 13.—Dr. Clarence J. Owens, director general of the Southern Commercial congress, assisted by Buist C. Getsinger, the commissioner of commerce, today opened its offices in Savannah in preparation for the annual convention on December 8-10, inclusive.

The congress falls on the eleventh anniversary of the present regime and the 63d anniversary of the session of the congress held in Savannah prior to the civil war. Coincident with the sessions of the congress will be held the convention of the woman's auxiliary of the Southern Commercial congress and the congress of the house of southern governors.

Commissions are being issued to 100 delegates appointed by each of the governors of the states included in the territory of the Southern Commercial congress. Representatives are being appointed by commercial organizations and municipalities. Several thousand delegates will assemble in Savannah for the congress and to the platform will come 100 men and women of national and international renown, including foreign diplomats and trade commissioners, members of the cabinet and of the congress of the United States, governors of states and a group of experts to discuss economic subjects relating to the south.

Fletcher to Preside.

The congress will be presided over by Honorary President Duncan U. Fletcher, United States senator from Florida, and President Robert W. Bingham, of Louisville. The woman's auxiliary will be presided over by Miss Louise G. Lindsley, of Nashville, Tenn., and the house of southern governors by Governor Hugh M. Dorsey, chairman of the house.

The trade commission, organized by the Southern Commercial congress that has just returned from an intensive survey of the opportunities for direct and reciprocal trade relations between the south and Europe, will submit its formal report at the Savannah congress.

Representatives of the trade commissions of European countries now in the United States will participate in the convention. The secretary of the navy, as in former congresses, held in Charleston, Norfolk and Baltimore, will mobilize vessels of the Atlantic fleet in the Savannah river and harbor for official participation and it is expected that the war department will be represented by General John J. Pershing and staff. General Pershing having accepted tentatively and having indicated that he saw no barrier in the way of his presence in Savannah.

Sweet to Address Body.

The United States department of commerce will be represented by the acting secretary, who will deliver an address, and by officers of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, who, as trade advisers, will be in attendance for consultative purposes. Acting Secretary of Commerce Sweet will mobilize the fleet of the department of commerce in the Savannah river and arrangements will be made for delegates attending the congress to visit the vessels of the navy and the department of commerce and cruises complimentary to the delegates will be conducted on the river and harbor.

The theme of the eleventh congress will be first the south's part in the American merchant marine; second, the south's part in the solution of the economic problems of the nation; third, the extension of the trade of the southern states with Latin-American countries.

The house of southern governors is to hold an executive session and it is expected that a program will be worked out providing for a concert of action by the southern states, both as to racial and economic subjects and as to the financing of the south's greatest asset, its cotton crop. A complete program for the congress, giving the full report as to speakers, and titles of addresses will be ready within a week.

No Alliance Wanted By National Grange With Organized Labor

Grand Rapids, Mich., November 13.—The National Grange will form no alliance with organized labor, in the opinion of National Master Oliver Wilson, and if his prediction is fulfilled, the grange, in convention here, will vote to decline an invitation by Samuel Gompers for such a union.

The matter will be presented probably early next week at one of the secret sessions and be referred to a committee which will recommend action by the convention.

"I cannot, for my part, see that such an alliance would be of any benefit to the grange," said Mr. Wilson today. "On the contrary, there seems to be many reasons why we should shun any merger. However, that is a question which will have to be passed on by the grange as a whole."

Similar opinion was expressed by S. J. Lowell, member of the executive committee from Freedonia, N. Y.

The grange began its second day of activities with the hearing of reports of state organizations and other routine matters.

BRITISH PREMIER YIELDS TO UNIONS

Lloyd-George Offers the Railway Unions Membership in the Management of the Railroads of the Country.

London, Friday, November 14.—Premier Lloyd-George has offered the railwaymen's union membership in committee management of the roads with railroad directors and government officials, according to a statement by J. H. Thomas, general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen.

PLANNING TO CONVERT TWO FORTS INTO PARKS

Savannah, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—Beating swords into pruning hooks and spears into plowshares will not have anything on Savannah if the mayor, aided by the two senators from Georgia, carry through their plan to convert the two forts which stand between Forsyth park and Park Extension into municipal swimming pools. Senators have heeded the request of the mayor and will endeavor to secure the consent of the war department, for that must be had before the "dummy forts," long attractions to visitors as ornaments of the park area, can be used to install swimming pools. Both senators have pledged their best efforts.

CONTINUANCE URGED OF U. S. HOUSING WORK

Washington, November 13.—Representatives of civic and professional associations urged before the house judiciary committee today the passage of a bill creating a new bureau in the department of labor to carry on part of the war-time work of the United States housing corporation.

Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, said the measure would alleviate economic discontent.

"Homeowners cannot be bolsheviki," he declared.

J. Horace McFarland, president of the American Civic association, said that the government's housing activities during the war had unsettled all previonus standards and conditions, and that it was the government's duty to meet the problems it thus had precipitated.

FRENCH GIRLS TAKING CHINESE FOR HUSBANDS

Paris, November 13.—The increasing number of marriages between French girls and Chinese laborers in France has resulted in the minister of the interior warning French girls that most of the coolies already have wives in China where, upon arrival with their husbands, they would be regarded merely as secondary wives.

FINLAND ADMITTED TO LABOR CONFERENCE

Washington, November 13.—Delegates to the international labor conference voted unanimously today after two days' debate to seat the representatives from Finland. The agreement was a compromise which invites the delegates "to take part in the conference on the same conditions as obtain in the case of other countries which have not adhered to the covenant of the league of nations."

Finnish delegates representing the government, employers and labor of the country, have been here since the conference convened and they are expected to take their seats at the next session on Monday. Their status is identical with that fixed for the American delegates.

The report on seating the delegates from Finland as finally adopted provides that it shall not be accepted as a ruling on the question of the principle involved. The greater part of the debate has been upon the right of the labor conference to determine eligibility of delegations in cases where the governments represented were not members of the league of nations.

Stuart Bunning, labor delegate from Great Britain, sharply criticised his colleague, Sir Malcolm Delavigne, the government delegate, who yesterday had announced that he would appeal to the court if the Finnish delegates were seated. Sir Malcolm Delavigne claimed that it would thwart the purpose of the treaty to bind the labor organizations and the league of nations closely together.

In defense of the admission of Finland to representation, DiPalma Castiglione, of Italy, declared that the linking together of the international labor organization and the league of nations would give a "political character to the labor gathering and the only point that should be considered in admitting members was whether the working classes were capable of forcing legislation from their government."

Austrian delegates to the conference will be unable to attend, the conference was notified today by the Austrian delegation in Paris. The Austrian message requested the government of the United States to transmit to the labor conference its best wishes for final success.

DUTY OF CONGRESS TO REMAIN ON JOB

So Says Congressman Joseph W. Byrns, Who Scores Republicans for Inactivity During Past Six Months.

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, November 13.—"If congress takes a recess it will be at the expense of duty," declared Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, ranking democratic member of the house appropriations committee, today.

"The necessity for congress remaining on the job and attending to the business that is pressing for attention is just as great or greater now than it was last March and April, when republicans were clamoring for President Wilson to convene congress," continued Mr. Byrns. "Not only has congress accomplished very little in the way of legislation, so that it should remain on the job and enact such bills as ought to be passed, but the present disturbed condition of the country, by reason of the industrial unrest, is such that congress ought to not only be willing, but anxious to stay in session, for it is not possible to tell what may arise to demand speedy attention.

"This congress has been in session six months now, but has passed little legislation," said Mr. Byrns. "It passed some amendments to the food control bill, but not without several months of delay and only after such amendments had been urged by the president and Attorney General Palmer.

President Intervened.

"And even then the president had to intervene to prevent congress taking a recess before enacting the needed legislation. And even though the president asked last August that the amendments to the food control bill be passed, so that the government might deal with the high cost of living problem in an effective way and incidentally prosecute those who had been guilty of profiteering, it was late in October before they finally reached the president, and only within the last ten days that congress made available to the department of justice the appropriation needed to go after profiteers and also conduct a campaign against the reds.

"It has only been after considera-tion by committees that has continued over six months that a railroad bill has been reported out. I think congress ought to stay in session, and, if possible, enact the needed railroad legislation before the special session must end in December. If the adjournment the leaders have been trying so hard to reach were ordered according to their plans this legislation couldn't be enacted, because the senate hasn't shown signs of finishing with the peace treaty at a very early date and the railroad bill can't be taken up over there until the treaty is out of the way. And the senate ought to give the railroad bill very deliberate and mature consideration, for it is certainly far too important a matter to be rushed through."

Republican Claims Baseless.

Figures that Mr. Byrns, as ranking minority member of the appropriations committee, have prepared show that the republicans claim of having saved the country money in the annual appropriation bills are baseless. The total appropriations for the current fiscal year approximate $7,250,000. The departmental appropriations, such as army, navy, District of Columbia, Indian, sundry, civil and others, were passed by the present congress almost identically as they passed the house in the last congress, which was democratic, only to be killed by the republican filibuster in the senate.

Mr. Byrns figures show that, as a matter of fact, the republican congress has increased these appropriations by $62,000,000, instead of the $20,000,000 increase shown sixty days ago, so that the extravagance is growing. That is the cost of the senate filibuster of last March to the national treasury.

Some of the alleged savings to which the republican house leaders laid claim were made by cutting down the departmental appropriations and then make up the difference in what is known as a deficiency bill, which has just been passed and which appropriates $150,000,000, not to mention the appropriation of $750,000,000 for the railroad administration, against which republicans protested in the democratic congress, only to make available after they had come into the control of congress.

BANKRUPTCY SUIT FILED BY ALLEGED POSTAL ROBBER

C. Clay Davis, of Manchester, Ga., a merchant, who is alleged by postoffice inspectors to have been implicated in the robbery and dynamiting of the postoffice safe at Tazewell, Ga., has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court through his attorneys, Hewlett & Dennis.

Davis, with Edwards, also charged with the robbery, are now lodged in Fulton county Tower in default of bonds for $2,500 fixed by the United States commission pending the grand jury hearing.

Davis' creditors, following his arrest, it is declared, levied on the property of his store, and upon application of his Atlanta creditors, J. Monroe Bentley, of Atlanta, was appointed receiver by Judge W. T. Newman.

The two men were arrested on November 2, and it is alleged that property taken from the postoffice safe was found in the automobile in which they were riding.

160 BARRELS OF SUGAR SEIZED BY U. S. AGENTS

Part of Supply Was Destined for Moonshiners, Charges Government.

Sugar to the amount of 160 barrels, held in storage in the Loudermilk company's warehouse at Gainesville, Ga., and owned by E. McClure, a merchant of Dawsonville, Ga., was ordered seized Thursday afternoon by the United States district attorney. Libel proceedings were begun following the investigation that was conducted at Gainesville Wednesday by Chief Revenue Agent D. J. Gantt.

In a letter to the district attorney, Mr. Gantt charges that large amounts of sugar have been shipped to Gainesville for McClure. He also charges that a great deal of the sugar was ultimately to be used in the illicit manufacture of liquor.

It is said that two carloads of sugar were shipped to Gainesville for Dawsonville use on October 30 and November 7. It is declared that the sugar was shipped from Atlanta by the Sam H. Salzman company.

Revenue agents claim that Dawson, Lumpkin and Cherokee counties are centers of moonshining activities. During the month of October 108 stills were destroyed by revenue agents, despite the fact that many of the officers were acting as witnesses in the October term of federal court.

In the report on the Gainesville situation the revenue agent said:

"Moonshiners are one of the principal causes of the sugar shortage. Since July 1, nine carloads of empty kegs have been shipped to Gainesville, which would be about 3,000 to 3,500 kegs. In addition to that, more than 1,000 kegs of molasses have been received at Gainesville and during July alone almost 100,000 pounds of sugar were received there. I secured these figures from an examination of the railroad company's records. There can hardly be any other explanation for this than that the moonshiners are purchasing a big share of it for use in making illicit liquor."

It is likely that the federal grand jury will investigate the case, and if it is learned that McClure was hoarding sugar, the probability is that special charges will be preferred against him.

AMERICUS IS STIRRED BY BARBAROUS CRIME

Three Held When Woman's Mangled Body Dragged From Well.

Americus, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—Sam G. Duckworth and Mrs. Sallie Duckworth, his mother, are held in Sumter county jail here charged with the murder of Mrs. Pearl Duckworth, whose mutilated body was found in a well near the Duckworth home, seven and a half miles southeast of Americus, at an early hour this morning.

Duckworth was arrested by Deputy Sheriffs Tom Summers and R. E. Price at the home of Joe Howell, a brother-in-law of the prisoner, who lives four and a half miles from Lilly, in Dooly county. According to these officers Duckworth denies any connection with the death of his wife, and when taken expressed surprise that she was dead. Being asked if he wished to see the mutilated body he replied that he did; then wept copiously and afterwards avoided the subject altogether.

Mrs. Sallie Duckworth, who was arrested at the Duckworth home, caused the discovery of the body when she went to the home of Lizzie Ware, a negro woman who lives near by, and asked her to come and sit with her, saying she was afraid to be alone. When the negress asked "Where is Miss Pearl?" as the dead woman was known, Mrs. Duckworth replied, "I heard the well chain rattle, and I expect she's in there."

Alarms Negress.

This frightened the negress, who sent her young son to the home of Green Perry, a prominent farmer living near by, asking him to come and investigate. The body of Mrs. Pearl Duckworth, her throat cut from ear to ear, was soon brought up from the depths of the well and afterward a blood-stained knife, said to belong to Sam Duckworth, was found near by.

The well curbing was covered with blood and the ground there bore evidence of a terrific struggle. Inside the Duckworth home the officers who were sent for found a copper worm belonging to a still, which was located in a cotton field some distance from the house, and this still, and the sale of the liquor made there, it is believed, caused the tragedy. When examined the body of the dead woman was found to have several sums of money tied in various parts of her clothing, the corpse being bruised in many places.

The throat wound was one of the most ghastly ever seen by either Sheriff Harvey or Deputy Summers, both of whom stated the woman's head had been almost severed from her body, not a drop of blood remaining in the corpse. A small son of the couple was present during the dragging of the well and saw his mother's body brought up, tied to the well chain.

Boy Knew Nothing.

He was interrogated by the officers, but apparently knew nothing of the cause of his mother's death. Sidney Ware, husband of the negress, who first summoned neighbors to investigate, visited Americus yesterday with Sam Duckworth, and he is being held as a material witness in the case. Duckworth was here at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when he visited the office of Dr. John F. McMath, securing some medicine for himself and saying he was going then to the home of his brother-in-law in Dooly county and that his relative there was very ill.

Officers who arrested Duckworth at the home say there was no evidence of any one there having been ill, and they believe the murder was committed early Wednesday afternoon, following which Duckworth came to Americus and began laying the groundwork of an alibi, which will undoubtedly be his defense when brought to trial for the murder of his wife.

The seriousness of the brutal crime has stirred Sumter county more than any similar happening here in years.

Girls Sent to Prison Farm.

Four young girls who have been held in the medical ward of the city stockade were ordered transferred to the state prison at Milledgeville Thursday by Judge Andy Calhoun in the city criminal court after they had smashed several windows in the stockade and had done other damage. The girls, who gave their names as Myrtle Keyes, Gussie Lewis, Corinne Miller and Thelma Thomas, were arraigned on the charge of malicious mischief. They were sentenced to serve six months each on the prison farm.

DEBATE ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS WILL BE HELD TUESDAY

An interesting joint debate will be held at Egleston hall next Tuesday night between Thomas W. Hardwick, and Hooper Alexander, United States district attorney, on the subject of "The League of Nations."

The debate is being held under the auspices of the Kilpatrick Literary and Law society of the Atlanta Law School, and the interest is high because the district attorney is a strong supporter of the league, and the former senator from Georgia is strongly opposed to this international agreement.

All those desiring admission must be at the Egleston hall before 7:30 o'clock, as the doors will be opened at 7:15 and closed promptly at 7:30 o'clock. Miss Kate Lovett, whose office is in the Fulton county courthouse, is in charge of the cards of admission, which are free, but necessary to secure admittance.

How to Use Prepay Telephones Properly

When you use a prepay public telephone in the downtown district and for any reason the connection is not completed, the operator returns your money through the slot at the lower left hand corner of the telephone.

The accompanying illustration shows a prepay telephone station. The slot at the upper right hand corner marked "A" is where you deposit a 5c coin to signal operator. The 10c and 25c slots are only to be used in payment of long distance calls and the proper amount of money is to be deposited in such slots only when request to do so is made by the operator.

Prepay public telephone. "A," slot for deposit of coin to signal operator. "B," where coin is returned when connection is not completed.

The receptacle at the lower left hand corner marked "B" is where the coin is returned when the connection is not established.

Very often subscribers fail to take their coin after it is returned by the operator and form the impression that their money has been collected for a service not rendered.

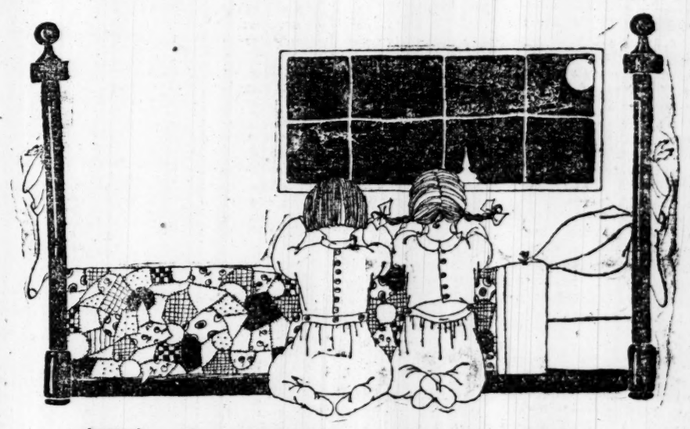

Those who use prepay public telephones are requested to read the printed instructions on these stations and to take their money from the receptacle marked "B" when the operator returns it.

There is another type of public telephone used in the outlying sections of the city which does not require the coin to be deposited until told to do so by the operator.

A careful observance of the instructions on all public telephones will prevent confusion and result in improved service.

EXPORT CORPORATION OFFICIALS MEET HERE

Foreign Representatives Appointed—Will Select Headquarters in Atlanta.

Plans for the immediate inauguration of Atlanta's newest enterprise were laid Thursday at the meeting of the directors of the South Atlantic Export corporation, recently organized and to have headquarters in Atlanta. The organization consists of leading business men of the southeast and was organized at Columbia, S. C.

Quarters for the organization have not yet been selected, but the preliminary meeting was held in the offices of Hollins N. Randolph, vice president of the corporation for Georgia, and general council of the concern.

Matthew Hale, of Boston, is president of the company, and is also president of the South Atlantic Maritime corporation, with which the new concern is closely affiliated. His duties in connection with the concern will necessitate his taking up residence in Atlanta.

Foreign Representatives.

Others present at the executive session were J. A. von Dohlen, secretary; E. P. Wharton, of the Greensboro Natoinal bank, vice president; Charles Barron, prominent attorney of Columbia, vice president for South Carolina; George H. Baldwin, of Jacksonville, vice president for Florida; W. W. Gordon, of Savannah, holding the proxy of S. K. Brown, of Brunswick, as member of the executive committee.

Among others present at the executive committee meeting were John M. Keith, of Costa Rica, and H. B. Crawford, of Columbus, Ga., formerly of the Brazilian railways. The executive committee retained the services of Mr. Crawford to act as vice president in charge of the domestic end of the business, and made temporary arrangements with Mr. Keith covering the export end of the business in the island trade, Central and South America particularly.

Mr. Keith has been a resident of Latin-America for some twenty-five years and is said to be one of the best posted Americans in that whole country on the manner and customs of the people and their methods of conducting business. For many years he was in charge of the United Fruit company's interests in Central America and later was connected with the Hamburg-American line. He enjoys a very wide acquaintance among the leading business men throughout the United States, particularly in the east. Mr. Crawford likewise is widely known and thoroughly experienced along the lines of business which the company proposes to conduct.

To Pick Headquarters.

It is thought that before the members of the executive committee have adjourned their session here, a location for their headquarters will be chosen. The difficulty of this problem is enhanced by the scarcity of business offices in Atlanta, and this fact may delay the beginning of actual work. Officials state, however, that every possible means of expediting the establishment of offices will be utilized.

The South Atlantic Maritime corporation, with which the South Atlantic Export company is closely connected, is already doing a flourishing business in its operation of a fleet of ships to Cuba and Central and South America.

The success of the maritime corporation is, in reality, responsible for the formation of the export company, which has a capital stock of one million dollars. The charter of the company is under the laws of the state of Delaware, and the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, and Florida have already subscribed and paid in the amount of stock allotted to them. It is thought that the remaining $25,000 to be subscribed in Atlanta will be raised within the next few days.

COAL CONFERENCE IN SESSION TODAY

o'clock instead of at 11 o'clock, the department of labor announced tonight, owing to the fact that John L. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers of America, and other participants will not arrive until after noon. On account of the storm in northwestern states, a number of mine officials and operators are not expected to arrive before Saturday or perhaps later.

As to Open Conference.

The first question to come before the conferees will be whether the proceedings shall be open. Secretary Wilson said today that he would recommend that newspaper representatives be admitted to the conference hall.

In keeping with his recent announcement that operators as well as miners attempting to restrict the output of coal would be prosecuted, Attorney General Palmer today sought further information about companies at Birmingham, Ala., which the miners claim have discharged and turned back men who were returning to work in compliance with the court order of Judge Anderson.

The attorney general's request for information was sent after he received a telegram from George Hargrove, international representative of the United Mine Workers of America at Birmingham, who declared that the companies were not permitting the men to dig the coal the country required. Mr. Palmer, replying, said he would "take prompt action against any operator who adopts such methods to restrict production."

The executive committee of the coal operators in the central competitive field, in their statement tonight, declared that operators "are desirous of negotiating a fair wage agreement at the earliest moment, but so far have been prevented from doing so because the miners' demands have been complicated with impossible collateral questions."

Expressing their belief that every employee should receive as generous a wage "as the public interest will allow," the operators said that they would "go to tomorrow's meeting with that policy in mind."

Lever Law and Labor.

Attorney General Palmer today advised Senator Thomas, democrat, Colorado, that search of the department of justice files had disclosed "no opinion or commitment pledging the department not to use the Lever food and fuel act against labor unions, as asserted in the recent statement of the American Federation of Labor pledging organized labor's entire support to the coal strike."

In view of Mr. Palmer's statement, Senator Thomas withdrew his resolution calling on the department of justice for a statement regarding its policy in enforcing the Lever act.

MINERS DEMAND THAT GOVERNMENT ACT IN GOOD FAITH

Indianapolis, Ind., November 13.—The coal miners of the United States expect a "demonstration of good faith on the part of the government during the negotiations at Washington," declared John L. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers of America, shortly before boarding a train this evening for Washington to participate tomorrow in the conference between mine operators and miners at the invitation of Secretary of Labor Wilson.

"The miners are not defeated; they have merely acquiesced in the mandate of their government," Mr. Lewis said. "They shall now expect a demonstration of good faith on the part of the government during the negotiations at Washington. Only by a proper consideration of the mine workers' demands for increased wages, shorter hours and improved working conditions can peace and tranquility be restored in the mining industry."

Without Precedent.

The situation in the coal fields of the country, it was said at the headquarters today, is without precedent in the mining industry. The strike of November 1 was the first general bituminous strike in the history of the United Miners' organization. There have been many local and some district strikes, but never before had all the union bituminous coal miners been called upon to cease work.

While in the past, completion of new working agreements between the operators and miners had been delayed until the expiration of the contract under which the miners had been working, it was pointed out that negotiations had never been entirely broken off as in the present controversy. As long as there had been negotiations in progress and the hope of an agreement in sight, it was said, the miners had not quit the shafts. This year, the mine workers contend, the strike was made necessary by the refusal of the operators to negotiate.

Headquarters of the union were practically deserted here this afternoon, as most of the officials were on their way to Washington to participate in the negotiations.

Appeal Is Delayed.

Pending developments at the Washington conference attorneys for the miners announced here last night the appeal from the ruling of the federal court in the injunction proceedings instituted by the government, will be held up.

The situation in the Indiana coal fields was little different today from that during the strike. In all parts of the coal district the miners apparently were awaiting the results of the Washington conference before deciding to return to the mines.

MEN NOT RUSHING "BACK TO MINES;" TROUBLE IS FEARED

Springfield, Ill., November 13.—Added signs of the determination of mine workers to ignore the order of miners' officials to return tto work and symptoms said to indicate that insurgent forces in the state again were active, constituted the developments in the soft-coal miners' strike in the Illinois district today.

Meager reports reaching mine workers' headquarters stated that the ranks of the strikers remained unbroken.

Miners in the Springfield subdistrict said there would be no resumption of coal hoisting until the joint scale conference, meeting tomorrow in Washington, had formulated an agreement. This, they declared, constituted the position of the Illinois membership.

Strike leaders manifested no concern over the attitude of hostility assumed today by President Freeman Thompson and Secretary-Treasurer John Watt, subdistrict officials, who attacked the stand of Federal Judge A. B. Anderson in ordering that the strike be ended and defied miners' officials to compel the rank and file to go back to work.

Both Thompson and Watt were recognized as leaders in the insurgency movement against Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois district, and associates last summer.

Operators here today appeared to feel that production of coal in Illinois must wait on the outcome of the Washington wage scale deliberations.

Miners and operators were without further details of the reported desertion of mines at Duquoin and Benton by miners permitted to remain at work in order to take care of engines, mules, pumps and other company property.

Duquoin, Ill., November 13.—Complying with an order issued by local union miners, following a mass meeting here of members of the United Mine Workers, all hoisting engineers, firemen, pump men, mule feeders and other union men who have been permitted to keep the mines in the Twelfth district in working order, left their posts last night.

Springfield, Ill., November 13.—Information received here by operators this morning said union men left in two mines at Benton to care for company property, under the terms of the strike order, had deserted their posts today, following similar action at Duquoin. The walkout was said to be a protest against obedience of international officials to the federal court mandate to call off the strike.

TROUBLE FEARED IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Charleston, W. Va., November 13.—Despite the assurance of officials of the United Mine Workers that they have the situation in control, coal operators and state officials here tonight expressed uneasiness over reports received from the coal fields in the northern counties of the state to the effect that radicals threatened trouble.

Since the recall of the strike order, reports have been current that radicals and I. W. W. agitators have been largely responsible for the reluctance of the miners to return to work, especially in the northern districts.

While C. F. Keeney, president of District No. 17, United Mine Workers, tonight claimed that about "fifty per cent" of the miners in the state were working, coal operators said "not more than 30 per cent of the men had reported at the mines today. Mr. Keeney expressed the opinion that many more men would return to work tomorrow and by Monday "every man would be back in the mines."

In the meantime, reports from the northern part of the state, received at the governor's office indicated that radicals were active in Marion, Taylor and Monongahela counties to prevent miners from returning to work. The presence of several "radical agitators" was also reported in the southern mining fields but the presence of federal troops had prevented "any open demonstrations."

Governor John J. Cornwell sent a telegram to Attorney General Palmer stating that reports from the local authorities in the northern section of the state showed that "alien radicals" were active among the miners. He said that the Industrial Workers of the World had established headquarters at Grant Town, Marion county, and Wendt, Taylor county.

The governor expressed the belief that "if a half dozen of these aliens can be arrested and immediately and promptly deported" the situation would be "smothered." The attorney general was asked by the governor to take some action, and was assured in the meantime that "the state authorities will deal with any attempt at violence."

Governor Cornwell said that federal troops in the state would not be used at this time, but should developments warrant it he will ask for their aid.

"Thus far the situation appears to be one that can be handled best by federal authorities," the governor added, but asserted the state would cooperate.

He said that he was informed that Taylor, Monongahela and Marion counties were "the hot beds" of the radicals, and that reports showed the majority of the "trouble-makers" were Russians and Austrians.

Washington, November 13.—Activities of radicals th.eaten serious rtouble in the bituminous coal mine fields of West Virginia, according to reports received today by the department of justice.

The situation in Monongahela and Taylor counties was described by department of justice officials as "particularly nasty." Meetings directed and attended largely by Russians, have precipitated some violence among the coal miners, the reports said.

Few details were contained in the department's messages.

The reports indicated work of the Russians was directed at intimidating miners who sought to return to work following the withdrawal of the coal strike order.

MEN BEING BARRED AT ALABAMA MINES.

Birmingham, Ala., November 13.—Officials of the Alabama miners' union today made formal complaint that many of their number were not being taken back at the mines when they reported for work.

George Hargrove, international representative of the union, this afternoon sent the following telegram to Attorney General Palmer:

"In compliance with the order of Judge Anderson, the miners of Alabama returned to work today. Hundreds of them were discharged and sent back from the mines by the companies. The public wants coal; the miners are not permitted to dig it. I ask you what is the department of justice going to do about it."

The complaints of miners, according to reports at headquarters here, take various forms. When the men returned at one mine they were told that the mine foreman was ill today, and could not see them. At others it was stated to them that their places had been filled and that their services would not be needed. Still others stated that a physical examination would be required before they could return to work, and blanks were issued to them to be filled out.

Production Figures.

Official figures compiled today showed the coal production of the Alabama district last week to have been 113,000 tons. This is compared to an average weekly production for the present year of 200,000 tons. The operators contended all during the strike that their production was above 50 per cent of normal.

Attention of leading coal operators was called tonight to the telegram of Attorney General Palmer to George Hargrove, in which he stated that prompt action would be taken against any operators who restricted coal production by refusal to take back union men. They contend that the great majority of the union miners of the district have refused to return to work under instructions of their own leaders. H. L. Badham, vice president of the coal operators, stated that in the Bloceton field especially none of the men had returned to work.

"I wired the attorney general today," said Mr. Badham, "in response to an inquiry on the subject from him that the great bulk of the union miners of the district had refused to return to work, especially in the Bloceton field, with which I am most familiar."

Palmer Warns Operators.

Washington, November 13.—Any coal operators who adopt methods to restrict production will lay themselves liable to action by the federal government. This statement was made tonight by Attorney General Palmer in a telegram replying to a message from George Hargrove, international representative of the United Mine Workers of America in Alabama, who charged that Alabama operators had refused to permit miners in that district to return to work.

The attorney general's telegram to Hargrove follows:

"Your telegram thirteenth received. Please wire me immediately names of companies and officials thereof who have discharged or turned back miners who returned to work in compliance with the court order. I shall take prompt action against any operators who adopt such methods to restrict production."

MEN WORK IN SPOTS IN TENN.-KY. DISTRICT.

Knoxville, Tenn., November 13.—The operators of the Tennesse-Kentucky coal fields have decided it will be unnecessary for them to send representatives to the miners-operators' conference called for Friday by Secretary of Labor Wilson. The scale committee of the union miners of district No. 19 accepted the invitation and left today for the capital.

The decision of the Appalachian operators was taken at a meeting held today after which the following statement was given out for publication: "No demands have been made on the operators of this field at any time. The strike in this field was a sympathetic strike; it has been called off, and the operators are ready to resume work. Therefore, there is no occasion for the operators in this field to attend the Washington conference."

Conflicting claims were made late today as to the number of miners who had returned to work following the cancellation of the strike order in district No. 19, involving 19,000 men employed in 200 mines. Union officials stated that from 60 to 70 per cent of the miners were at work and that the remainder would be on the job by Monday, many being in isolated districts and not having received the order rescinding the strike.

On the other hand the operators reported about 20 per cent of the men at work producing from 20 to 25 per cent of the normal tonnage. Hope was expressed, however, that larger numbers of the men would be back on the job Friday and that something approaching normal production would be had Monday. The men were reported to be working in "spots." All except one small mine on the Tennessee Central railroad west of Harriman were reported in operation, but not with a full force. A number of the small mines on the Q. & C., north of Oakdale, were running, but with abbreviated crews.

There is a spirit of uneasiness over the situation and one operator remarked that it had resolved itself into a "nasty mess" and fears are openly expressed that the strike is not over as far as this region is concerned.

Union leaders, however, are hopeful and expressed the belief that even if the operators do not attend thhe Washington conference they will be able to make a settlement.

MEN NOT WORKING IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Pittsburg, November 13.—Coal operators of the Pittsburg district and the central and western Pennsylvania fields reported today that union miners of this area have displayed no inclination to return to work, despite the recall of the strike order by the United Mine Workers' executives.

Reports indicated that the miners were standing firm and would not go back to work until notified by a district officer of the union in person that the strike had ended.

FEW MEN RETURN IN OHIO FIELDS.

Columbus, Ohio, November 13.—Although practically all locals of the United Mine Workers had received official notice of the recall of the nation-wide strike order, few of the forty thousand union miners in Ohio returned to work today, according to operators and headquarters of the workers here.

WORK IS RESUMED AT DURHAM MINES.

Chattanooga, Tenn., November 13. The miners of the Durham Iron and Coal company at Soddy, Tenn., and Durham, Ga., resumed work late yesterday afternoon in ten minutes after the recall order was received Montlake mines resumed this morning, but those at Tracy City and Sewanee are still closed.

COAL MINES TAKEN BY NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck, N. D., November 13.—The state of North Dakota expects to have the thirty union coal mines in the state under its control and in operation tomorrow, it was announced tonight. Troops were dispatched by Adjutant General Fraser to local coal fields today to take over the mines as requested by Governor Frazier.

The Washburn Lignite company's mines at Wilton were surrendered to the state today under protest to Captain L. R. Baird, of the state militarq. Three hundred union miners were ready to resume work today, but transportation facilities were lacking.

In handing over the property President W. P. Macomber reserved the right to seek restoration and reparation in the courts. In a statement tonight he said he believed the governor's "proclamation of martial law in and about the properties of the Washburn Lignite Coal company at Wilton is wholly without authority of law and without precedent in any state in the union."

MEXICO BUYS ARMS FROM FOREIGN FIRMS

Urged to Fill Orders.

The orders and shipments of munitions are the subjects commanding attention at present, and it is known that as late as July tests were being made in Mexico, the munitions were reported as giving perfect results and the Spanish manufacturers were being urged to fill orders to the limit of their capacity. At one time, it appears, the Mexican government was attempting to make up its estimates of the possibilities of production in Spain by prosecuting inquiries through the Spanish war office.

In that connection, recent Mexican activities in Spain are receiving attention and considerable matter characterized as Mexican propaganda is being observed in the Spanish press. The important part taken by Mexicans in the Spanish celebration of the discovery of America last month also has been reported.

Meanwhile, the activities of a German mission in Mexico are being closely observed. Attempts by the Mexican government at confiscation of mines and oil wells, with an announced view to their nationalization, are being closely examined in comparison with Germany's need for these products.

CARRANZA ASKED TO EXPEL JENKINS.

Washington, November 13.—President Carranza has been petitioned by a small group of Puebla citizens to expel William O. Jenkins, the American consular agent at Puebla, who recently was kidnaped and held by Mexican rebels, advices from Mexico City today said. The request is made under Article 33 of the constitution, which permits the president to send out of the country any foreigner he chooses without court proceedings.

Carranza is asked in the petition to request the United States government to withdraw the consular commission from Jenkins, or to cancel his exequatur before expelling him, the advices assert.

No attention is being paid to the petition either by officials in Mexico or in Washington, it was said today by a state department offcial, as it is regarded as the act of a small group of radicals who seek to provoke trouble between the two countries.

LONDON PAPER IS SUED BY CABINET MEMBERS

London, November 13.—Four members of the cabinet, Austen Chamberlin, Sir Eric Geddes, Sir Auckland Geddes and Walter Hume Long, took the witness stand in the lord chief justice's court today and publicly denied statements printed in The Daily News, with reference to their holding shares in various public companies, in consequence of which they brought libel suits against the newspaper.

After their testimony the announcement was made that the suits had been settled on terms arranged outside the court. The proprietors of The Daily News agreed to pay to each of the plaintiffs 250 guineas and also the costs.

Writs were issued on July 30, against The London Daily News, on behalf of the cabinet members, for alleged libel. The specifications concerned comments on charges that the complainants possessed shares in various Russian mining and development companies.

A BACTERIOLOGIST GIVES UP AND SAID NU-VIM THE BEST KIND OF MEDICINE

Mr. H. W. Bloom, of 5830 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa., well known over the country as a bacteriologist, said: "I had been overworking and studying so hard the past year, I overtaxed my strength until I became almost a physical wreck, run down and very nervous, so much so I could not sleep; I had no appetite and I knew I either had to have a vacation or a tonic to buoy up my spirit. At this time Nu-Vim was brought to my attention through the paper and I was attracted to an advertisement of a person who was nervous as I was and Nu-Vim had done him so much good, I decided I would try it, and when I called for the package I was much pleased with the appearance and neatness of same, and I purchased the bottle and am glad to say the benefit I derived from the use of one bottle was a great revelation to me. I am feeling awfully good, I have had more real 'pep' in me for my work than I have had for months, and the one bottle made me feel as if I had had two weeks' vacation. I am still taking it and will recommend it to others." It is worth while for sick people to take notice of this statement, save doctor bills and time by taking this marvelous medicine, will tone you up and make life worth living. If you can't get it at your druggist send $1.04 to the Nu-Vim Drug Co., Columbus, Ohio, and they will send you one large bottle prepaid anywhere.

LABOR PARTY PLANS FOR ITS CONVENTION

Chicago, November 13.—Active preparations were begun today to accommodate delegates to the national convention of the labor party which has been called to meet here November 22, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for president of the United States. John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, said, under the call yesterday, 2,000 delegates are expected to attend the convention, and that they would be representatives of the Non-Partisan league, farmers' organizations, granger societies and state and local unions.

The platform, outlined when the party was organized here last year, would embody principles demanding restoration of all civil liberties; public ownership and management of transportation, communication, mines, finance and "other monopolies and natural resources," and abolition of excessive land ownerships and holding land for speculative purposes.

TURN OFF THE GAS!

Several years ago a movement was set on foot in the United States senate to provide means whereby long-winded and leather-lunged spouters could be choked off whenever it became apparent, by their taking the floor and holding it, they intended to defeat legislation by prevent.. a vote on the issue under consideration.

The reform was measurably successful so far as it went, the adoption of the cloture rule growing out of it; but ever since that time there has been about as much difficulty in invoking the cloture rule as originally was experienced in procuring its adoption. It has never been invoked, for in every instance of an attempt to apply it the proposal has been voted down by the senatorial windbags.

If there ever was a time when the welfare of the country demanded the application of this rule it is now, when it is daily becoming more and more apparent that the Wilson haters in the senate intend to wear out the senate and the country with long-winded speeches and to prevent a vote on the peace treaty ratification by that method.

Fearful of the result of a vote upon the measure that means so much to the country and to the world and hell-bent in their determination that the document shall not be ratified, the little group of recalcitrants seem to have laid their plans to stave off a vote indefinitely.

On Wednesday Reed, for example, consumed the whole day's session with a time-killing speech that neither enlightened nor entertained the few of his colleagues who remained to listen to him, and which he continued into the following day; while La Follette, Gore and others of the "little group" waited, ready to relieve the Missouri acid-thrower whenever he might run out of gas and be compelled to stop. Thus they hope to talk the treaty to death.

And now the Georgia senior senator, Mr. Smith, seems to have joined the bunch of Wilson haters.

This thing has run on to a point that brings into question the patriotism of those engaging in and contributing to this delay.

The country is surfeited with talk about the treaty. What it wants and demands is definite action—one way or another!

The senate should vote on the treaty. Ratify it if possible—as a vast majority of the people desire—but if that cannot be done, kill it out and out.

The country and the world would at least know, in that event, what to expect.

Anything is to be preferred to the present condition of uncertainty and suspense!

E. T. LAMB.

It has been a long time since the death of any southern man has elicited so widespread sympathy as that of E. T. Lamb, whose funeral has just taken place at his old home in Norfolk.

Only a short while ago Mr. Lamb left Atlanta apparently in perfect health, and was stricken with paralysis the next day while on a business trip to Birmingham.

From every part of the country anxious inquiries were received about his condition, and first reports indicated that he had a chance to recover; but hope soon faded, for a second stroke followed the first, with fatal results.

No man who ever came to Atlanta made more friends in less time than Mr. Lamb. He first came here from Norfolk to take charge of the A., B. & A. railroad system, was later made receiver of that property, and when the railroads went under government control he became the federal manager of that system and of the Georgia, the Atlanta and West Point, and the Western of Alabama railroads, operating all these properties with the marked ability that had for many years characterized his work as a railroad manager.

He had the happy faculty of making and holding friends, and a beautiful tribute was paid his memory when a throng of those who had been close to him assembled to meet his remains as they passed through Atlanta. They brought floral offerings to his bier and every one of them stood uncovered as the train carrying the body of their departed friend moved on to his old home.

At the hour of the funeral every train on the railroad systems formerly under his direction stood still for five minutes, hundreds of the men who had worked under him and who held him in loving esteem uniting in silent tribute to his memory.

Men of the type of Mr. Lamb make the world distinctly better for their having lived in it.

In many respects he had the heart of a woman, was as gentle as a child, and yet whenever it was necessary to manifest firmness and to back his conviction with the exercise of courage and determination he was as brave as a lion.

He was a man of intense loyalty to his friends and to his conviction of duty. He always put the best there was in him in the discharge of every obligation.

He was successful because his ability was backed by tireless energy. If he had rested more he probably would be alive today, but he considered neither physical nor mental overexertion in the pursuit of his business routine.

He was a type of the restless American business man who does not know when to stop work, who disregards the danger signal thrown out by Nature, and who always conservative and prudent in attending to the business of other people and entrusted to his care, toys with his own health, and whose very recklessness with him self brings him with a crash to the grave.

So, while a serious lesson is taught in this respect in the death of Mr. Lamb, there is a far greater one to be learned in the dominant feature of his character—that of loyalty to trust and of devotion to duty.

Atlanta will miss this wonderful man!

THE LEGION'S WORK.

The first national convention of the American legion was an epoch making event. The representative attending were from every state in the union, and they were chosen from every walk of life. There were bankers, lawyers, merchants, carpenters and masons who had formerly been colonels, captains, sergeants and privates. But the distinction of rank, so necessary to the preservation of discipline in a well-organized army, had been swept aside and in its place was substituted the recognition of meritorious service in whatever capacity.

During the meeting a broad variety of subjects, including the Centralia, Washington, tragedy, industrial unrest, the National Non-partisan league and the bonus issue plan for ex-soldiers, sailors and marines were discussed. Reading between the lines of the news dispatches from Minneapolis, it was apparent that any effort to inject politics into the proceedings of the convention was promptly discountenanced.

Delegates from the northwestern states drew up a resolution assailing the activities of President A. C. Townley, of the Non-partisan league, but it was tabled.

The action of the convention in refusing to consider political issues is to be commended, and it is to be hoped that future conventions of the legion will be bound by the example.

The noblest purpose towards which the energies and organization of the legion can be directed is toward the formulation and effecting of policies that will protect and preserve those things for which these men fought so valiantly. No group of people in this country is entitled to a more respectful or a more attentive hearing than the representatives of these men.

Theirs was the duty of defending the flag of our country in the turmoil of war; theirs is the prerogative of protecting its principles in the present uncertainties of peace.

To them was given the support of every nerve and sinew of an appreciative people when they were waging the fight of righteousness on the far-flung battlefields of France; to them should be tendered the co-operation of every interest to assis in the solution of the enormous problems of construction with which the country is now confronted.

Shortly after the adjournment of the convention Franklin D'Olier, the first national commander, issued a statement fairly indicative of the ideals and purposes of the legion.

Commander D'Olier stated:

"The American legion has an enormous amount of constructive work before it in the coming year, but the spirit of clear thinking, fair play and co-operation manifested so wonderfully throughout this convention leaves no doubt in my mind that we shall be able to accomplish during the coming year just as remarkable results for our country as we did in such a comparatively short time in effecting the utter defeat of the enemy.

"Every action of the convention was discussed carefully and in every instance the soundest possible judgment prevailed. There was only one thought of every delegate present, and that was to do what was best for this country of ours, for which only so recently we were willing to give our all."

"There was only one thought of every delegate present, and that was to do what was best for this country of ours."

A simply stated phrase, but one fully expressive of the real spirit of Americanism. It is a statement which cannot be assailed by skeptic or scoffer.

These men solved our war-time problem with dispatch and efficiency. They can now render invaluable service in helping to splice the frayed ends of industry and to weave a fabric so strong, smooth and durable that the spirit of fair play and clear thinking can never more be endangered by anarchistic venom or the insidious vagaries of bolshevism.

E. T. Lamb

(From The Norfolk (Va.) Ledger-Dispatch.)

It was a remarkable group of men that arose from that period of reconstruction, in which in travail of soul, but with unfaltering courage, Virginia sought to build anew a civilization upon the ruins of what had been.

With this extraordinary period the youth of Edwin Travis Lamb was coincident. Born in the third year of the civil war, his youth and early manhood were spent in those troubled times—times when Virginians came fully to realize the sweetness and the graces and the refinements of life must wait on the necessity of instant and unswerving application; that no work, however humble, was beneath them; and that the only thing disgraceful was idleness. A stern school and a hard one; and yet in reflecting upon such a life as that of Mr. Lamb, we not only give thanks for it, but allow ourselves to wish that something of the same spirit might animate us now.

During the latter part of his career with the Southern railway he held three distinct positions, any one of which would have occupied a man of lesser force, and in addition he managed to take part, and usually a most prominent part—for the man was born to lead—in practically every movement for the benefit of the city that was originated. The receivership of the Jamestown exposition was but one of many outside interests to which he gave his attention; and he never gave it without making some distinct contribution—either a helpful suggestion or prompt and effective action.

Of course, it was impossible for such a man to stand still. His intellectual growth never ceased, and promotion was inevitable. And as he went steadily upward in his chosen field, in every case he was found equal to the new task, and threw himself into it "for the joy of working." When the end came, he was highly placed—and probably doing the hardest work of his career. To his friends, who knew the man, it is a comfort to feel that if the end had to come it found him going at top speed. The one thing at which he could never have succeeded was inactivity.

One might have supposed that in a life so filled with material things there was little place for sentiment. There could be no greater mistake. This is not the place in which to dilate on the beauty of his family ties, so well known to his intimates; but it is perhaps permissible to say that not even his extraordinary devotion to his work ever dislodged his family and his friends from their position of primacy.

We in Norfolk who cared for him feel a peculiar sense of grief, but the loss is not ours alone; it is the loss of Virginia, of the south, indeed, of the country.

Men and Business

By RICHARD SPILLANE

Henry F. Doherty certainly has sprung a surprise on Toledo. For a city to awaken in the morning and learn that every street car had disappeared not only from the city, but from the state, certainly is shocking, especially when many of the citizens live far from their work or place of business and are forced to use shanks mare—instead of the trolley they were accustomed to hop aboard and cuss whenever they were bilious or inclined that way.

There has been a row on in Toledo for a long time over the five-cent fare question. Mr. Doherty, who controls the local trolley company and the light and power company and a lot of other things, had put a six-cent fare and two-cent transfer rate in force. A vigorous element of the population insisted on a flat five-cent fare. Proceedings were instituted, to oust the company from the city. This probably was intended more as a threat than an earnest purpose. Whatever the intention, Mr. Doherty beat his opponents to it by going to Toledo, shipping every car out of the state and letting the people walk.

Toledo has a big industrial population. The labor organizations have been prominent in the anti-traction agitation. Many of the workers live two, three, four or more miles from the factories. Some employers put on a bus service to help out. Some, who sympathize with the traction company, did not. Possibly they meant to make the laborers walk or pay whatever automobile or bus people charged them. Usually the jitney gentlemen become the profiteers when an emergency gives the chance to them.

It is characteristic of Henry L. Doherty that he went to Toledo and superintended the job of having his trolley equipment "skip by the light of the moon."

Doherty is one of the most remarkable men in America. He is 49 years old and has been a hustler for thirty-seven years. He is a graduate of the College of Hard Knocks. He was only 12 when he started to earn a living. He is a native of Ohio and his first job was as an office boy. What education he has he obtained on the jump. He never went to college or university. Today he is a big banker in Wall street and controls eighty-four gas, electric light, heat, power and water companies, twenty-eight oil-producing and refining corporations, and his properties are in twenty-five of the forty-eight states of the United States and some in the Dominion of Canada. The Cities Service company, of which he is the head, is the holding concern for these corporations. It has a capitalization of $200,000,000 and its shares are dealt in not only in New York but Cincinnati, Columbus, Detroit, Indianapolis, Louisville, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Toledo, London, Belfast, Amsterdam and other American and foreign cities.

Doherty is an inventor and a student in addition to being a banker and the administrative head of more than a hundred corporations. He is recognized as an engineer, as a chemist, as a man who has rare knowledge in the field of ventilation, mechanics, political science and various other lines. He is quick in his judgment and can grasp the essentials and eliminate the unessentials in any proposition put before him so rapidly as to make a person think he knew all the facts before they were presented to him for decision.

His office is in the big skyscraper at 60 Wall street, New York. While he does a tremendous amount of work, he never seems rushed.

But he never wastes time. He is a miser when it comes to minutes. A few years ago he determined he was wasting valuable time traveling between his office and his home morning and evening, so he engaged the top floor of a dwelling house in Broad street, at Bridge, had it made over to suit him and moved in.

He was within five minutes' walk of his office. He saved an hour a day.

There he lives now—the only millionaire, perhaps, in all New York who lives in the Wall street district.

It is strangely quiet in that section of the financial district at night to one who knows it only from its day-time riot. There is no vehicular traffic. The streets have few persons traversing them. In summer there are cool breezes from the bay.

Up in the pleasant rooms where he has his household goods, Doherty can lounge and read and study or entertain. He is a bachelor. If he cares to go to theater or club he can get there as quickly as other bankers can from their town houses or apartments. The subway is nearby. Or he can call a taxi if he desires. Doherty is democratic. The subway is good enough for him. He can get a seat, for he dodges the rush-hour mobs.

That "home within five minutes of the office" is illustrative of Henry L. Doherty. It is a simple solution of a problem that annoys many thousands.

From office boy to head of a $200,000,000 corporation is quite a climb. No one but a person of remarkable ability could do it. And Doherty has that.

Toledo will know it has had a fight when it gets through with Doherty. Most persons who tackle him do.

Talking of office boys, they had a celebration in the Chemical National bank in New York the other day in honor of Francis Halpin, vice president of that great institution. Mr. Halpin has been with the Chemical fifty years. He went to the bank as an office boy and runner of messages way back in 1869. At that time the bank occupied the space which now is the entrance corridor. Its force was made up of twenty-two persons, two of these being officers and twenty-two clerks. Now it has a young army.

As a "runner"—that is, messenger, Halpin had the whole of the city north of Chambers street to cover. Today that seems unbelievable, but in 1869 New York still was in its swaddling clothes. North of Forty-second street there was a fair amount of open country. There was only one cross-town street car line in all the city. There were no elevated roads, no subways, only a few street cars, and most persons traveled by stage or in their own carriages, or journeyed afoot.

The telephone hadn't been thought of. There was no electric light. There were, as some persons say, no "modern inconveniences."

When Halpin went with the Chemical bank people talked of the bank in reverential tones. It had deposits of $5,000,000. Anyone who said then that the boy would live to see the day when several American banks would have deposits far in excess of $500,000,000 would be considered a wild dreamer.

Anyone who said the bulk of New York's traffic would be carried underground and up in the air; that people would fly and people would cross the seas in two days, and people would talk with people across the seas and thousands of miles across the lands would be considered hopelessly crazy.

Yet Mr. Halpin, like many other men, has seen these things come to pass, and today he, as vice president of the Chemical, can look back to the time when he got $5 a week and marvel at the changes, and at no change greater than that in the working man, who today gets as much in a day almost as the worker did in a week in "the good old days," if there ever were such days.

Some years ago a New York physician suggested that a person suffering from tuberculosis would get almost as much benefit living in the upper story of a towering skyscraper of the city as from moving to the Catskills or the Adirondacks. Now a physician attached to the British air service advocates the employment of airships as sanatoria for the treatment of consumption. The patients, he says, would be able to live for several days or weeks at a height of 5,000 feet, enjoying absolute rest and breathing the purest and most invigorating air. He says the great airships built for war purposes can be used for sanatoria, not only for tuberculosis patients, but for many other cases and, except in extremely bad weather, cruises lasting weeks are perfectly feasible.

Doors.

There is one thing about life, and that is it never stays bound—unless you choose to have it that way. Folks hedge themselves into their tight shells.

While there are a thousand doors—to LET OUT LIFE! And bring it in.

Doors are wonderful. They lead to so many things. Out into the stimulating air and sun—out where the whole world plays.

Every opportunity is a door. Every decision, every worked out plan, every honest purpose, may lead to a great door—through which you may pass to a higher valuation in the world.

Most doors have locks. And some of these locks are very intricate and difficult to unlock. But the right key works smoothly and with ease. It is up to you to own and handle every key to the door which you hope to open.

Doors open into so many different ways and places. Sometimes one is thrilled on entering a room where a great task is to be worked out. And then, on passing out of such a room, how full of satisfaction we are, if we have performed well!

Doors bring so many surprises, too. Perhaps one whom we have loved and missed, or have almost forgotten. I opened a door the other day and looked into the face of one whom I had not seen since my school days. And I was made so happy.

Doors welcome, inspire, lead, because of the things and happenings, and people that pass through them.

Learn to pass through doors! Learn to unlock them, after others have failed to do so. Do not be afraid of many doors.

There are far too many young braves handling the scalpel these days. I am strong for the young doctors; I'd pick a young cub a year out of the hospital in preference to the average old fossil for a general medical examination or treatment. But a youth with a surgical enthusiasm is discomfitting. I realize that, now that I have outgrown my youthful aspiration to hack and carve.

In practice a young doctor has a sort of hunch that he must do a little plain and fancy crochet work on the human system in order to make folks realize that he knows something. For this the public is to blame, for the public still imagines that a doctor who operates knows more than a doctor who does not operate; there is a popular fancy that surgeons are more thoroughly educated or trained than just common doctors, which, of course, is not true.

A surgeon, particularly a young and eligible man, is exceedingly prone to feel his oats and he usually knows how to puff and blow about his work; then, too, he is almost completely surrounded by his little coterie of unsophisticated nurses who imagine it wouldn't be half bad to be a doctor's wife, etc.—and you see how fine it is for the young cub. Scratch such a surgeon and you will discover a mediocre doctor; set him down in a country village a thousand miles from his operating room and his corps of hospital colleagues, and he will make an indifferent showing. Yet in the hospital his work is brilliant, every patient that survives is given to understand that no one else could have accomplished the miracle.

Surgical enthusiasm has brought about the performance of a vast number of gastro-enterostomies—making a new passage way between the stomach and the bowels in order to "short circuit" the alimentary mass past some point of trouble, and thus give the point of trouble a long rest, to allow it to heal. Occasionally such an operation is really necessary; but experience has taught that the majority of such operations were undertaken too hastily, and that many of them have not only failed to give any relief, but have actually aggravated the patients' troubles. Experience is a great teacher. The young cub doesn't get it out of books.

Waves of enthusiasm for this or that operation sweep over the medical profession from year to year, and the cure-seekers are too often knocked completely off their feet by these waves. They succumb to fads. Experience gives a surgeon more stability.

Recently we have suffered from a tidal wave of tucking up. Operations to tuck up colons, kidneys, stomachs, everything, have been done with prodigious enthusiasm, and sometimes with prodigious success, for a month of rest, with good feeding and cheerful environment often accomplishes wonders for the lean, lank, long-waisted sufferer from loose kidney, gastroptosis and the like.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Eye Wash.

Some years ago I had a formula for an eye wash which had been prescribed, I think, by the late Dr. Agnew, an eminent oculist. My recollection is that it consisted of a teaspoonful each of borax camphor and alum dissolved in a quart of boiling water. Is there anything about that likely to do harm? It was the best eye wash I ever used and I would like to try it again. (O. A. E.)

ANSWER—Better use only one-third teaspoonful of camphor and alum, and use boric acid instead of borax. Prolonged use of alum or other astringents in the eye is inadvisable unless there is some abnormal condition of the eyes to be treated.

One More for Hiccup.

Slow, prolonged pressure on both eyeballs with the fingers will stop attacks of hiccups or very rapid heart action in many cases, according to the French physician Binet.

Bits of New York Life

BY O. O. McINTYRE

New York, November 13.—Thoughts while strolling around Manhattan: Young "night miners" off to Coney Island to hunt lost jewelry and coins in the sand. All carry lanterns. Ice-capped porters at a depot always make me think of a London fog. Wonder why? A young Chinese girl driving her own roadster. There's Roi Megrue! He's too stout. Funny about this town not having a single alley. Chimney Sweep Mackay. A millionaire. Looks like he's wearing a ready-made suit. Dreamy looking girl is Lola Ridge, the anarchist poet. Sweet potato baking machines now on Broadway. Used to be only on the east side. Someone could write a sonnet to the peregrinating stove. Kitchen sniffing appetizing odors and clutching their precious pennies. Distinctly New Yorky.

The wide western hat coming back into vogue. Makes me think of congressmen. And I want to think of something pleasant. The police commissioner dashing down Fifth avenue. Violates all the traffic rules. Undemocratic. Tall fellow reading the bulletin board is DeWolf Hopper. Rennold Wolf calls him the husband of his country.

Strikers carrying a banner reading "If the rich can have their cellars full of fine liquors, why can't we have a glass of beer?" I'll bite. Why can't they? Still milk is always better. Young Teddy Roosevelt boarding a street car. Got his father's chin.

Dignified fellow in the Lotos club bay window is Ibanez, the Spanish novelist. Can't speak English. He has nothing on most of our waiters. Woman in the picture hat is Mrs. Fiske. Leaves are falling off the only two trees I've seen all day. I'm getting melancholy. Think I'll go home and look sad. Need sympathy.

The visitor to Manhattan may dine in twenty different languages. There is no danger of a latitudinarian of diet feeling that his style is cramped here. In Pearl street, between Maiden Lane and Wall street, there are six Spanish restaurants where one may procure arros amarillo. The Syrian in Washington street goes in for manaaeish and the Armenian over in Twenty-third street and Lexington avenue has lamb fries broiled over charcoal, with rice pilaff on the side. Lower Fifth avenue is the home of French cooking. There is a Mexican restaurant in the Nineties on upper Broadway where one may order enchiladas and frijoles. Lower Second avenue is dotted with Yiddish restaurants and the best known English chop house is on Broadway, in the Thirties. The Italian resaurants crowd against each other in West Eighth street and the Hungarian in East Houston street. Greek and Dutch eating places are on Sixth avenue. And there is a Japanese cafe in an uptown hotel where a fried shrimp is taught how to take a joke. Mott street is lined with Chinese restaurants.

A tiny dark-eyed girl acts as a capper or bait for the lamp-hung Chinatown busses that wait on the side streets off Broadway to take visitors to the horrors of Chinatown. She is the salaried employee of a company which operates the rubber-neck wagons.

The tiny girl sits in one of the middle seats, on the edge nearest the curb. She always sits alone and with a loneliness probably partly real, but chiefly one of the tricks of her funny trade. Some big doughboy from some place far away wanders by.

He looks at the 'bus and the Chinese lanterns and then his eyes find the little girl. She is hunched up in a seat, looking as though somebody ought to be sitting next to her. The doughboy gets in. He is lonely himself. Then others see them—and soon the 'bus begins to fill up and the big 'bus lumbers down the great white way with its strange cargo of human freight, adrift with the idea of peeping into a stray bit of the Orient.

13th Are You Superstitious?

By IMOGENE BURCH

Graveyard Superstitions.

When you go past a graveyard do you cross your fingers or whistle? Our forefathers brought the idea to America that "men whistle while passing a graveyard to keep up their courage," and this old saying has become one of the most popular of our superstitions.

Of course it would require no more courage to pass a graveyard than it would to pass a moving picture theater or the public library if it were not for our belief that "something was liable to appear."

It is said that in the time of King Henry VIII, that worthy gentleman who liked nothing better than to argue religion and who also had a penchant for putting his wives to death, was the originator of the whistling superstition. As night time was gathering on a certain fall evening the king happened to be passing the tomb of Anne Boleyn, mother of Queen Elizabeth. As he approached the grave of the woman he had caused to be put to death he was heard to whistle. At once the belief spread that the king had the secret—direct from heaven—of keeping the ghosts of the dead from appearing over their graves at night.

Another superstition connected with graveyards originated about this same time. The lords and ladies of the court used to spend a great part of their time gambling. One of the practices of would-be-successful gamblers was to carry the feet or ears of a hare that had been caught in a graveyard as a charm.

Thus it was that some of the most aristocratic of our ancestors probably continued the custom in this country; it was not until later that the negro slaves took up the practice. Today it is most uncommon to find a crap-shooter among the colored folks who is not carrying a rabbit's foot in his pocket.

BATTLE PLANNED ON PROFITEERING

Attendance Small at High Cost of Living Conference, Atlanta Being Practically Only City Represented.

Resolutions recommending that the Fulton county fair price committee extend its activities so as to include other articles of necessity, such as clothes, shoes, hats, hardware, etc., as well as foods, that its membership be enlarged by adding representatives from other lines of trade, and that a co-operating hand be extended to officials in the enforcement of the law against profiteering were adopted by the high cost of living meeting held in the senate chamber yesterday morning on the call of Attorney General Cliff Walker.

The first of these resolutions was proposed by J. H. Bulloch, a local retail grocer, and the second by Taylor Hutcheson, solicitor general of the Tallapoosa circuit, but both were adopted at the same time by a viva voce vote.

Grocers Defend Selves.

Owing to the fact that the expected representative from the department of justice in Washington failed to put in his appearance and that the attendance was almost entirely confined to Atlantans, mostly wholesale and retail grocers, the meeting could not fulfill the intent of the call and it was devoted largely to a defense of themselves by the retail grocers and complaints of unfairness in the operation of the price fixing law by the Washington authorities.

Mr. Walker opened the meeting, reading the letter from United States Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer requesting him to call it and stating the purpose for which it had been called. The United States district attorney was elected chairman and T. B. Conner secretary.

The chairman said that the government in normal times had no authority over price fixing farther than could be drawn from the interstate commerce clause of the constitution. The measure under which the government had been operating to control retail prices was a war measure, necessitated by the raising and equipping of the army.

Speaking of the sugar situation in Atlanta, which he said seemed to be uppermost in the minds of the people just now, he declared that more than three-fourths of the sugar reaching this city went into manufacturing channels and that the products were used elsewhere. A bare fourth, he said, went into retail channels. This made the enforcement of the law all the more difficult, as it could scarcely be said that the keeping on hand of a month's supply by these manufacturers was a violation of the hoarding section, although that supply might be a very large quantity.

Use to Make Corn.

He further declared that a large quantity of brown sugar was going into the manufacture of moonshine whisky. He said that agents of the department of justice had located an "enormous quantity" of it stored for that purpose in a nearby city and that a seizure was anticipated at an early date.

R. A. Broyles, owner of a number of retail grocery stores, made a vigorous defense of the retail grocers against whom, he said, the government had been discriminating in the fixing of prices. He charged that the high price of foods was largely chargeable to the government, which had entered the market at the outbreak of the war and taken up great quantities of foodstuffs at unheard of prices, allowing enormous profits to wholesalers and manufacturers.

The retailers, he added, had been compelled to buy their stocks at any prices asked, as the prior claims of the government had made the retailers and large wholesalers independent. After the war the government had hoarded its purchases in enormous quantities for a full year, he said, and then put them on the market in competition with the retailers.

John A. Manget, chairman of the Fulton county price fixing committee, paid a high compliment to the local retail grocers, declaring that they had co-operated with him in nearly every instance and that only two cases had been reported to the federal authorities.

Oppose Price Fixing.

E. H. Jordon, representing a large knit goods concern, declared that he was opposed to all attempts at price fixing. They had all failed, he said, and they were an unjust interference with competitive business. He made a motion that the meeting urge the abolition of price fixing in toto, but this motion was ruled out of order by the chairman as being counter to the purpose for which the meeting was called.

Others who participated in the discussion were A. W. Walker, wholesale grocer, and Francis Kamper, retailer, both of Atlanta.

The meeting was a disappointing one and nugatory of results, inasmuch as instructions had already been received from the Washington department of justice, ordering the enlargement of the membership and scope of fair price commission, and the small attendance was in no way representative of the state at large.

He who leaves the question of his liberty to chance or hazard or the manipulation of his neighbors deserves to lose it. A sin the affairs of love, this is a case where every eye should negotiate for itself." —W. E. Gladstone.

Democratic Chairman Is Coming to Atlanta To Confer With Leaders

Hon. Homer S. Cummings Will Discuss Coming Campaign With Democratic Leaders of Georgia—To Be Guest of National Committeeman Clark Howell.

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, November 13.—Hon. Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the national democratic executive committee, plans to be in Atlanta Friday, November 21, to confer with democratic leaders from all parts of Georgia as to next year's national campaign. Chairman Cummings will be the guest of National Committeeman Clark Howell while in Atlanta. The program of the conference has not yet been made public, but it is known that prominent party leaders, including district and county chairmen from every section of the state, will meet with him on that occasion.

I can say with all emphasis that the democratic national chairman awaits with confidence the campaign of next year when a president of the United States and a new congress is to be elected.

"America has set her face to the future," said Mr. Cummings to The Constitution exclusively just before he set forth on his present tour. "Irresistible impulses are at work which are destined to carry her to a higher place of honor and power than she has ever known. The American people have never been afraid of their fate and have never hung back before great projects. The instrumentality afforded by the democratic party is available to the hands of a forward looking people, and no other instrument will properly or effectively serve their purpose.

Republican Optimism Unfounded.

"Many republican leaders have apparently proceeded upon the theory that the congressional results of 1918 were the sure forerunner of complete political success in 1920. There is no basis for such a belief. There was no real political campaign in the fall of 1918. The result was left largely to chance. The continuance of the last liberty loan up to a period three weeks prior to election and the widespread epidemic of influenza, which afflicted the country from coast to coast and closed every public meeting house in the land during the remaining three weeks of the campaign and made it impossible to render any effective political service or to secure an adequate presentation of the questions at stake.

"If the democratic party had been successful in the congressional elections of 1918, it would have remained in undisputed control of the government for a continuous period of eight years, and would have been chargeable with full responsibility for the course of political events during that time. The continuity of its service was, in part, interrupted by the results of the last election, which gave to the republican party control of both branches of congress. Since that time, republican managers have given to the people some taste of their leadership. In some ways, this is a fortunate situation, for it affords a basis of comparison which would not have been available had the results been otherwise.

Republican Program Failed.

"When the special session of congress convened the republican leaders announced a program of reconstruction, containing many attractive features. This program has never been carried out, and when confronted with the question of the high cost of living, congress sought to avoid responsibility by voting for adjournment. The house of representatives has been held in session at the insistence of the president, and in the meanwhile the leaders of the senate have occupied their time in quarreling over the meaning of phrases. It is not unjust to suggest that we are passing through an interlude of republican incapacity which the American people will not care to repeat.

"If we are to assume that the American people desire to move backward with a view to re-establishing pre-war conditions and expect to restore the political status of a decade ago, then it is quite understandable, and, indeed, quite proper that they should support republican leadership. If, however, they wish to move forward, there is no agency available except the democratic party. This contention is further justified by a review of the actual achievements of the democratic party since a democratic administration took charge of the government on March 4, 1913."

Recent Elections Forecast Nothing.

Asked to appraise the recent off-year, Mr. Cummings said:

"In my judgment the recent elections in Massachusetts, Kentucky, Maryland and New Jersey shed no light upon the attitude of the American people upon national issues. Two of the states referred to went republican and two went democratic and each party lost a state, which normally it would expect to carry.

"From an organization viewpoint there were many results satisfying to the democrats in the elections of November 4, last. This is particularly true of the situation in Ohio. I have been advised by the Ohio state chairman that the ultimate result of city, village and county elections there will be another democratic victory in the Buckeye State next year. We also are assured by democratic leaders in New Jersey that it will be difficult indeed for the disaffected republicans to swing that state out of the democratic column in 1920. On the whole the recent elections were anything but discouraging."

It is encouraging to me to say that the democratic national chairman in an exclusive statement to The Constitution has borne out thoroughly my appraisement of the off-year elections.

TECH BUILDINGS OFFERED AD MEN FOR CONVENTION

The use of the buildings and grounds of Georgia School of Technology has been offered to the Advertising Club of Atlanta as a meeting place for the 1921 convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, providing that body convenes here.

J. M. Watters, dean of the school of commerce, made the formal offer on behalf of the president and faculty of Georgia Tech Thursday noon at the regular biweekly luncheon of the Advertising club at the Kimball house. Dean Watters mentioned the fact that the institution is centrally located, being only a mile from the Piedmont hotel.

Grant field, with the grand stands on three sides—the largest athletic field in the south—was mentioned as a suitable place to hold large out-of-door meetings. The various classrooms at Tech would afford meeting places for various departmental gatherings, as well as excellent display rooms for the educational advertising exhibits, which are a feature of each international convention of the ad clubs. The faculty offers to co-operate with the Advertising club in getting up the greatest educational display that has even been shown at a convention.

The facilities of the school of commerce at Tech would also be turned over to ad clubs. This school of commerce, which is the oldest and largest in the south, was one of the first in the United States to give instruction in advertising under the direction of a practical advertising man.

VALUE OF ADVERTISING DESCRIBED BY EXPERT

J. F. Jacobs Addresses Atlanta Ad Club—Plan for Indianapolis Trip.

The regular luncheon of the Advertising Club of Atlanta held Thursday in the breakfast room of the Kimball house was featured by an address by J. F. Jacobs, of Clinton, S. C., one of the best known advertising men of the south.

Mr. Jacobs' address was in the form of a treatise on advertising in all of its broader aspects, and was entitled, "Does Advertising Pay?" The various factors that enter into an intensive or extensive campaign on advertising were clearly outlined by Mr. Jacobs, who drew concrete examples to stress the points of importance in his talk.

Luncheon Well Attended.

The luncheon was unusually well attended, and the membership committee reported twenty-one new members secured. These new members were introduced to the gathering Thursday and were welcomed to the organization by President Dave W. Webb and the other members present.

Announcement was made that the Advertising club was sponsoring the laying of the cornerstone of the new plant of the Lanham Cotton Cultivator company, in Oakland City, next Saturday, and that the entire club was expected to attend the ceremonies and the barbecue that will follow.

Tickets for the Georgia products dinner were disposed of to the members, and the announcement was made by Walter Chambers, advertising manager of the Hanson Motor company, that the twenty-five nurses from Fort McPherson who are to be guests of the club on that occasion will be brought itno the city in cars provided by that Atlanta manufacturing concern.

The first lottery for round-trip tickets to Indianapolis for the 1920 convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World was held. This feature will be a regular part of each meeting from now until the time for the convention next June, each drawing providing some member with a round-trip railroad ticket to Indianapolis.

Especial interest was put by President Webb on the necessity of the entire organization planning to visit the Indianapolis convention, so as to assure the 1921 convention for Atlanta.

Support of the club to the campaign of the Anti-Tuberculosis fund just preceding Thanksgiving, was urged by Mr. Webb and several of the other members. Mr. Webb is chairman of the Anti-Tuberculosis campaign committee, and said that he was depending on the Ad club for hearty and unanimous support.

CAPTAIN MUNSON COMES TO ATLANTA RECRUITING OFFICE

Captain Samuel H. Munson, signal corps, United States army, formerly with the fifth division, who made an enviable record in the army, has been assigned to succeed Lieutenant A. M. Kennedy as assistant in the Atlanta recruiting office, Lieutenant Kennedy having been recently discharged.

Captain Munson, at the outbreak of the war with Germany, was in charge of the radio communication station at Nulato, Alaska. He was ordered by the war department to report to the third division, which embarked for France in February, 1918. He was later assigned to the twentieth French division.

While with the twentieth, Captain Munson saw active services on a number of fronts. He was later transferred to the sixth infantry, as signal officer.

In the battle at Cenel woods in the Argonne offensive, Captain Munson was severely wounded and was removed to a base hospital where he remained several months. While convalescing in this hospital, he was transferred to the American military division and sent to Berlin where he remained several months.

RETAIL STORES WANT TO SELL ARMY GOODS

Secretary Eve Explains Steps Taken by Grocers and Butchers.

Following statements made on the floor of the Atlanta Federation of Trades that information had been received to the effect that the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association was behind a movement to effect the closing of the government store in Atlanta, a statement was given out Thursday afternoon by Secretary J. P. Eve, of the Retail Grocers and Butchers' association, declaring that the information said to have been received by the labor body is erroneous.

"What we are trying to do," said Mr. Eve, "is to have the government's distribution system expanded so that the 1,700 Atlanta retail stores can furnish the same goods to the people at the same price the government is charging."

Mr. Eve stated further that the plan of his organization would facilitate the sale of the government goods, place them in the hands of a larger number of people and eliminate the long line of waiting people, who gather at the Stewart avenue store every day to purchase government goods.

It was also stated that the dealers formulated the proposition they are making to the government at a public meeting in the mayor's office a week ago.

The plan, according to the secretary, asks that the government allow the merchants 15 per cent instead of 10 per cent under the prices the goods are sold for at the Stewart avenue store in order that they may be sold by the various merchants of the city at the government price to the public.

It was stated Wednesday night at a meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Trades that efforts are being made to close the store and that unless action is taken at once the big government store will be closed within ten days. A telegram of protest against the reported effort to close the store was sent on authority of the labor body to Congressman William D. Upshaw, asking for help in the matter.

SOLVING YOUR HEATING PROBLEM

as it Looks in the Room—Can You Imagine a More Beautiful Heater?

Reduce Your Coal Bill

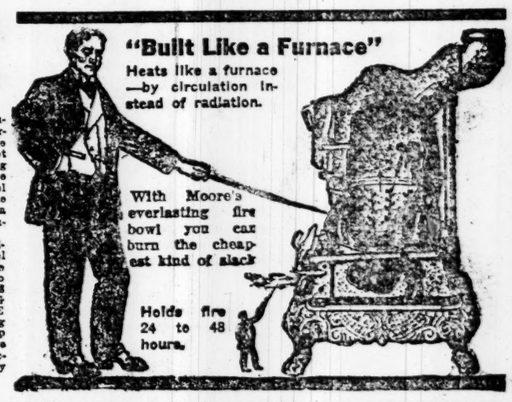

MOORE'S AIR TIGHT HEATERS

Moore's Heaters save you one-third of your coal bill, and will actually pay for themselves in the saving of fuel, and last you a lifetime, because they are built on an entirely different principle from others. It heats like a furnace by circulation, instead of radiation. It sets all the air in circulation through the entire space which you wish to heat, and heats the air in the farthest room to the same temperature as the air in the same room as the stove. No dust or ashes can escape in the room. The dust flue takes them all up through the chimney. The MOORE'S HEATER is the only one having a dust flue. All nickel parts are of the very finest finish—through a process known only to the HOUSE OF MOORE. Owing to the peculiar construction of the Rocco casing, none of the nickel parts come in contact with the fire. Nickel or blacking can't burn off.

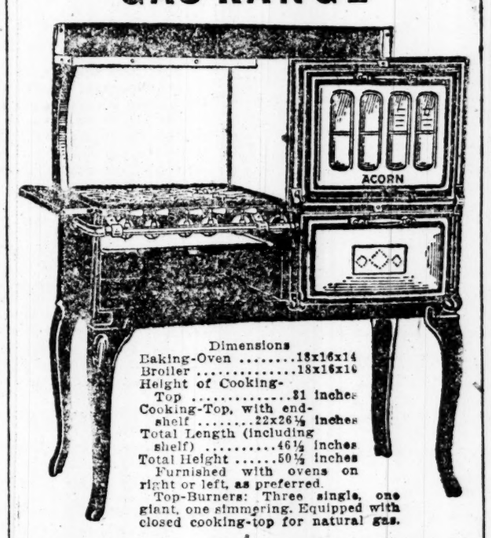

MOORE'S Anti-Carbon FIRE POT

Very strongly constructed, with deep corrugations on the outside These corrugations not only add great radiating capacity, but each one of them form a channel for passing air to the burning fuel through a slot opening on the inside of the fire-pot.

By this process of adbody of burning fuel the volatile gases are united with oxygen into heat thus SAVING 33 PER CENT HEATING POWER OF THE COAL, and making slack or other cheap grades of fuel produce astonishing results in economical and satisfactory heating.

IN THE REALM OF WOMAN'S AFFAIRS

Enthusiasm Is Evidenced For National Thrift Move At Meeting of Federation

Many Interesting Addresses Are Delivered at Special Thrift Session of Georgia Women on Thursday.

By Isma Dooly.

Columbus, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—A patriotic and enthusiastic response was given by Georgia's organized women to the United States Thrift and W. S. S. movement launched at the opening session of the federation convention here tonight by a group of eloquent speakers, including Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, woman director in Georgia of the movement, Mrs. Charles Fuller and Dr. R. D. McDowell.

A message from Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin, chairman of the woman's division of the sixth federal reserve district, was sent through Mrs. Fitzpatrick, her subject being thrift and savings from a woman's standpoint and in the home. It was set forth that upon women lies much of the responsibility of the high cost of living through carelessness in the expenditure of money, through a poor system of housekeeping, and through a failure in the business management of general living, woman being the purchasing agent of the home.

The value of home and family thrift clubs was stressed, the example of older members of the family in this direction being readily adopted by younger members, who can become more interested in savings even than in spending their pennies.

As a practical way at the present moment to practice thrift, Mrs. Fitzpatrick read a message from Mrs. Lumpkin on the importance of early Christmas shopping in its relation to trade human labor and public utilities.

Mrs. Fuller's Address.

Mrs. Fuller ably discussed thrift and savings from a national viewpoint, showing the relation of the individual to the general condition of national prosperity, which depends largely today upon the success of the United States thrift and war savings stamps movement. One individual can lead and inspect an entire community, Mrs. Fuller showed, and upon the extension of the thrift movement in all communities, large and small, the success of the new era of civilization is most dependent.

Dr. R. D. McDowell emphasized in his address the educational values of the thrift movement and described it as one of the most constructive movements yet invented by the wise leaders of the government in their program of after-the-war prosperity.

At the evening session Miss Letitia Johnson, who represented the Georgia Federation unit in France, brought an impressive message of woman's work in the war zone. Miss Mary Lamar Lyndon, dean of women at the University of Georgia, received an ovation when she was presented, bringing a stirring message on the subject of women in the university.

Illiteracy Report.

Mrs. Rogers Winter, representing the Georgia illiteracy commission, told of the sweeping work being accomplished in every section of the state, and the general and satisfactory response to the work.

Present at the executive board meeting immediately preceding the morning session were Mesdames J. E. Hayes, Archibald Brantley, Bruce Jones, Rosa Woodberry, Price Gilbert, H. B. Grey, Chester Rvals, E. R. Hines, John N. Holder, Howard McCall, B. M. Boykin, Irving Thomas, Hugh Willet, Isaac Minis, J. K. Ottley, J. Lindsey Johnson, A. O. Granger, Robert Daniel, Frank Lumpkin and A. L. Brenner.

By unanimous vote, it was decided to hold federation election of officers biennially. The nominating committee acting this year includes Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Mrs. Jeff Davis and Mrs. Nicolson Peterson. They met immediately after the morning session with the district presidents to deliberate upon the personnel of the officers.

The board decided that the student fund this year be contributed to the Celeste Parrish memorial placed in scholarships for women at the University of Georgia.

Face Paint Tabooed--Remove Skin Instead

"A few years ago only one class of women painted their faces," says Dolly Madison. "It was a sign of social ostracism and was tabooed in refined circles. The custom has become so universal we must admit it is to be deplored and to be shelved as soon as possible."

How foolish to seek artificial "beauty" of this sort, obnoxious from artistic and moral standpoints, when it is so easy to obtain a truly natural complexion by the use of ordinary mercolized wax, which may be had at any drug store in original one-ounce package. This mercolized wax is so effective and so harmless, no one need think of using anything else for the purpose. Applied like cold cream at night, and washed off in the morning, it at once begins to show its remarkable rejuvenating effects. It gently absorbs the lifeless surface skin in tiny particles, gradually showing the fresher, livelier, beautiful underskin. Naturally it takes with it all surface defects, like freckles, pimples, chaps, sallowness and liver spots.—(adv.)

YOUR HOME AND YOU

BY HELEN KENDALL.

A Survey

In beginning reconstruction work in the home probably one ought to proceed very much in the same way as they are doing the reconstruction work in France. Before those splendid groups of American women begin their helpful service in rebuilding French towns, they doubtless make a thorough survey of the village, decide how much the work is needed, how far their money will go, and what needs doing first.

Not a bad hint for the housewife this. She knows just how much her budget will allow her to spend on doing over her rooms. Why not sit down then and take a good long look at the house or apartment, decide how far she can go and what will give the happiest results? If the whole room can be done over, why, glory be! There is a satisfaction in the brand-new room that there is in a brand-new gown, instead of a made-over one. But when one must use the same old furniture, and can make changes only in the chair coverings, the curtains, the lamp shades, and so on, it takes a fine eye, a calculating ingenuity, and even a dash of daring to produce a new effect.

It is a skillful woman who does this, too. There is a wonderful knack in subtly changing a room from week to week or month to month, so that it never gets stale to those who live in it or visit it, and yet keeps the old familiar setting intact. A wise woman makes it a point never to make her home entirely over, even a room at a time. Instead she picks up a beautiful new chair here, or a candelabrum there; she gets new curtains one year, and reupholsters the great divan the next year in colors to harmonize with the curtains.

Make a survey of your home and your resources, plan your reconstruction campaign, keeping the best of the old and buying the best of the new, and then begin the truly fascinating pastime of fitting the two together. A paper and pencil will help mightily in this. To write things down clarifies the thoughts and helps one to stop short of extravagance. Make the survey carefully and stick to it—carry it out to the letter, or to the yard, as the case may be! Then you won't rush off and buy new hangings when really what the room needs most is a new rug.

WHEN YOUR COMPLEXION BEGINS TO FADE WITH AGE

You Can Preserve That Clear, Smooth Tint of Youth.

By the Occasional Use of the BLACK and WHITE Beauty Treatment.

As the years go by, women lose that baby-like softness and the rosy tint which they possessed in their girlhood days. Face powders, rouge and toilet creams all help and serve as a mask for their faded, sallow complexions, but such results serve only for a few hours.

The Black and White Beauty Treatment will restore that bloom of youth so much desired—make mothers and daughters appear to be sisters—and its use both safe and delightful. Before retiring, you bathe your face with Black and White Soap, then apply the cream Ointment and wash off the next morning. You'll be so well pleased with this home beauty treatment that a package of both Black and White Ointment and Soap will always have a place on your dressing table.

Your druggist sells both Black and White Ointment and Black and White Soap at 25c each or the manufacturers will send both on receipt of 50c.

A sample, literature and Black and White Birthday and Dream Book will be sent you free if you clip and mail this advertisement to BLACK and WHITE, Box 913, Memphis, Tenn.—(adv.)

Bridge Tea for Visitor.

Miss Margaret Fraser gave a bridge-tea Thursday afternoon at her home on Juniper street for her guest, Miss Marjorie Albright, of Havana, Cuba.

Miss Fraser's gown was of midnight blue charmeuse.

Miss Albright wore a becoming gown of brown satin.

Sixteen guests were invited to meet Miss Albright.

Edison Solves the Mystery of Music

Edison waves his wand,—and the secrets of nature and science reveal themselves.

Think of his inventions! Electric Light! Motion-Pictures! Phonograph! Each is founded upon his discovery of some mysterious secret of nature, some strange law of science.

People ask: "How is it possible for music to be literally RE-CREATED?" Yet Edison found out.

The NEW EDISON

is in a class by itself, because, as Sigmund Spaeth, the distinguished New York music critic says: "Edison alone has mastered the secret of tone-color. This makes his record an artistic RE-CREATION instead of an imitation of something whose reality must be left largely to the imagination of the hearer."

Get those two words:—RE-CREATION and Imitation! Make this test. Some Edison artists have made records for other phonographs. Come in. We'll tell you who they are. We'll have the New Edison RE-CREATE their voices for you. Then you can go and hear the other phonographs give their versions of the same artists. Then you'll know,—the whole difference between music's RE-CREATION by The New Edison and its imitation by other phonographs.

HOME COOKING

By MRS. M. A. WILSON

(Copyright, 1919, for The Constitution.)

The high cost of living has very materially affected the growing child, and unless the mother is watchful children will not receive the proper nourishment when the food allowance of the family is cut down to meet the family budget.

The growing boy and girl need attractive, well-prepared and nourishing food in sufficient amounts to supply material for building the body and also sufficient fuel foods to supply them with the energy which has been spent during their activities.

Now, unless sufficient food, containing plenty of the fuel requirements of the body, is the daily portion of growing children, the material supplied to build bone, tooth and muscle structure will be utilized for energy. If the body building foods are utilized for fuel for the activities, then the body building processes are stunted and insufficient material is supplied to form teeth and is generally below par and unable to keep up with other children; he is subject to the many ills of childhood that could have been avoided by the use of proper foods.

Children who are insufficiently nourished early in life develop chronic diseases that are seldom cured.

Children can be well and properly fed upon good, plain, substantial foods that are within the reach of the average mother, if she will take the time and trouble to study and prepare foods that are best suited for her children.

Steak, chops and quickly cooked meats contain less nourishment than the cheaper cuts that have been well cooked by a slow process. So with this idea in view I plan to help the mother to feed the children for growth and healthy normal bodies and to prevent the high cost of living from giving us a generation of citizens who will be physically unfit to hold up the high standards of the manhood and womanhood that has made the United States of America one of the stars of the civilized world.

The average normal and healthy child should weigh:

Years.	Pounds.
2	25 to 26½
3	30 to 31½
4	33½ to 35
5	34½ to 41
6	43 to 45
7	47 to 49½
8	51½ to 54
9	57 to 59½
10	61 to 65
11	69 to 71
12	75 to 79
13	84 to 89
14	95 to 99
15	104 to 108
16	112 to 121

The girls average the lighter weight. A pound or two over or under the average weight need cause no serious alarm to the parents.

Many variations in the individual child will tend to cause either a loss or gain in weight specified. The above table is to be a guide and help to regulate the diet to keep the children physically fit.

Children who are physically weak or greatly emaciated with depleted tissues from illness should receive special care and food that will help them quickly regain their lost weight and at the same time supply them with the needed requirements, so that there will be no additional drain upon the body. With this idea in view, a series of menus will be planned to supply the requirements of the growing child and will be a feature of the food page.

Feeding the Year-Old Child.

A baby a year old requires food that will replace the nourishment supplied by the mother who nursed him. Because he has only a few teeth his diet must be easy for him to masticate or chew and be of such a character that it will enable him to grow good strong teeth, bone and muscle.

A baby a year to one and one-half years old should have at least three pints of the best grade of milk and other foods, planned as follows:

Breakfast, 7:30.

Oatmeal Milk

Sliced Toast in Warm Milk
or

Poached Eggs
or
Finely Minced Chicken
Baked Potato
Finely Shredded Lettuce
Milk

4 P. M.

Cup of Cream Soup

6:30 P. M.

Well Cooked Cereal With Milk
Cup Custard or Junket

Next week: Foods for children from two to three years of age.

The Verdict of Mothers

"Little Junior" Footwear at Eiseman's Are the best Children's Shoe Values in Town

These Are Moderate Prices for Such Fine Qualities—and why!

In the first place Eiseman's have made a most favorable impression with parents with "Little Junior" Footwear, an exclusive Eiseman product for Boys, Girls and Infants. These shoes are of the very finest quality obtainable, and are conscientiously made on the correct Orthopedic Last. This assures service, comfort and protection.

By shrewd merchandising we ordered this footwear in many instances 6 and 8 months in advance. Since that time prices increased considerably. Most of these shoes would cost us more today than what we are selling them for. But it is the Eiseman policy to price merchandise on a basis of what it cost us—not what its present market value is.

As you know from experience, "Little Junior" Footwear at all times represents splendid value, but under such conditions these good shoes are really extraordinary values. Shrewd parents who find that children's footwear is an expensive proposition cannot well afford passing up the opportunities offered at Eiseman's now in being able to sell such very high-grade footwear at such moderate prices. We're proud to do it for Atlanta and Georgia, for we are a store of Real Service, and we're showing this to the public every day.

Official Boy Scout Shoes

Correct Footwear for BOYS—GIRLS—INFANTS

The "Little Junior" line, which is made exclusively for Eiseman's, and sold only by them, consists of the following. They are priced according to size:

Savannah, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—At the concluding session of the first annual convention of the Georgia Ice Manufacturers' association here today, C. H. Dance, of Toccoa, was elected president. Other officers chosen were J. L. Dorminy, Fitzgerald, vice president; John Yopp, Atlanta, editor of Refrigeration, the association's publication.

About twenty towns of the state were represented at the session. The next meeting place is left with the board of directors on which Frank Ellis, Augusta, and N. F. Word, LaGrange, were placed, vice A. Block Macon whose term expires.

The association unanimously decided to affiliate with the national association following an address by Charles Behre, of New Orleans, and will conform its work with the plans of that organization. Ninety-five per cent of the ice manufacturers of the state have been enrolled.

Technical subjects were handled by speakers today, featuring reduction of production costs. Speakers today included Mr. Behre, W. J. Rushton, Birmingham, and J. C. Gentry, Atlanta. Symmetrical Eyebrows.

Recently there has been a decided fad for high-arched and very thin eyebrows—eyebrows so thin that the hair forms a line no wider than you might make if you traced an arch above the eye with a pencil. Several readers, and among them many men who had great curiosity on the subject, have wanted to know how this peculiar effect was accomplished. The answer is perfectly simple: the dear girls shave.

Now, this seems a very curious thing to do, because once you have tried it you must keep shaving the brows almost every day, and I do not think the results justify the trouble. However, if there are hairs in the eyebrows that grow out of alignment; that is, outside the proper arch of the brow, they can be kept down by clipping them. Use your manicure scissors with the points turned out, away from the face, so there will be no danger of injuring yourself.

Hairs that grow out of place above the eyebrow—that is, on the forehead—can be pulled out with tweezers, but those that grow underneath the brow are so near the eye itself that they should be clipped.

Unfortunately many women go about with unkempt-looking eyebrows, not because the hair grows outside the line of a perfect arch, but because the brows are never brushed nor shaped with the fingers. To do this, it is only necessary to run the fingers over the yebrows, pinching the hairs so as to draw them together in the center to form a smooth-looking symmetrical arch. If they are coarse and unruly, moisten the fingers with mucilage; this will hold the hairs smoothly for several hours, and after some weeks will get them into the habit of lying smoothly.

YOU MAY HAVE TO TRIM YOUR BROWS.

Questions and Answers.

Yoette H.—Use javelle water to remove the ink stains from the suit.

H. S.—Use either liquid green soap or the blackhead cleansing powder for your complexion. If you have a quantity of blackheads, you will probably have to put yourself on a diet.

Dimples—The soap you are now using on your hair is probably causing the change in its shade. Use a mild castile soap for a shampoo. Both you and your friends should use the blackhead cleansing powder every day and for a diet eat as much fruit and as many green things as possible, avoiding starchy or indigestible foods.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Roderick and Julius.

Belknap's systematic effort to discover some of the secrets of the Nest was not without results. Many of the hidden buttons and concealed springs and levers, practicable screws, nail heads, ornamental work, and what not of all descriptions, could not defy the inch-by-inch search for them that he made—and the very fact that Katherine delayed her visit to him after the discovery of the opened shutter afforded him opportunity. Also, he worked in haste, although thoroughly, fearing that the discovered window would bring her quickly to the Nest.

By the time that he was hungry, and felt the necessity of preparing something to eat, he had accomplished much—although it must be admitted that his discoveries did not take him as deeply into the mysteries of the strange house as he could have wished.

There were mechanisms that he sought which he could not find, and he found several that he had not sought. He was as much in the dark as ever concerning the openings in the floor, and the operation of the door of entrance; but he did know the secret of the Nuremberg chair.

He decided that, when she came to him again, if she were inclined to be fractious, as he expressed it to himself, he might induce her to sit upon the chair, or push her into it, and so catch her as he had been caught. Then—well, then he could make his own terms.

He was no wiser than before in regard to getting out of the house, unless, indeed, he should decide to smash the plate glass observation window and make the leap of 50 feet or more to the water under it.

Meantime as soon as he had eaten, he returned to the search, hoping and believing that he would uncover more secrets before Katherine appeared.

Black Julius became more at ease after his talk with Katherine in the wood.

His discovery that she was not only cognizant of Belknap's escape from the house, but had actually given the man her personal assistance, had troubled him so profuncly that it had almost (though not quite) obliterated the immeasurable joy of another one (which had seemed unbelievable and impossible), that he had made that same night.

It was when he was brought face to face with Carruthers in Bingham Harvard's den at the time of the conference.

The instincts of the negro amounted to the sixth sense.

He might, from a little distance, have looked upon Carruthers' face, watched his motions, and otherwise have observed him, without interest; but, brought into actual contact with him, touching his hand, and thus the point where he could "feel" his presence, he had sensed rather than seen through the shell of disguise that Carruthers wore.

Black Julius' instinct was like the scent of a favorite dog. It knew.

He had "toted" Roderick Maxwilton, and petted him and played with him from the time he was born into the world, just as he had served Katherine; and he had been almost as devoted to him, until little Katherine came. His positive recognition of Roderick Maxwilton in the person of Carruthers of the secret service, was therefore instantaneous.

Nobody save Roderick himself had noticed the agitation of Julius at the time; but he had known—as he had also believed would be the case when they were brought face to face—that Julius recognized him.

Thus it happened that as soon as it was both possible and convenient, Roderick, otherwise Carruthers (and otherwise also, Brainard), went to Julius' cottage near the garage to see him and talk with him. That happened soon after his discovery of the unshuttered window of the chalet.

Julius did not return to his cottage at once to wait for Katherine, as she had directed. There were duties that he had to perform first, and so it was a little more than an hour afterward when he entered it, and there discovered Roderick awaiting him.

Roderick (we will call him so for the purpose of this interview) left the chair whereon he had been seated and waiting, the instant Julius appeared.

For the moment he was the boy again; he was the lad, and Julius was the faithful servant of his house whom he loved and trusted. And to Black Julius the impulse was precisely the same, although reversed.

Roderick took a step forward and stretched out both hands. Julius grasped them with his own, and for a time the two were speechless before one another, and, oddly enough, it seemed as if Roderick was the more greatly moved of the two.

It was Julius who spoke first.

"Mr Roddy! Mr. Roddy! Why, Mis-tuh Rod-dy, it don't seem mo'n the day befo' yisterday since I was totin' yo' 'roun' with these old han's uh mine; it suttinly don't, Mr. Roddy."

Julius always lapsed into the soft dialect of his youth when he was greatly moved.

"Dear old Julius!" Roderick replied. "You knew me the moment you saw me last night, didn't you?"

"I suttinly did, Mr. Roddy."

"Then you never believed that I was dead and buried, did you?"

"I know'd you wasn't, suh. Mis-Kitten told me."

"But, Julius, even Mis' Kitten didn't know me. How was it that you did?"

"I dunno, suh. I reckon mebby I smelt you, jes' like a houn'-dog would do it. I didn't see no scar, or no growed-up man, when I looked at yo' las' night. I didn't see anything at all but jes' the little boy Roddy. Uhuh! 'Twouldn't made no difference about it, neither, if I hadn't been told that the scar wasn't real. 'If it had been real sure enough, I'd 'a' know'd you just the same.'"

He stopped, and when he spoke again his voice had a note of stern displeasure in it, as if he were, in reality, speaking to the lad of years agone, and chiding him.

"Why haven't you told Mis' Kitten about yourself, sir? Don't you know that she's been eatin' her poor little heart out for you all these yeahs? Why, sir, only just a little minute ago I was talkin' to her, and it was all I could do to keep myself from blurtin' it all out. Why ain't you done told her, Mr. Roddy, befo' now?"

"Never mind about that, Julius. I shall tell her very soon."

"Yes, sir."

"Now, Julius, I want to question yon on another matter."

"Yes, sir." Julius was instantly on his guard. He guessed what the next question might be, and he had no idea of betraying Katherine's confidence, even to her brother.

"That fellow Belknap must be hiding somewhere within the bounds of the estate," Roderick continued. "I know that he could not slip through the meshes of the net that I have spread for him, and escape. Therefore, he is somewhere near here. Now, you know the place probably as well as you know the old place at home, so I want you to think hard, and then tell me of all the possible hiding places near us that you can remember."

"Well, sir," Julius replied thoughfully, and his face was like a mask, "I can't just say that I do know of a place where he could hide—an' keep hid. I suttinly don't."

"I have been searching, Julius, and my men have been searching, all day—all the time since Belknap disappeared. They have not been able to obtain a trace of the man."

"No, sir, I reckon they ain't."

"But—I think that I have."

"Yes, sir. Mebby so."

"I have got a notion, Julius, that he has found a way to get inside of that little house on the bluff at the end of the dam. What do you think about that?"

"I don't think anything about it, sir."

"Why not?"

"'Cause they can't nobody get inside of that house on the bluff 'lessen Mis' Kitten lets 'em in. That's her own special nest, Mr Roddy, an' nobody ever goes into it but jest her own self. He couldn't get into it unless she let him in, an' Mis' Kitten wouldn't do that, would she—'specially when she wouldn't let me into it, or Phemie, or even Mr. Harvard himself? No, sir!"

"One of the windows has been uncovered within the last half hour, Julius, and I saw somebody peering out of it."

"Then you saw your own sister, Mr. Roddy."

"No, Julius, I know better than that. It's my profession to know things."

"Then you saw double, that's all. You just thought mebby he might be there, an' so you thought you saw him there," Julius insisted.

"Possibly," Roderick replied; but he was more than ever convinced that he was correct about it.

SHOOK WITH NERVOUSNESS

A Lady Was Flat On Her Back With Terrible Spells, But Her Husband Got Cardui—And Now She Is Grateful.

McKinney Texas—Mrs. Mary Stephenson, of this place, states: "About a year and a half ago I was down in bed for six weeks, not able to sit up. I was flat on my back and had terrible spells. . . . Why, it looked like I would die. At times I didn't know anything. I would get nervous, I couldn't bear anyone to talk to me—I would just jerk and shook with nervousness . . . across my back was so sore and ached me all the time. I would have a dizzy feeling. My limbs ached me and I would get numb and feel so weak . . . I said to my husband I knew Cardui was good and I believed I had best try it.

He got me a bottle of Cardui, and when I had only taken one-half bottle of Cardui I felt stronger. I took a half a dozen bottles altogether, then in two weeks after I began taking I was up, in three I was doing my work. I praise Cardui, for I believe it saved my life and I am grateful."

For over 40 years Cardui has been helping weak, sick women back to health and strength. Try it.—(adv.)

The Testing of Julia Grant

BY HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR

Copyright, 1919, for The Constitution.

READ THIS FIRST.

When Dan Carson jilted Julia Grant for another woman he did not realize that a time would come when he would ask Julia to take him back. However, that time did come, and although Julia's experience in the hospital, where she had gone for training, had changed her, she did not know how much until after she had given her promise to Dan a second time. Then she realized that all the love of her heart had been given to Dr. John Norville, the head surgeon at the hospital, and it was then that she decided to marry Dan as soon as he wanted her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Lucy came into her mother's room a day or so after Julia arrived home from the hospital for good, and sat down in a low rocking chair. The chair was in the window and Lucy's face was in a strong light; somehow it did not show her up advantageously; she looked washed out and there was a strained expression around her eyes.

She sat for a moment without speaking, but anyone could have seen that she had something on her mind. Lucy was not deep enough to be given to fits of brooding. She did not think ordinarily and she was nearly always sunny. Even Mrs. Grant looked at the girl closely and thought to herself that Lucy was the type that would fade soon.

Finally Lucy broke in upon her mother's reflections with a remark that was rather surprising.

"Mother, don't you think that Julia is acting strangely?"

Mrs. Grant looked a oyed. "What makes you say that?"

"But don't you really; have you noticed anything?"

"Well, of course, she woul ct strangely just now. She isn't d to the old life here at home, and, besides, she has the excitement of being married hanging over her. I don't think it's surprising that she isn't quite natural."

"Have you noticed how she is with Dan?"

"Oh, now Lucy don't imagine things. You know your sister never was demonstrative, in fact, I never knew a girl who took things more calmly and as a matter of course than she does. You can't expect her to enthuse and scintillate when it isn't in her nature."

"How do you know it isn't in her nature?"

Mrs. Grant looked at her daughter exasperatedly. "Lucy Grant, what are you getting at? You talk so strangely. Is anything on your mind?"

Lucy was silent and sat fidgetting with the curtain that hung near her chair. Her thin little fingers laid it in pleats carefully, her pale face flushed; she looked frightened and nervous. Plainly something was wrong.

"Well?" Mrs. Grant asked finally. "O, mother, don't you suppose Julia cares for Dan?" The question was almost an entreaty.

"Of course she does!"—sharply—"in her way."

"In her way," Lucy wailed; "but she doesn't love him like I do."

Mrs. Grant started up and stared in amazement at her daughter, Lucy was crouched down in her chair, she had turned her face away and was crying quietly with her cheek pressed against the cushion of the chair.

"It's been different since Julia was away," she sobbed. "Dan and I have had lots of talks and we think the same about things. Julia doesn't think the same, she's just making herself believe she is."

Mrs. Grant had left her chair and had come across the room to Lucy. "I want you to stop this immediately," she said severely. "Haven't you any pride? Suppose you have been silly enough to allow yourself to fall in love with Dan Carson, you know quite well that he doesn't care for you. He is your sister's lover and they are to be married in a few weeks, that's all there is to it. Now I want you to pull yourself together and forget all about this. Do you hear me, Lucy?"

Mrs. Grant's impatient reception of Lucy's confidence acted on the girl like a tonic. She had been sure of her mother's sympathy at least, and even that had failed her. Her mother was determined to see Julia safely married, she had her mind set on it, and she had no patience with this development of Lucy's. Lucy was a child anyway who didn't know her own mind.

But strange as it may seem Lucy had given her heart to Dan. She understood Dan and made allowances for weaknesses in him that it would be impossible for Julia ever to overlook. No woman can pity a man, can listen to his confidences day after day with an open heart and not grow to care—and Lucy was not the strongest character in the world. She knew that Dan had no idea that she cared for him, but she did know that he liked to tell her things. She had no doubt of the fact that she could make him care, if only she had a chance.

Handsome Prizes For the Juveniles.

The contest inaugurated by the juvenile department of the Music Study club has aroused considerable interest among the young members and has revealed to the club management just how important the work among the children has become. Our many enterprising music houses and talking machine companies have realized this and are cooperating with the club in its effort to develop the musical taste of our children.

There are numbers of standard works among the music of the masters which every child should know and recognize whenever they hear them. Miss Evelyn Jackson, the director, has selected a few of the most popular of these and they will be played for the children at every club meeting. During the year the children will be allowed to employ any means at their disposal to further familiarize themselves with the selections and in the spring, at the close of the club year, an examination will be held and prizes offered to those getting the highest number of correct answers.

In addition to the prize offered by the club there will be several handsome prizes given by business firms. Mr. William Brownlee, through the Cable Piano company; Mr. Robinson, through the Phillips & Crew company; Mr. Rosenblatt, through the Edison company, and Miss Bannie Hood, through the Delphine Shop of the Columbia people, have all signified their desire to further award the winners. There will be in all about ten prizes offered, so there will be a fair chance for all to win.

Every member of the juvenile is in the contest, and, as the selections are to be played and explained at the club meetings, it is imperative that the members attend regularly. The meetings are held regularly every two weeks on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. There will be no deviation from this program and when the special concerts, such as the one given last Friday by David and Clara Mannes are held, these will be extra and in no way alter the regular club programs.

The meeting this coming Saturday will be the children's program. There will be violin and piano numbers by the little folks and the drawing will be held for those who will play next month. The meeting begins promptly at 3 o'clock and will last one hour. There is a chorus, trained and directed by Miss Madeline Keipp, that meets at 2:30 o'clock and any member who desires may join this.

Every child in Atlanta is invited to join the juvenile and for the nominal dues of $1 per year they will be entitled to all the benefits of the club, the privilege to participate in this contest and free admission to the special matinees put on for the children by the club. One of these concert matinees was held last Friday by the Mannes and next month the club is bringing, at great expense, the musical prodigy of the day, Madeline Brard, the famous pupil of Alfred Cortot. Every one who is not a member of the juvenile who hears this artist will be asked to pay $1.50, and the club management had rather enroll so many children at $1 each that there would be no room left in Egleston hall to accommodate the older musicians in Atlanta, who would be only too anxious to pay $1.50 to hear this wonderful child. The best is none too good for our children.

VET WILL LOSE FOOT RESULT OF OLD WOUND

Americus, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—Wounded more than a year ago while fighting in France, Luke Forest, an Americus boy, will this week undergo an operation for the removal of his right foot, as a result of injuries sustained at that time. Forest was a member of the famous Americus Light infantry and served on the Mexican border before goingto France as a member of the Rainbow division. He was wounded when a German shell destroyed a concrete pill box in which he was sheltered, at the second battle of the Marne. He has since submitted to nine operations as a result of the wound. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Forest, who reside near Americus.

Gen. and Mrs. Nelson Winter Visitors.

General and Mrs. Richard M. Nelson, Sr., of Washington, D. C., will spend the winter with Dr. and Mrs. Richard M. Nelson, Jr., at their home, 336 South Pryor street. General Nelson is a West Pointer, a confederate veteran, and before his retirement from active business was prominent in Alabama and southern business, having been many years a law partner of the late United States Senator Joseph F. Johnston, when he succeeded as president of a Birmingham bank. General Nelson was probably the first southerner to be elected president of the American Bankers' association, being thus honored in 1891, having been first vice president in 1890 and on the executive council since 1878. He was deputy for the diocese of Alabama to several general conventions of the Episcopal church of the United States, between 1871 and 1886.

Mrs. Nelson was Miss Mary McFaddin, whose father, Robert McFaddin, was an extensive planter of Greensboro, Ala. She was educated at St. Marys, near Raleigh, N. C.

IMPORTS OF LUXURIES SHOW GREAT INCREASE

New York, November 13.—Unprecedented prosperity is indicated in statistics from the office of the collector of the port of New York, which show an increase in luxury imports of 125 per cent over a year ago. Duties on 47 articles of luxury on the list ranging from toys to ostrich feathers totaled $57,684,446 for the three months ending September 30, and that despite a liberal exemption on dutiable goods allowed to returning soldiers.

"Charge of the Blouse Brigade" Big Event at the J. M. High Co.

History tells us most interestingly of the "Charge of the Light Brigade," but that charge was a mere incident compared to the "Charge of the Blouse Brigade" which began Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at the big department store of the J. M. High Co. And what makes it most interesting to the ladies of this city and section is the fact that the "charge" continued all day Thursday, and bids fair to continue for two or three days—or until there isn't a shirtwaist left from among the big $25,000 lot recently secured by the Whitehall street house.

As if the big announcements in the daily press of this tremendous sale was not enough to attract every feminine eye to this special sale, the High company had made its big windows unusually attractive with its display of pretty blouses, and to the passers-by there was an irresistible impulse to go in and look over the great array of waists—and an equally definite purpose, after having looked, to buy before leaving the store.

This great purchase of waists was effected by the experienced buyer for the High company recently, when he found manufacturers somewhat overstocked on this class of goods by reason of the unseasonable weather.

Spread out to splendid advantage on long tables down the right aisle of the store there were blouses of every description—of every shade. There was the delicate flesh-tinted Georgette or there was a shade to match any suit the wardrobe held—all lovely, all delicate, and each one appearing more beautiful than the other. And there was not a "second" to be seen—not a shoddy waist anywhere—no off-colore—nothing inferior about a single garment in the lot. There were waists for a few dollars, some a little higher in price—and others still higher in price—until one could find a range for all purses from the sheerest and most delicate voiles to the handsomest Georgettes. But whatever the price, buyers were finding that there was a saving of about one-third the usual cost.

And the ladies of Atlanta were there in throngs all day—looking, selecting, buying.

"I'll take these five," said one customer, "they'll settle the question of some Christmas gifts I must make."

The sale will continue for a few days—but another day's "Charge of the Blouse Brigade" will almost see the finish of this wonderful sale—(adv.)

PROVIDING MONEY FOR THE RAILWAYS

Four Important Points of Rail Reorganization Legislation Settled by the House.

Washington, November 13.—Four important points of the railroad reorganization legislation were settled by the house today during consideration of the Esch railroad bill. Each of the provisions approved has far-reaching effects in providing capital to the carriers, both in the period immediately following government control and afterward.

With one exception all of the provisions provoked sharp fights, but only one was changed.

In brief, the provisions approved by the house provide:

Carriers must ask the interstate commerce commission for general increases of rates within sixty days after their return to private operation.

Revenue of carriers, including short lines and express companies, for the first six months of private operation are guaranteed by the government to equal the corresponding standard return paid as rental by the government during federal control.

Carriers' indebtedness to the government, remaining after a settlement of the rental owed by the government, may be funded for ten years on demand notes, at 6 per cent interest; and,

Carriers may obtain government loans from a $250,000,000 revolving fund during the first two years of renewed private operation, such loans to mature in five years, bear 6 per cent interest and to be secured.

Dennison Funding Plan.

The house rejected the interstate commerce committee's plan for funding the $775,551,000 owed by carriers to the government for improvements and betterments, and substituted a proposal by Representative Dennison, republican, Illinois, for the funding of approximately $250,000,000 less than that amount in framing permanent legislation for the railroads.

Under the Dennison plan, adopted 134 to 66, practically all the money owed by the government to the roads as standard return for rentals, would be set off against the carriers' capital account indebtedness of $775,551,000 to the government, and the remainder would be secured by demand notes bearing 6 per cent interest.

Its proponents said the plan adopted would reduce from $355,000,000 to $171,000,000 the amount congress will have to appropriate to square accounts with the carriers at the end of this year.

Debate of the two plans disclosed that Director General Hines opposed the bill's provisions, while the Association of Railway Executives favored them.

The funding plan embodied in the bill, however, was rejected after its opponents had attacked it as unfair to the government, and its supporters had urged that congress be generous in financial dealings with the roads.

The Labor Sections.

After the so-called capital sections had been disposed of, the house took up the labor sections, but adjourned later in the evening with several plans pending for the settlement of labor disputes enacted on.

Anticipating consideration of the labora section of the bill, Secretary Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, together with other officers of labor unions, were in the house galleries, and some of the men held informal conferences with representatives, outlining their views on the labor adjustment plan.

The labor men oppose the house bill in its entirety, but centered their complant largely on the labor section providing for railroads collecting judgments on the property of unions.

The labor plan of the bill would set up two boards for the voluntary arbitration of disputes. Carriers, enforcing a lockout of employees, would be liable for damages as well as labor unions for strikes.

Substitutes Offered.

Two substitutes for this plan were offered, one by Representative Webster, republican, Washington, for compulsory arbitration before a board selected by the president, whose decision would be final. Strikes or lockouts, under this plan, would be prohibited, and violation of this provision would make carrier or union, including members of the latter as inviduals, liable for damages.

The other substitute, offered by Representative Sweet, republican, Iowa, would by law establish boards of employees and rail executives, similar to those existing in the pre-war period, and would carry with it no penalty for failure to reach a final adjustment. His plan was said to have the approval of the railway workers, and Representative Cooper, republican, Ohio, a former locomotive engineer, indorsed it, declaring that "for years the railroad men and their employers had been able to settle their own disputes among themselves."

NEW NON-STOP RECORD BY NAVAL PLANE NC-4

Washington, November 13.—Piloted by Lieutenant Commander Read, the naval seaplane NC-4, which made the first transatlantic flight, recently established a new non-stop record for that type of craft, carrying twelve passengers. It flew from Pensacola, Fla., to Memphis, Tenn., a distance of 535 nautical miles, the secretary of the navy announced today.

Due to head winds, a speed of only 56 knots per hour was maintained. The total flying time was 9 hours and 33 minutes, about 10 minutes less than the flying time made by the NC-4 on its flight from Punta Delgada to Lisbon, in the transatlantic trip.

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS WORKERS TO PLAN FOR DRIVE TODAY

There will be a meeting this afternoon at the chamber of commerce at 5 o'clock of the workers for the forthcoming campaign for the Anti-Tuberculosis association.

At the meeting all of the executive committee, the vocational committee chairmen and the women workers will be present. Hugh M. Willet, president of the association, will preside.

D. W. Webb, chairman of the campaign committee, will outline the plans for the campaign, which have been adopted already, and will further discuss the methods to be pursued. The workers will receive instructions as to the preliminary work they are asked to accomplish and full details will be announced.

It is planned to have every advance detail worked out in full before the opening of the official campaign, which is set for November 24. It is to be a three-day drive, winding up on Thanksgiving day. The amount to be raised is $30,000, and everyone familiar with the work of the organization will realize that such a sum could not be expended for greater good of the entire community.

The work of the Anti-Tuberculosis association, in its fight against one of humanity's most dreaded scourges, has developed into one of the best-planned organizations of the city. In campaigning against the spread of tuberculosis, both in its incipient stages and in cases where it is far advanced, the wide scope of the work of the district nurses, the various clinics and other departments undoubtedly does more than any other factor in the city to improve the general health of the community.

MACON CAPACITY STRAINED BY BIG BAPTIST MEETING

Macon, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—The Georgia Baptist convention, with 4,000 delegates, and the Woman's Baptist Missionary union, with 800 delegates, will be in session here next week. Every Baptist home in the city has been asked to extend hospitality to the Baptist women, for it will be impossible for them to secure rooms at the hotels, for the men delegates of the Georgia Baptist convention will fill the hotels and overflow to the boarding houses and private rooms. The Georgia Baptist convention is operated on a pay basis, while the Baptist Woman's Missionary union makes no provision for expenses of its delegates.

Committees of Baptist women are kept busy each day assigning delegates to homes as fast as they are listed and sending notification to each of the delegates as to where they will stop while in Macon, this being done in order to avoid, as far as possible, any confusion after the visitors have arrived in the city.

It is admitted the Baptist gathering is going to tax the city to the limit to care for it, but local Baptists, with the aid of members of other denominations, are determined that every requirement shall be met, and they do not believe they will be disappointed. The chamber of commerce is giving active co-operation in the prelinminary arrangements.

MEMORIAL BOND VOTE IN GLYNN NEXT MONTH

Brunswick, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—The voters of Glynn county will vote upon another bond issue on December 18 in an amount not to exceed $250,000, the funds from which are to be used to erect a technical high school in honor of the Brunswick and Glynn county boys who lost their lives in the recent world war as well as those who were in service. This action was taken by the county commissioners yesterday at their regular meeting when they were presented with a petition signed by a large majority of the voters of the county urging them to call the election. Representatives of various organizations were present to urge that the commissioners take action, and all of the members were in favor of it.

A movement to erect a building of some kind in honor of the boys who served in the war was started here several months ago when various organizations indorsed the matter. Finally a general committee was appointed to take the matter in charge and after several meetings and a general discussion it was agreed that the most appropriate thing that could be done would be the erection of a technical high school. This met with prompt approval by the people of the county and it is believed there will be little opposition.

No arrests were made todya. A man in the communist office was permitted to sign for the packages. The police said the cards were printed in Cleveland.

Need of Two Americas Is to Become Acquainted, Says Well-Known Writer

Few People in United States Know of Great Cities and Modern Progressiveness of South America.

By James H. Collins.
(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

The man in the street in Buenos Aires thinks the man in the street in New York a dollar chaser—if he thinks about him at all.

And the man in the street in New York probably considers the man in the street in Buenos Aires either an Indian or a revolutionary of the Richard Harding Davis type.

Fifty-fifty!

If the Argentinian takes a steamship for New York his interest becomes a little keener—while at sea he reads about George Washington and Abraham Lincoln and learns that we have other cities besides New York.

But he is chagrined to learn on arrival that North Americans are blissfully ignorant of his San Martin and Moreno. They do not know that a Venezuelan named Miranda, visiting the United States after our revolutionary war, talked with Washington and other American patriots, and, fired with love of liberty, took the first definite step to free the southern continent. Many Americans now know that Buenos Aires is not in Brazil, but they cannot name the second largest city in Argentina, which is as large as Cincinnati.

The greatest need of all the Americas is psychological—the need for better acquaintance between the two continents which will create the public opinion needed for team work in diplomatic and international matters, and there are signs that this public opinion will grow along new lines.

Publishers Invading Field.

A New York publishing house has planned a series of Latin-American translations, chiefly novels that have had a wide sale in the southern continent or taken on the characteristics of classics with time. The first work to appear will be "El Hombre de Hierro" ("The Man of Iron"), by R. Blanco-Fombona.

This is partly an experiment and partly a contributor to broader knowledge and public opinion between South and North America, according to the editorial director of Brentanos, which has the project in hand. Ibanez's "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" created a wide interest in Spanish novels throughout the United States, and publishers have developed the field profitably. It may well be that American readers are now ready for Latin-American reading. Even should the work of prominent writers of the southern republics prove not immediately popular it is understood that the series will be continued. At the same time American publishers have banded together to translate our own best sellers for South Americans, with especial reference to books which reflect our national life.

Nearly all the Spanish-American countries have literatures dating back to the Colonial period, prior to the nineteenth century. The revolutionary period, which began in 1806 and terminated with the final liberation of Chile in 1831, was rich in literature.

Latin Writers Numerous.

Literary ability is one of the chief measures of Latin-American worth, and the diplomatic representatives sent from one Latin-American country to another are by preference poets and scholars.

Just how far the word "literature" may be used in connection with their writing has been questioned by themselves.

When an Argentine professor wished to establish a students' course in Spanish-American literature some years ago the plan was opposed by ex-President Metre, himself a poet and historian of the first rank, on the ground that Spanish-American literature did not exist. He held that mere numbers of books did not form a literature, and that Spanish-American writings have no logical union nor any apparent evolution toward a definite goal. But he confessed that Spanish-American works are valuable as facts, expressing social life during the three periods from the Colonial to the present, and this is important for North Americans who wish to read Latin-American books in translation.

Follow European Models.

Writers in the southern continent have followed European literary models and fashions from Heine to Zola, evolving no models of their own. But they have permeated European models with expression of their own national life and characteristics. So Latin-American books can be depended upon to tell us what sort of people our neighbors are, and what they are thinking and doing—and that is what we greatly need to know just now.

Nations view each other through their literature, but usually a generation behind today. The American looks for Dicken's London and Balzac's Paris, while the Briton and Frenchman read of an America still populated by Indians and trappers. On the same principle our mental Latin-American is the revolutionist, and it is high time we were bringing the type down to date. That we have a genuine interest in ascertaining the facts is shown by the popularity of the novel "El Suprema," written around the history of Paraguay of 100 years ago—by an American author, who was never in Paraguay! Hudson's books have also given us glimpses of the southern continent.

There are at all times in New York a large number of Latin-American residents and travelers—enough of them to support an excellent Spanish daily, La Prensa. But they live largely to themselves and make no such impression in our daily news as European nobilities. The Astor and Vanderbilt of Argentina, the Rockefeller of Peru and the President Eliot of Chile slip in and out of our country, and we do not know who they are or what they think. As great a man as Romulo Naon, formerly Argentine ambassador to the United States, and likely to be next president of his country, makes one of the most diplomatic moves of the war, swinging Argentine public opinion to the side of the allies, but not one American newspaper reader in 10,000 hears about it.

Peace Brings New Journalism.

But peace and the league of nations are bringing a new international journalism which will create that public opinion upon which alone peace and the league of nations can be maintained.

During the war Chile was a storm center of enemy propaganda, and this was met with journalism of the international kind, which promises to do much for every country. George Creel sent to Chile a couple of newspapermen familiar with Spanish. Instead of meeting enemy argument with counter-argument, they secured every day from New York and Washington an uncolored news cable dispatch. News is expensive in Latin-America, and the Chilean newspapers welcomed this service.

On top of that, newspaper articles containing hard facts about our country were provided—our population, industries, cities, war program. It was found that the Chilean farmer liked to know how the Kansas and Iowa farmer did things; the Chilean woman was interested in the North American woman; the Chilean trabajadora in the American workingman. Upon such a structure of fact, good will and understanding for our country were built in Chile, and enemy lies discounted automatically.

WIRES PROVE COSTLY FOR THE GOVERNMENT

Washington, November 13.—War-time operation of the telephone and telegraph systems of the country cost the federal government $14,418,237, according to a report of Postmaster General Burleson, transmitted to congress today by President Wilson. This sum represents the difference between the net earnings of the companies taken over and the compensation guaranteed by the postoffice department.

No figures as to the operation of the cable systems, which were under federal control for six months, were given, Mr. Burleson explaining that the reparts from the companies had not yet been received. Any profits from the operation of these companies would reduce the total gvernment deficit, Mr. Burleson said.

Total net earnings of the telephone and telegraph lines during federal control were reported at $70,387,532, while the compensation assured was $83,055,769. The total deficit included an estimated $3,000,000 for settlement of future claims. Small independent companies operated by the government reported a surplus of $57,428.

Reported deficits of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, operating thirty-six subsidiary companies, were $9,290,170.31, while the Western Union Telegraph company asked an adjustment of $921,511.

The government claim against the Postal Telegraph and Cable company was limited at $2,123,392.

"If the unadjusted claims of the government against the Mackay companies be taken into consideration," said Mr. Burleson, "the estimated obligations of the government would be substantially reduced."

New York, November 13.—Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegrah-Cable company, tonight made public a letter he had written Postmaster General Burleson declining to send a check for $2,349,195.20, which Mackay asserted would be "the difference between the $4,029,195.20 our company earned from August 1, 1918, to August 1, 1919, and $1,680,000, the award which you claim to have made us.

"Apparently you are short of funds to pay the Western Union," Mackay wrote, "and you, therefore, demand $2,349,195.20 of our profits in order that you may pay them to the Western Union. This means that you wish to use our profits to pay Western Union losses."

EIGHT GOVERNORS PLAN TO ATTEND COMMERCIAL BODY

Savannah, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—At least eight governors of as many southern states will be in attendance upon the Southern Commercial congress which will meet in Savannah early next month, it was announced today, they being Governor Hugh M. Dorsey, of Georgia; Governor Thomas E. Kilby, of Alabama; Governor Charles E. Brough, of Arkansas; Governor J. A. B. Robertson, of Oklahoma; Governor R. A. Cooper, of South Carolina; Governor A. H. Roberts, of Tennessee; Governor W. P. Hobby, of Texas, and Governor John J. Cornwell, of West Virginia. All have announced acceptances of the invitations to be present. Other governors are expected also to accept.

NO U. S. COMPENSATION FOR WOOD SHIP PLANTS

Washington, November 13.—No compensation on account of the costs of plants set up to build wooden ships for the government during the war will be allowed under a ruling by Chairman Payne, of the shipping board, announced today by Senator Jones, republican, Washington. The ruling resulted from demands of the owners of wooden ship plants that the government shoulder part of the expenditure on their yards.

"There is no question," said Mr. Payne's ruling, "as to our right or obligation to pay the contract obligation and such damages as result from the cancellation of contracts for ships, but beyond this it does not seem we have the right to go."

Senator Jones said in order to meet the situation he might present a bill similar to the one providing for settlement of war contracts by the war department.

NO PEACE OFFER TO BOLSHEVIKI

Denial by Lloyd-George in House of Commons. United States Will Not Compromise With Bolshevik Regime.

London, November 13.—Premier Lloyd-George declared in the house of commons today no person at any time, on his behalf or with his knowledge, has interviewed bolshevik representatives in order to learn whether negotiations for peace might be opened and upon what terms.

The premier announced it was proposed to call at an early date an international conference at which the ministers of the allied and associated powers might consider the various problems which the peace conference as yet had found itself unable to settle, among which was the problem of Russia.

Washington, November 13.—There is to be no compromise with the bolshevik government in Russia by the United States and no movement is contemplated which could be considered as offering to confer with the bolshevik element in that country, it was learned today at the state department. Officials said there had been no exchange of notes between this government and the British or any other government concerning suggestions that a conference with the bolsheviki be undertaken.

PEACE IS SOUGHT WITH BOLSHEVIKI.

Helsingfors, November 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—Peace negotiations between the Esthonians, Livonians and the bolsheviki will begin Saturday, it was announced here today. The Lithuanians will not participate in the negotiations.

George Tchitcherin, bolshevik foreign minister, has received a wireless message from M. Piip, Esthonian foreign minister, assuring safe conduct for bolshevik representatives to the Dorpat conference.

The discussions are proceeding slowly and with caution, and apparently are being taken up in the following order: Armistice, Baltic league and peace. Views have been exchanged on all these subjects, but thus far, the Associated Press is informed, not even the conditions of an armistice have been fully elaborated. Only representatives of the Baltic states are actively framing the program, the representatives of the other countries, including the Ukraine and Finland, merely taking notes for the information of their governments, or at most, interposing personal opinions and suggestions.

It is evident that the conferees are keeping a careful eye turned toward the entente nations. The speech made by David Lloyd-George, the British premier, last Saturday probably will have considerable effect, but the conferees have not yet been informed as to its chief points. The first mention of it appeared in The Social Demokraten this afternoon in the form of a brief dispatch saying Mr. Lloyd-George had made a pronouncement on the Russian situation, but not indicating just what he said.

ALLIED COMMISSION INVITES COMMANDERS.

London, November 13.—The interallied commission to the Baltic states at its first sitting at Koenigsburg, it is learned here, invited Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt's chief of staff and the commanders of independent detachments to attend a discussion at Tilsit. The commission has promised the officers safe conducts.

PLANS NOW ON FOOT TO BRIDGE ALTAMAHA

Savannah, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—The law firm of Lester & Edwards, representing capitalists, announced today that definite plans have been perfected for the bridging of the Altamaha river, the exact location of the bridge, which will mean so much to tourists and to southeast Georgia, however, not being yet announced. Mills B. Lane, local capitalist, president of the Citizens' and Southern bank, of Savannah, Atlanta, Macon and Augusta, announced some weeks ago that he was determined to put this project through.

The names of the incorporators of the company which is to construct the Altamaha bridge are not given, but the capital stock, it is understood, of the company to apply soon for charter is to be $125,000, ample for the enterprise.

SMITH SQUEALS ON I. W. W. PALS

He Tells Authorities About Killing of Former Soldiers at Centralia. The Campaign Pushed Against I. W. W.

Centralia, Wash., November 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—Police and former soldiers today continued to seek alleged members of the Industrial Workers of the World who were involved in the fatal shooting Tuesday of four former soldiers, during an Armistice day parade.

Britt Smith, an alleged member of the organization, it was announced, identified four of the men held in jail here as men who were in the radical headquarters when the parade passed. The shooting was followed by the lynching of Ernest Everetts, whose body was in the jail today, as no undertaker would bury it. Everetts at first was wrongly identified as "Brick" Smith.

The four men identified by Smith were Mike Sheehan, James McInerney, Roy Becker and a man named Faulker. Smith also identified the man who was lynched Tuesday night as Wesley Everett, I. W. W. organizer, who also was said to have been in the room where the shots were fired.

Lynched Man Buried by I. W. W.

Four Industrial Workers of the World were taken from jail today to bury Everett when local undertakers refused to do so. The body was taken from the jail floor and placed in a wooden box, which was loaded into a moving van. Accompanied by seventeen armed national guardsmen the four prisoners went to the pauper section of the local cemetery with the body, dug a grave, lowered the box in and covered it up without services of any nature.

The four former service men will be buried tomorrow at a public funeral, which will be attended by their comrades in arms.

Murder Charges.

Prosecuting Attorney Herman Allen has been instructed by the federal district attorney of Western Washington to place murder charges against all prisoners against whom Allen had evidence. Conspiracy charges will be filed against the others, it was announced.

Smith, in his alleged confession today, said all of the men in the Industrial Workers' headquarters on Armistice day were armed and he is said to have declared he "guessed" they fired shots at the parade. Smith said he did not shoot.

George Paxton, Centralia, former soldier, was fired upon before daybreak today as he was patrolling a road between Centralia and Chehalis, near the bridge where the alleged Industrial Worker of the World was lynched Tuesday night. Police, national guardsmen and former soldiers searched vainly for several hours for the man who fired the shot. Paxton was not hit.

Federal Prosecution.

Several state and federal officials have investigated the situation here since the shooting Tuesday and have conferred with Allen. They included Brigadier General Harvey J. Moss, adjutant general of Washington; Henry M. White, United States immigration commissioner, and several agents of the department of justice.

Further indication that federal prosecution awaited those accused of complicity in the shooting was contained in the statement made by Robert L. Saunders, United States district attorney.

"In my judgment the I. W. W. have gone far enough with their acts to emphasize the truth that their principle is the overturning of government, including the federal government," Saunders was quoted as saying. "If that is so, and can be established by evidence, every individual I. W. W. is guilty of that crime.

"I shall place charges against every one of the men arrested. The complaint will be placed before the United States commissioner at Tacoma and I believe my evidence will be conclusive enough to hold all of them for the federal grand jury.

"I shall charge that each and every one of them wickedly and feloniously confederated, conspired and agreed to overturn the federal government by force and resist the execution of its laws."

Resolutions demanding drastic action by state and federal authorities against radical organization have been adopted by American Legion posts, and other organizations in many Pacific coast states.

UNION NEWSPAPER RAIDED BY OFFICERS.

Seattle, Wash., November 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—Raids were conducted in Washington and Oregon cities today by state and federal officials on Industrial Workers of the World hearquarters and many arrests were made of alleged members of the organization.

Governor L. F. Hart, of Washington, announced he would start a state-wide campaign to wipe out Industrial Workers of the World, bolsheviki and other radicals and called upon all state officials to cooperate in the work with federal and county officials. The governor received messages asking him to convene the legislature to pass stringent anti-industrial workers of the world laws.

Federal officers raided the office of The Seattle Union Record, seized the entire plant and arrested several employees, including E. B. Ault, editor. The raids were the outgrowth of the killing of four former service men at Centralia, Wash., Tuesday, by alleged I. W. W.

Seventy-four alleged members of the Industrial Workers were arrested in a hall at Spokane, and at Portland, Ore., men alleged to be members of the organization were being held for examination. One of the men arrested at Portland, Frank Briley, told authorities he believed the Centralia outrage was a "frame-up against the I. W. W."

The raid on the Union Record was made on instructions from Washinton, D. C., according to Robert C. Saunders, United States district attorney. Federal officers also seized the plant of the Equity Printing company and arrested Walker C. Smith, editor of The International Weekly, which is printed in the Equity shop. Smith was charged with violating the espionage act.

E. D. Ault, editor; George P. Listman, president of the board of directors of The Record, and Frank A. Rust, secretary-manager of the Seattle Labor Temple association, were arrested charged with violation of the espionage act. The Record is owned by the Seattle Central Labor council.

Deputy United States marshals ordered a truck load of copies of the mail edition which was about to leave the office to be unloaded.

During Seattle's general strike in February it was charged by city officials that the Equity plant printed most of the alleged inflammatory posters and handbills distributed about the city. Ole Hanson, then mayor, closed the plant for a time.

CLEMENCY OPPOSED BY AMERICAN LEGION.

Spokane, Wash., November 13.—Resolutions opposing clemency to anyone convicted of the murder of the four ex-service men at Centralia and calling upon state and national authorities for a national campaign of suppression against radical organizations, were passed at a meeting of the executive committee of the local American Legion post here today.

Commissioner J. H. Tilsley, of the municipal department of public safety, blamed the federal authorities for failurb to deport agitators in this section and declared the police would round them up and furnish evidence for such procedure whenever the government was ready to act.

NEBRASKA DRIVES AT I. W. W. MEMBERS

Lincoln, Neb., November 13.—All county attorneys in Nebraska are requested by Governor McKelvie in letters mailed to them today to cause the arrests of members of the I. W. W. who, he said, were scattered throughout the construction camps and among industrial workers of the state "for the specific purpose of carrying on propaganda of I. W. W. kism, which is revolutionary industrial unionism and embraces forceful opposition to the law."

WILL URGE BOND ISSUE FOR STATE HIGHWAYS

Executive Committee of Georgia County Commissioners in Macon.

The executive committee of the Georgia County Commissioners' association will meet in Macon Friday morning to discuss and formulate plans for systematic work in behalf of the passage at the next session of the legislature of the pending bill to amend the constitution of Georgia so as to authorize a state bond issue for constructing a system of state highways.

The meeting was called by Charles L. Davis, of Warm Springs, president of the association.

Members of the committee besides Chairman Davis are W. Tom Winn and Oscar Mills, of Atlanta; Hugh White, of Athens; James A. Gardiner, of Augusta; Judge S. B. Moore, of Savannah; J. A. Lippett, of Albany, and Judge Heard, of Macon.

TEXAS AND OKLAHOMA CLASH OVER BOUNDARY

Wichita Falls, Texas, November 13. Fears of a clash between Texas and Oklahoma authorities were expressed here today when it was reported Oklahoma officers were en route to take possession of the Red River Oil property now in receivership dispute between the two states.

Several armed Texans are guarding the oil property. They are acting under orders of Judge George Calhoun, of the Travis county (Texas) district court, who recently appointed John W. Hornsby, of Austin, receiver for the property.

The Oklahoma officers were declared to be acting in accordance with instructions of Judge Cham Jones, of Cotton county (Oklahoma) district court, that they take possession for a receiver he had appointed, "if it took every man in Oklahoma."

Monday the United States supreme court granted permission to the state of Oklahoma to file suit for determination of the state boundary in the Red river country.

Austin, Texas, November 13.—Following receipt here today of reports that an armed Oklahoma posse was marching to attempt to take forcible possession of the Burk-Senator oil property, which is claimed by Texas and Oklahoma, word was received by John W. Hornsby, Texas receiver, that an Oklahoma sheriff and twelve deputies had appeared and demanded possession of the land.

When guards placed upon the property by Mr. Hornsby refused to surrender possession, the Oklahoma officers left to report to Cham Jones, judge of Cotton county, Oklahoma, who appointed the Oklahoma receiver for the property, according to the message which came from the attorney representing Texas claimants of the land.

The Texas attorney general's department has wired Judge Jones and asked if he intends to use force in an effort to obtain the property. Mr. Hornsby has wired Judge G. C. Calhoun, who appointed him and who is now in Georgetown, for instruction. Mr. Hornsby said that the governor has agreed to use the state police in enforcing any orders Judge Calhoun may issue, if necessary.

The land in dispute lies along the south bank of the Red river on the Wichita county border, and because of oil discoveries is very valuable. When the dispute over it arose both states appointed receivers and the Oklahoma receiver got there first. Later, by a ruse, the Texas receiver obtained possession of the property, and, after placing a guard upon it, returned to Austin.

Reports coming from Austin quote Judge Jones as having said he will take possession of the property if it "takes every man in Oklahoma."

Offered Cop a Drink.

Americus, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—Because Otis Killibrew, a white man, who resides near LaCrosse, in this country, insisted on Police Officer John Bragg taking a drink with him in a cafe here, he was arrested and taken before Judge Harper in the city court of Americus. There he pleaded guilty to the charge of having whisky in his possession, and was fined $45. Recorder Hollis Fort also placed a fine of $15 on Killibrew on a disorderly conduct charge.

CO-OPERATIVE PLAN TO BE DISCUSSED

Dr. James P. Warbasse Will Address Southern District Convention of League at Labor Temple Today.

The southern district convention of the Co-operative League of America will begin this morning at the Labor Temple on Trinity avenue. The first session will be held at 10:30 o'clock.

G. W. Lindsay, president of the Atlanta Co-operative society, will preside over the morning session, and the principal speaker will be Dr. James P. Warbasse.

Dr. Warbasse, who has been abroad several years studying the movement towards co-operative buying and selling, is president of the Co-operative League of America. He will address the convention at both the morning and night sessions.

Prominent Speakers.

Other speakers of prominence on the program will be Mayor Key, who will speak tonight; George F. Haney, president Atlanta Federation of Trades; Jerome Jones, president Southern Labor Congress; Attorney S. M. Castleton, and Louie P. Marquardt, ex-president Atlanta Federation of Trades.

The Co-operative League of America represents in this country a movement which has attained enormous proportions in Great Britain and the European countries. The Rochdale system of co-operative stores was started in England about seventy years ago by a little group of miners who merged their slender resources in order to purchase the necessities of life in larger quantities.

This practice of collective buying proved so successful that in 1911 the original capital of $140 had grown to $300,000,000; the force of four employees had increased to 150,000; and the surplus divided at the end of the year to the workers who purchased supplies from the "co-ops" had jumped from a few paltry dollars to more than $71,000,000.

Growing in America.

The Rochdale plan began to be practiced in America about five years ago, and its growth here has been even more phenomenal than in England. All over the country the movement has developed. The Tri-State Co-operative society is a federation of about seventy societies, mostly in western Pensylvania. It maintains a wholesale business with a large warehouse.

The Central States Co-operative society has about sixty-five distributive societies with a wholesale warehouse at East St. Louis. One of their branches paid a quarterly cash savings return of 8 per cent to its members. The society at Staunton, Ill., declares a quarterly cash savings return of 10 per cent.

The societies in the northwestern states are growing up in the farmers' organizations. Hundreds of them not only conduct stores where groceries, clothing, dry goods and hardware are sold, but also do an enormous business in supplying seeds, fertilizer and harvesting machinery to their members.

Hoit, North Carolina; recording secretary general, Mrs. R. D. Wright, South Carolina; corresponding secretary general, Mrs. W. E. R. Byrtes, West Virginia; treasurer general, Mrs. Amos Norris, Tampa, Fla.; registrar general, Mrs. Fannie Williams, North Carolina; historian general, Mrs. A. A. ILLEGAL TO SELL JAMAICA GINGER IN MASSACHUSETTS

Lynn Mass., November 13.—Jamaica ginger cannot be sold at wholesale in this state to stores for use as a beverage, according to a decision by Judge Henry C. Lummus in the district court here today. In his finding the judge pointed out that the case had no bearing on national prohibition, but was based on the state law of 1880.

He found the members of Charles Crompton & Sons, Inc., manufacturing chemists of this city, guilty of illegally keeping and selling intoxicants and maintaining a liquor nuisance and imposed fines amounting to $2,000. An appeal was taken.

Forecaster Looks For Killing Frost In Atlanta Today

Minimum for Friday and Saturday of 30 Degrees Is Expected—Mercury to Climb Again Sunday.

If the favorite rubber plant, which you forgot to bring in the house last night, is hanging limp this morning, it means that the weather man's prediction for a killing frost has come true. If, however, said plant is still flourishing, you had better take care of it tonight, for the weather prophet is certain the frost is coming along some day this week.

While clear and cold weather, with the temperature falling at times as low as 30 degrees, is the prediction for Friday and Saturday, the mercury will begin to climb again on Sunday and moderate temperatures will prevail for the first half of next week.

The first killing frost is already late this year, the average date for its arrival being November 5, according to statistics gathered by the government weather bureau. Last year was a decided exception, however, the ice king's messenger establishing a record for tardiness by failin gto arrive until the day after Christmas.

Many last year's and even army overcoats made their appearance downtown this morning. The old army overcoats that the boys recently discharged packed away with the rest of his belongings in his barracks bag to take home as war souvenirs, proved that they were as warm in times of peace as in times of war. All they needed was a little brushing up and a few new buttons.

PRESTO-LITE MEN MEET IN ATLANTA

Robert Frothingham Makes Address Outlining Extensive Campaign of Publicity Planned by Company.

"Service" was the subject of Robert Frothingham, publicity director of the Presto-Lite Batteries, Inc., before the convention of the Presto-Lite dealers in the southeast at the Ansley hotel last night. The meeting which opened yesterday morning will close with a banquet at the Ansley tonight.

Mr. Frothingham outlined the extensive campaign of publicity which the Presto-Lite company is planning for 1920. The campaign, he pointed out, will be one solely of education, and it is upon the dealers that the brunt of thie campaign will fall.

Stating that already more than 90 per cent of the Presto-Lite output has been sold, the speaker told how the company is now planning to spend three times the money in publicity and advertising over the present year.

Object of Campaign.

The object of this, he said, was not to gain immediate returns on the money invested, but to impress upon the minds of automobile owners everywhere the presence of the battery in the car; what his battery is; what it's for, and what its functions are.

"The average man," he observed, "probably doesn't know his own battery, or if he does he doesn't understand its functions. An instance of this is cited where a man came into our Detroit office a few weeks ago complaining of battery trouble. The manager looked at it and said:

"It's not the fault of the battery. It's dry. You need some water in it."

"I don't see how that is," he replied. "I keep my radiator full of water all the time."

"It isn't a question of advertising to sell the product," Mr. Frothingham continued, "but the fundamental principle we are employing is merely educational propaganda to show the consumer what we are selling him and how he can operate in securing a maximum of service.

"Any article, and in this connection I mean articles that retail over the counter, properly made, properly advertised and properly distributed will sell, but in the specialty line, and in that I mean manufacturers like the Presto-Lite company, it isn't a question of advertising directly to sell the article in question, but to educate the buyer so that he knows he is getting value received for his money and that the article received is superior to others on the market."

Following his address Mr. Frothingham illustrated the points stressed through motion picture slides showing many of the posters and newspaper advertisements which will be used in the gigantic campaign planned by the Presto-Lite company.

The necessity of the dealers co-operating and not attempting to "sell" a man in trouble, with his battery, but rather let "service" predominate in his dealings with the patron, was especially stressed. He announced that dealers everywhere will give service free of charge to users of all makes of batteries.

Mr. Frothingham is one of the best known advertising men in the country. He has had twenty-seven years experience in the profession, having worked in agency, newspaper and poster campaigns.

He will make several addresses on "Service" during his stay in Atlanta, is an effort to have the full co-operation of every dealer in the southeast in an effort to attain a high standard throughout the country.

Avera Scrapped Budd to Even Break

"Battling" Barnett And "Rabbit" Palmer Took Fight Honors

Avera Was Too Clever for Budd to Put Away and Fought Conservative Mill, But Youngster Opened Up on Gordon Soldier.

By Les Rawlings.

"Battling" Budd and Larry Avera fought ten rounds to a draw at the Auditorium Thursday night, with "Battling" Barnett and Rabbit Palmer taking honors of the evening, with a smashing eight-round bout, which was easily the best event of the 30-round boxing card staged by Walk Miller.

That Budd failed to slip a haymaker over on his little blond opponent, and was clearly outboxed on several occasions, should be taken as a virtual victory for the fighter from Miller's stable, who would have had an advantage in number of rounds won if he had showed more of an aggressiveness at the start of the fight.

For the entire ten rounds the fight was as even as it possibly could have been, with first Budd leading, but failing to land more points than Avera, and then Avera doing his share of the aggressiveness, with Budd covering and making even on points.

Avera Was Clever.

To use the words of the small boy, "It looked like one was scared and the other glad of it," although with Avera fighting an opponent as clever and with the reputation which Budd has, he couldn't afford to take any chances, while on the other hand when Budd found that he was failing to make any decisive headway against Avera, he was right to grow cautious.

The balance of the card was tame when compared to the real fight of the evening between Barnett and Palmer. For eight rounds those two youngsters stood in the ring and exchanged blows, the cleverness of Barnett bringing him the majority of points, while the gameness of Palmer kept him on his feet and going at the youngster during the entire bout.

The first round of the Barnett-Palmer affair was as even as it could have been, with Barnett taking the second and third sessions, while Palmer was easily ahead on points in the fourth, when Barnett went to the floor after a vicious swing by Palmer only to bounce back to his feet again.

Palmer then began to come back and for the fifth and sixth rounds fought Barnett on even terms, although the youngster by the use of a straight left drew blood from the plucky soldier and began to punish him during the seventh and eighth, which Barnett easily took for his.

Was Best Bout.

The Barnett-Palmer bout was easily the best of the evening and would rank along with any staged at the Auditorium, the Avera-Buras bout included.

The program opened with six two-minute sessions between Billy Hooper, an Atlanta negro, and "Battling" Lee, a boy from Philadelphia. Lee must have forgotten a few engagements up until the fight started because he began thinking of them and not the fight, while Hooper began putting him to sleep.

Walk Miller stopped the fight and banished Lee from the ring, awarding the decision to Hooper.

The second mill was a six two-minute affair between Jack Wallace and Freddie Conway, which those two boys fought to a draw to the best of their ability. Both were out of condition and showed the affects of much ambition, but little ability, as far as cleverness was concerned.

J. Hugh McDonald, local promoter, refereed the main event, while Hugh Mauck officiated in the semi-finals.

COMMODORES OFF TO OLD DOMINION

McGugin, With Squad of Twenty-Two Gridiron Warriors, Left Thursday Morning for Virginia Game Saturday.

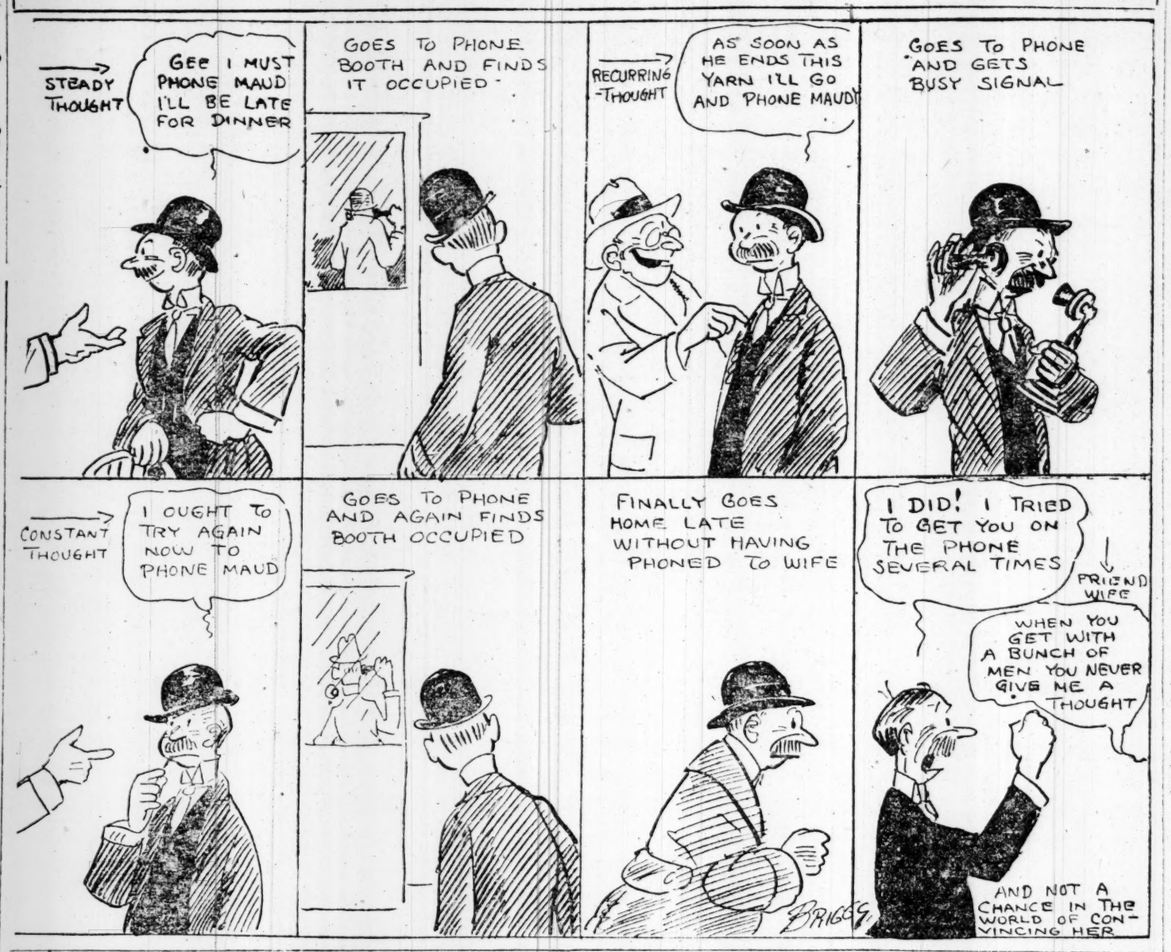

Nashville, Tenn., November 13.—(Special.) — Coach McGugin and twenty-two Commodores boarded the rattlers Thursday morning for Charlottesville, where they expect to fill a business engagement with the Old Diminion team on Saturday afternoon. The stock of the Commodoes has gone up to some extent since the McGugin machine surprised the entire south by coming back and trimming the Alabama team last Saturday on Dudley field.

The injury to Lipscomb's ankle may cause the absence of that powerful linesman from the roster of the Gold and Black, although he was taken with the team to Charlootesville. But it is not probable that the big fellow will be used by the Vandy coach unless he is sorely needed to repel the attacks of the Virginia eleven. And from all indications that the dope is able to give Vanderbilt will not be pressed hard by the Old Dominion squad.

Frank Goar, the great punter of the Commodores, is another one as to whom there is doubt, for Goar has been out with an injured knee since the Alabama scrap. If Goar is put in the game Tommy Zerfoss will be again stationed at halfback, where he played a stellar game in the Alabama battle. With Goar out Zerfoss will go back to his old position at end, where, in conjunction with Alf Adams, he can be counted on to spill the plays of the opposing backs with regularity.

The game with Virginia will be next to the last one for the Vandy team and the time will be put in preparing for the game with the Sewanee Tigers, whose ominous growl is heard, even though faintly, coming from the mountain depths.

FLYING PETRELS GO AWAY TONIGHT

Savannah All-Stars and Citadel Eleven Will Be Played by Frank Anderson's Boys Before Returning to Atlanta.

By Bob Nicholes.

The Oglethorpe Petrels have a long trip in store for them, beginning tonight. The Petrels leave tonight for Savannah, where they will do battle with the Savannah All-Stars, Saturday afternoon, and from Savannah they journey on up to Charleston, where they will tackle the Citadel Cadets Tuesday afternoon.

This long trip has quite a job cut out for the hard-working warriors of Coach Anderson, but they feel equal to the task and hope to redeem themselves for their past two defeats.

It is some proposition for any team to undertake such a job as playing two games inside of three days. Not only this, but Oglethorpe plays both games away from home, and it is necessary to do quite a bit of traveling to reach the destination for staging the games.

By this time the Petrels might be called the "Travelers," since every game they have had or will have, has been played on foreign soil except one, the Mercer game.

The two games, coming so close together, will cause Coach Anderson to worry quite a bit until the Savannah game is over to see just how his warriors come out of this battle.

Oglethorpe is not blessed with many good first string substitutes and it would be a serious calamity if any of the regulars are seriously hurt in the Savannah game.

The Petrels have been practicing hard this week and should enter the Savannah game in good shape with all the regulars in their positions at the kick-off.

Little is known of the strength of the Savannah team except that they were defeated 14 to 0 by the Georgia Tech Reserves. It is understood that this was Savannah's first game and they were hardly at their best. They will be "right" when they encounter the Petrels.

While the dope points to a victory for Oglethorpe, the fluid has been upset many times this season.

The Petrels will probably remain in Savannah until about Monday noon when they will catch a rattler for Charleston, to fight with the Citadel Cadets Tuesday afternoon.

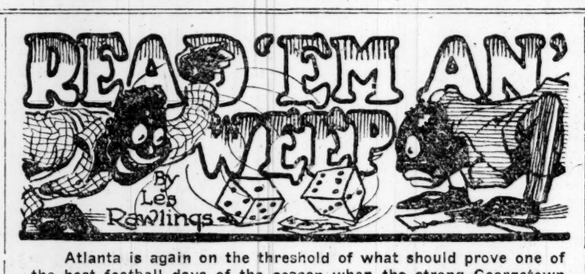

This should be a hard fought game, but again the dope points to Oglethorpe to win. The Petrels did better against Furman, a common opponent, than did Citadel. In addition to this the Petrels always have believed that they had a better team than Furman, where they were defeated largely through penalties.

Waycross Plays Douglas.

Waycross, November 13.—(Special.)—The first football game which has been staged here in some time will come off the first of the week, when Waycross meets the Douglas eleven. Waycross' team is in splendid trim and averages about 150 pounds. They have gone through intensive training for the last three weeks under the direction of Coach C. H. Tinsley. The Douglas team is a very strong one and has been up against some winning teams this year, in which they made a record, and an unusually hot contest is expected.

Gavvie to Boss Phillies.

Gavvy Cravath is going to be at the helm of the Philadelphia National League club for two more years. Gavvy has just put his autograph on one of President Baker's contracts, and he has started right off by buying Infielder Jack Miller from the St. Louis Cardinals. No matter what happens next season, Gavvy cannot finish further back than he did in the one just closed, as there are only eight clubs in the league!

Atlanta is again on the threshold of what should prove one of the best football days of the season when the strong Georgetown eleven meets Coach Heisman's Yellow Jackets in what is going to be a real grudge battle from start to finish and a fight to the last gasp.

Coached by a former disciple of Warner, of Pittsburg, and given assistance this season by Warner with the sole object of using that assistance against the Tech team, the eleven which comes marching into the southland to play the pride of Atlanta will afford the Jackets an opportunity of getting revenge against the Smoky City team by proxy for the defeat handed Tech there.

Just as the Jacket invasion of the north was made a sectional football clash, the trip of Georgetown down here will be a sectional battle, and will give the Tornado a chance to redeem itself, as well as support the contention that we of the south are just as good in a sport way as anything the north can turn out.

As the Jackets were losing to Pitt in Warner's camp several Saturdays ago, the northern bands played "Marching Through Georgia," and it is the fond hope of every Tech supporter that the Tech band will strike up "Dixie" tomorrow to let the world know the Jackets are putting up a stone wall front to the savage attacks of the Blue and Gray.

Georgetown is in good condition. There are no bear stories emanating from the camp of Exendine, and they brag that they will play against Tech the identical line-up which defeated the Navy in last Saturday's contest.

To win, Tech is going to have to put up the fight of her life, and that is exactly what fans are going to see on Grant field tomorrow—the hardest fight the Jackets have put up this season.

When the referee's whistle calls the game to order Saturday afternoon, and the Golden Tornado sweeps down the field, either behind or taking the kickoff, the banner crowd of the season thus far will be in the grandstands to see Heisman's boys redeem themselves for every defeat, just two, of the entire season, in the most savage, plunging, fighting game of the year.

There may be dope on this game, but dope will be absolutely disregarded. It isn't dope that is going to smash that Georgetown line, nor is it dope that is going to send Tech's litle backs dodging and sidestepping through those tacklers who are said to be among the hardest on the gridion this season.

It's going to be, instead of dope, that old fighting spirit that every wearer of the Gold and White will throw into the game—that do or die resolve which is going to rule Saturday's game, and nothing else.

If defeated, the Tornado will have no alibi, because there is victory even in defeat, and it isn't how you won, but how you fought, that counts.

Vandy beards the University of Virginia eleven in its den at Charlottesville in the next to the last contest on the Commodore schedule this Saturday. After Virginia, Vanderbilt winds up the season with the Sewanee Tigers.

Georgetown alumni in Atlanta are already beginning to prepare for that Georgia-Alabama contest at Ponce de Leon park a week from Saturday.

Today's Calendar of Sports

Racing—Opening of fall meeting of Maryland association at Bowie.
Boxing—George Chaney vs. Eddie Moy, 12 rounds, at Baltimore. Benny Valger vs. Pete Hartley, 12 rounds, at New Haven. Frankie Rice vs. Tommy Buck, 10 rounds, at Quebec.

CLEMSON 33, CITADEL 0.

The Clemson football eleven defeated the team of the Citadel college here yesterday afternoon by the one-sided score of 33 to 0, the work of the Clemson backfield featuring what would have been more of a walk-away if not for the vicious tackling and hard fighting of the little Citadel machine.

Getting away with a rush, the Clemson backs swept three times the length of the field in the first quarter before the Citadel team could catch its breoth and stop them.

Meeting Called Off.

New York, November 13.—The special meeting of the national baseball commission, which was to have ben held here this week to discuss various problems, has been called off, Chairman August Herrmann, of Cincinnati, announced tonight. Herrmann said he had received word from Ban Jonson, president of the American league and a member of the commission, that he is ill in bed in Chicago and would be unbale to attend a meeting for at least a week. Herrmann will return to Cincinnati in a few days.

Blocking Has Shown Elevens Must Study Rudiments of Game

Interfering With Kicking Proves That Much Is Yet to Be Learned by Leading Gridiron Machines of Country.

By Walter Camp.

(Copyright by Otis F. Wood, for The Atlanta Constitution.)

Blocked kicks have proved a great deal too large a feature of the important football games. This is a proof that we have still much to learn in the way of simple rudiments of the game of football. There is, as everyone knows, a certain distance back of the line that a punter might stand, so great that even if there were no men to protect him his kick could not be blocked. The only question left, therefore, to make his kick absolutely safe is how far can his center pass the ball?

Now every properly coached center can be taught to put the ball back at least fifteen yards, and even more if necessary, so that a kicker can always if he desires take fourteen or fifteen yards in which to get his kick off. It is very doubtful if even the most aggressive lineman can reach a punter who stands fifteen yards. And another point of great importance is that the farther back the punter stands the more time he gives his ends to get started down the field and prevent a runback.

Besides the instances noted last week of the Cornell-Colgate and others, there was added this week Harvard, who has not had a kick blocked for years, and Pittsburg. It might have meant serious disaster for both these teams for, in the case of Harvard, they just barely emerged with a tie and in the case of Pittsburg it would have taken their victory over W. & J. away had Stein succeeded in kicking goal from the resulting touchdown. As it was, Stein missed and that left Pitt a winner, 7 to 6.

Georgetown Was Promising.

This column commented early in the season upon the promising work of Georgetown and Captain MacQuade. And last Saturday the Navy found that this was no idle talk, for Georgetown defeated them, 6 to 0, Maloney putting over two field goals after MacQuade had carried the ball down the field for him. Meantime, on the same day the Army team suffered humiliation at the hands of Notre Dame, who seemed to have the Indian sign upon the West Pointers.

Other remarkable happenings were the defeat of Penn by Dartmouth by the slender margin of 1 point, due to the fact that Dartmouth missed once only, while Penn missed twice. Rutgers defeated Boston college, the conquerors of Yale, 13 to 7. Syracuse had a hard time with Bucknell, but came through, 9 to 0.

Chicago defeated Michigan, Center college beat West Virginia, Illinois beat Minnesota, Iowa beat Northwestern, Washington state defeated Oregon, Vanderbilt defeated Alabama, and Washington and Lee beat Georgia Tech. Altogether, no season has been so prolific of inconsistencies, all of which adds to the interest of the public in this wildly exciting sport.

Coming Contests of Importance.

Saturday, November 22, and Thanksgiving day are as usual the culmination of the football season, followed by the Army-Navy game on Saturday, the 29th, which always gives an opportunity for the most ardent football fans, experts and coaches to gather together with their season between them and watch the two academies demonstrate what has been learned throughout the season in the way of advanced methods. This year is no exception.

Cambridge will have the biggest eastern game when Harvard meets Yale in the Harvard stadium, and while the former has had more consistencies, and the game will be played on their home grounds, the rejuvenation of Yale after the Boston defeat, and the presence of Captain Callahan in the lineup, have aroused Yale's hopes to a high pitch. There will be two big games in the middle west.

Chicago will have the Chicago-Wisconsin contest and Ann Arbor will have the Michigan-Minnesota. Both these games will be indeed for blood and between defeated teams, but teams that have come fast toward the end of the season. Ohio state will meet Illinois at Columbus, and expects to carry on her conquering march to the conference championship. New York university and Columbia will meet at south field.

Class in Sportography.

Answer—The first man to catch a ball up behind the bat was F. R. Bolrum, of the Athletic club, in 1859. Nat Hicks was credited by many as the first man to do so, but indisputable authority says that such is not the case.

Which are the oldest teams in the National league?

The answer will be given tomorrow.

Georgetown Eleven In Great Condition For Game Saturday

Blue and Gray Is Confident of Defeating Yellow Jackets, After Victory Over Strong Annapolis Crew.

Washington, D. C., November 13. (Special.)—That victory over the hitherto undefeated Naval academy eleven last Saturday has filled the Hilltoppers with confidence and they are looking forward to winning from Georgia Tech at Atlanta. Not a player was seriously injured at Annapolis and Coach Exendine has all of his first-string players in perfect physical condition for the battle with the Yellow Jackets.

Many of the Georgetown lads, especially the backs, showed scratches and cuts when they left the gridiron last Saturday, but no real injuries were received, and Georgia Tech will have to face the strongest eleven Al Exendine can choose from his 1919 squad. No alibis are offered beforehand and none will follow a defeat by the Yellow Jackets. Georgetown will do its best to win.

Whether Metz Smeach will start at right end will not be determined until Friday afternoon's final signal drill at Atlanta. He is new to the position, having played right tackle until two weeks ago. He showed signs of greenness against the Middies and it is possible that he may not start Saturday. In that case, Bill Kenyon will go back to his old job at right end and Harry Sullivan, who did not play against the Navy, will be seen at left end, where he played in 1917.

Comstock's Performance.

The unexpectedly fine performance of Tony Comstock, the freshman from Oklahoma City, against big Denfeld, star guard of the Naval academy eleven, has cinched his grip on the job at right guard. Comstock outplayed Denfeld, who received the battle of his football life. Talk had been heard of Denfeld's all-American claims until he met Comstock. The talk has now faded away into a mere whisper, and is still going.

Alec Anderson, the lightweight center, has finally battled his way to a regular berth. Weighing but 156 pounds, Anderson was shoved aside for Carl Wirts, the 188-pound lad from the Bay Shore Naval Training station. Wirts was injured in the Detroit game and Anderson got his chance. He has been first-string center ever since, and is sure to be in the lineup at Atlanta. He had his troubles against Larsen, the huge Navy center, but he was still in the game at the final whistle, while Larson had lost all his speed.

Two other stars of the Navy contest to be seen at Atlanta are Johnny McQuade and Jackie Maloney, picked for all-South Atlantic honors ever since coming to Georgetown. McQuade carried the ball in every play but one from the Navy's 40-yard line to its two-yard line last Saturday. This indicates his ability at rushing. He is strong as a bull, never tires and seldom loses his speed.

Maloney, who is a midget quarterback, kicked two field goals against the Middies, the first from the 18-yard line and the second from the 37-yard line. In practice he has frequently kicked goals from the 50-yard line, but never has succeeded yet in a game. If the Yellow Jackets stop Georgetown's rushing game, Maloney is certain to take a few peeks at their goal posts. Distance does not feaze him in the least.

Tech Primed for Work Handling Slick Ball; Now Due to Hit Stride

BOYS' HIGH ELEVEN PLAYS MONROE HI

Prep Classic Will Take Place at Ponce de Leon Park This Afternoon. Big Crowd Is Expected Out.

By Roy E. White.

Today is the classic of prep football, when Boys' High school will meet the Monroe Aggies at Ponce de Leon park, the game beginning at 3 o'clock. The usual admission price of 50 cents will be charged to see the contest.

The game will attract particular interest, due to the fact that John Staton, a brother of Albert Staton, who now wears a Jacket uniform, will lead the Purple and White eleven, while Barron, a brother of the famous "Red" Barron, of Tech, will lead the Aggies from Monroe.

Albert and "Red" played against each other as captains two years ago, and now they have left brothers who will lead their separate alma maters.

"Red" Barron said two years ago that he would be seen on the Tech team before many years, provided he was not killed or have a leg broken, and from the records he was right. Now the same tale may be told of his kid brother. Albert is much interested in his brother, also, for he gives him every pointer that he can. John also hopes to some day be on a college team.

These two youngsters may some day be playing side by side on some big college team.

Coach David, when approached on the subject of today's game, said that his team had been unable to practice more than once or twice this week, due to the circus having come to their practicing gorunds Monday night.

Even though the practice was short, it was the hardest of the season.

The hospital list of the Boys' High squad doesn't seem to get in any kind of condition to play. Mathewson will probably be able to play part of the game. Gordon is not much better, and will not be seen any more this season. Clark is also on the injured list for the rest of the season.

Coahe Tolbert, of G. M. A., failed to get a game scheduled for this week, and will have an off day. They have not given up practice, however, and are seen on the field late every day. They are trying to get in the best of shape for the game with the Junior Smithies Friday of next week.

Sinowitz is still suffering with a bad knee. He will be in the game with Tech High. The injuries to Sinowitz will be a severe blow to him and the G. M. A. team. He did not show up as well as was expected in the game with Boys' High, due to the injury.

After this afternoon's contest will come the game Saturday morning between Tech High and Central High, of Birmingham. The game is to be played at 10 o'clock at Grant field.

In Slough of Mud, Tornado Has Been Busily Preparing to Receive Hilltoppers — Hospital List Worrying.

George C. Griffin.

When it comes to practice at holding the ball the Jackets should be proficient in this detail Saturday, as they have had all the practice they could ask for in handling a slick ball while sliding around in the muck of Grant field all this week. Monday's work in this department was fierce; Tuesday's a little better, and on Wednesday more improvement was shown, but sometimes it seems as if the coaches will have to do what Coach Clay said he would do for his scrubs—put a handle on the ball to carry it around with.

With a driving bunch of football men like the Hill-topper, the old motto, "Follow the ball," will have to be worked overtime to pull the fat out of the fire. So the rain this week may prove a blessing in disguise to the Jackets. There has been no let-up this week in the way of scrimmage work, and the squad will, or ought to be, as well grounded in the fundamentals of the game as they could expect to be. Tech teams seem to hit their real stride about this time of the year and play their best football around Thanksgiving.

Fundamentals of the game is what Heisman stresses, and this is one department of the game in which northern teams outshine the south. In the north, with their big prep schools with hundreds of students and who are able to have good coaches, the game is drilled into the men from the very start, and those who make the teams at the eastern schools have been worked over to such an extent that the coaches do not have to start at the bottom as in the south, and make the man. Some of the best players Tech ever had never saw a football before entering college and were thus held back in their game for a year or so, while they dubbed on the scrub line.

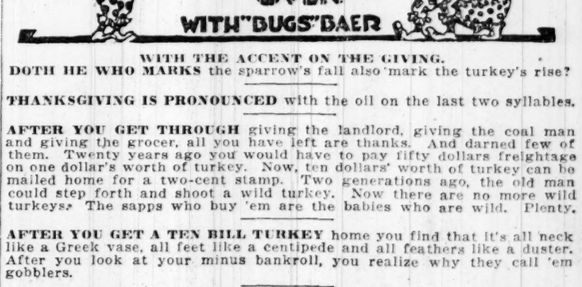

The Hospital List.

Again the Jackets are under the hatchet in the way of injuries. Huffines and Captain Phillips have been out of practice all week, Phillips not even appearing in uniform, while Huffines was able to run signals for the first time this week. Barron is still ailing, but he was able to take part in the signal drill yesterday. It is not probable that he will play Saturday.

Harlan was used in the first two scrimmages of the week and he should be Heisman's best bet for fullback in the game Saturday. With Huffines out, Heisman has another burden on his shoulders in finding some one to jam up that hole at tackle, and it is a merry scramble and cause of much worry as to who will play the place. McRae, Doyal and Lyman are all trying, but so far none seem to have the edge, and it is a merry scramble every afternoon as to who will scrimmage in this place. All three of these men are big huskies, tipping the scales around the 200-pound mark.

McQuade, Maloney and Anderson are three stars of the first water, and as for aggressiveness this man Anderson must be a wonder, winning a regular place over several men many pounds heavier.

On November 22, the off-day the Jackets have this season, Coach Clay will send his freshmen against the Auburn freshmen in their annual game, one which both teams look forward to with interest every year. As the scrub team at both schools is made up practically of freshmen it will be a chance to see how the big teams will stack up in their game on Thanksgiving.

WITH THE ACCENT ON THE GIVING.

DOTH HE WHO MARKS the sparrow's fall also mark the turkey's rise?

THANKSGIVING IS PRONOUNCED with the oil on the last two syllables.

AFTER YOU GET THROUGH giving the landlord, giving the coal man and giving the grocer, all you have left are thanks. And darned few of them. Twenty years ago you would have to pay fifty dollars freightage on one dollar's worth of turkey. Now, ten dollars' worth of turkey can be mailed home for a two-cent stamp. Two generations ago, the old man could step forth and shoot a wild turkey. Now there are no more wild turkeys. The sapps who buy 'em are the babies who are wild. Plenty.

AFTER YOU GET A TEN BILL TURKEY home you find that it's all neck like a Greek vase, all feet like a centipede and all feathers like a duster. After you look at your minus bankroll, you realize why they call 'em gobblers.

COOKING TURKEY IS FIFTY CENTS A POUND. Eating turkey is sixty. Turkey for hashing purposes only can be had for forty. It's so stringy that you have to thread it through a needle and eat it that way. Let us give thanks, brothers.

DON'T KNOW WHY THE TURK was picked out as the bird of thanks. Why not the auk, the passenger pigeon or some other bird that is easier to get?

THE PROFITEERS ARE TAKING a thick chance by leaving the wishbone in the turkey. If they don't break their legs it ain't the fault of the gent who gets the biggest half of the wishbone. Yea, bo.

THE OLD-FASHIONED TURKEY RAFFLES are still with us, but they've changed like the map of Mitteleuropa. In order to get a gobbler, you raffle off your steam piano, twin beds, automobile and the baby's shoes. A twenty dollar bird is too valuable to eat. It should be broken to harness and entered in the Grand Circuit sweepstakes.

YOU CAN'T FALL BACK on ganders, roosters or drakes. Duck is forty a throw, goose is forty-five a toss and chicken is fifty. The only thing you have to fall back on is your shoulder blade.

A BODY OF MEN THAT HAS BEEN GUESSING for over a century is sure to guess right once. When congress refuses to ratify the peace treaty, they're guessing right. The war ain't over yet. Not with turkey where it is. Which is where it shouldn't be. The rest of thee Thanksgiving dinner is stringing right along with the turk. There is only one stalk of celery in a bunch. A pair of cranberries cost eight dollars. You can get ten cents' worth of sugar on a Lincoln penny and still recognize Abe by his warts.

MINCE PIE. Even Conan Doyle can't claim there is a spirit message in that. The 1919 mince pie is a strip of Sahara with a crust on it.

DEPRIVING A GUEST who pays for a Thanksgiving dinner of his mince julep is like making a bird undergo a major operation without an anaesthetic.

UNLESS THE FOOD YEGGS RELENT, it looks as if any bird who forgets to bait the mouse trap ain't going to have any dinner on November 27th. Which is the date set for Thanksgiving, but may only turn out to be November 27th.

COULD NOT SLEEP EAT, NOR WORK

Old Soldier, Weakened and Feeble, Is Made to Forget His Age By Ziron Iron Tonic.

Many old people are hale and hearty because their blood is well supplied with a sufficiency of iron. Iron is needed by the system to help keep men and women strong and healthy, and iron is also often needed by the nerves, when jangled out of tune by the worries of every day life.

Mr. John Faulkner, of Augusta, Ga., took Ziron to supply the iron his system needed, and says:

"I want to tell the world that if people want something that will do them good, to take Ziron Iron Tonic. I can't praise Ziron too highly. I was so weak I could not sleep, nor eat, nor work. One bottle of Ziron put me right. I am an old Soldier, 70 years old, but I feel as young as I did 30 years ago."

And Ziron is not only good for old people, it is a valuable tonic for everybody, who needs iron, young as well as old. It should be tried by those who need iron to bring back their strength, by those who are pale, weak, run-down and can't sleep, eat or work. Try Ziron today.

Your druggist sells it on a money-back guarantee.—(adv.) ZN27

Will Princeton Play Be Stopped by Yale In Eastern Classic?

Tigers Have Shown the Most Dazzling and Brilliant Attack of Entire Season—Old Eli Will Have to Fight.

By Bill Roper.
(Princeton Coach.)

Can Yale stop Princeton's open play? The result of the game between these rivals will depend upon the answer.

In the Harvard game last Saturday, Princeton showed in the first quarter the most dazzling and brilliant attack I have seen this year. Strubing, Trimble and Garrity all gave splendid exhibitions in the backfield and ran rings around the Harvard team.

I felt practically certain that Harvard could not defeat Princeton. Harvard had played too easy a schedule for her own good, and the Crimson players entered the game in too optimistic a frame of mind. They were in for a fall and were very lucky to escape with a tie game.

Yale Situation Different.

The Yale situation is slightly different. Although they have not had a hard schedule, the team has not had easy sailing. The Boston college game did the Elis a lot of good, and they have come along pretty fast in the past two weeks.

They have been badly handicapped at New Haven all fall by injuries. Callahan played his only game in more than a month against Brown, and his presence on the team naturally did a world of good. Neville is also back again. He is a great running back. Thorne Murphy is out of it as far as the Princeton game is concerned. Allen did not play against Brown at end, because of injuries, but will be in the Princeton game.

The Princeton team has been developed along entirely different lines. The schedule of games has been terribly hard and the eleven has just weathered a championship contest. Fortunately no one was hurt, except for the usual number of bruises. There is bound to be somewhat of a let down for a couple of days, but the team came through the game without the sting of defeat, though everyone was tremendously disappointed at the outcome.

On the other hand, the experience of the Harvard game has seasoned the players. They have been tried under fire; this is a distinct advantage. Had the Princeton team been defeated by Harvard, in my opinion it would be hard to stiffen the morale of the players. Had they won, the germ of over-confidence might easily have gotten into the eleven. As the situation stands, though chagrined at the loss of the victory, which seemed so certain, they are in the frame of mind of a man who has suddenly realized his strength but has failed to make the most of it.

Princeton Is Handicapped.

Princton is handicapped by a lack of good substitutes, but the men are in such good condition that the first string, barring injuries, should play through the entire game.

It is difficult to compare the playing strength of the two teams. They have had no common opponent. The Yale combination will outweigh the Tigers by nearly twelve pounds a man. This is a decided advantage, and in addition they have much better substitutes. But the Princeton team is the best fighting aggregation I have ever seen. They held Colgate for downs on the two yard line and Harvard twice inside the ten.

The two Callahan brothers will meet at center, "Tim" on Yale and "Mike" on Princeton. "Tim" is two years older and 20 pounds heavier but he is handicapped by a strained tendon—no pleasant injury. "Mike" is quick and more aggressive. It will be a great fight with honors pretty nearly even.

Galt and Acosta will play guards for Yale, and Captain McGraw, Baker or Dickinson for Princeton. McGraw played a great game against Harvard. He is a much better guard than tackle and should hold his own with either of the Yale men. Baker came very fast last week and earned his place on the Princeton team, although there has been a great fight on this week between Baker, Dickinson and Morgan.

Galt and Acosta are experienced players and I pick the center trio of each team to play each other nearly to a standstill. The Elis have the weight. Baker and McGraw are faster down field.

Walker and Dickens will hold down the tackle positions for Yale, while with Keck's return to the game Princeton has three men of nearly equal ability, though of course Bigler and Parisette have not Keck's natural ability and general ruggedness. Dickens has been playing a great game at tackle for the Elis and is a better player than his running mate.

Bigler Is Aggressive.

Bigler is the most aggressive lineman on the Princeton team. If Keck is in shape, Princeton should have a shade of advantage. In Rheinhart and Allen, Yale has two good ends. Big ad rangy, they are equally clever down field or on defense. They will outweigh Davis and "Frosty" Williams, but the Princeton pair of ends are fighters of the first order. If the Yale ends outplay them they are exceptionally good.

In the line, from end to end, Princeton and Yale are evenly matched. Yale has more veterans and more weight, Princeton more aggressiveness.

Two real players will fight it out for the honors at quarter, Strubing and Kempton. Strubing made Murray, the touted Harvard captain, look sick. Kempton is a brilliant open-field runner and dodger and a good forward passer and punter. He has had a lot of experience. Personally, I would rather have Strubing, but one cannot discount Kempton's ability, which is of high order.

It looks as if Neville, Webb and Braden will start in the backfield for Yale. While Garrity, Trimble and Witmer will be found conducting the Tiger drive. Garrity and Braden will do the line breaking. Garrity is a great back and though not having Braden's experience, he does not lose anything by comparison. Witmer is a splendid defensive back, the best man at this sort of work on either team. He is not particularly good at interference.

Trimble, in my opinion, is a better back, as far as all around play goes, than Neville, though I don't discount the latter's ability for one minute. The Princeton backfield is faster and more proficient in the forward pass, while the Yale backs, as a whole, run harder in attack and are helped by their weight. The Yale line is harder charging, but lacks Princeton's natural aggressiveness.

I feel as I did last Saturday, that Princeton can hold its own, barring some lucky break. I don't believe the Yale backs can pierce the Princeton line like they did Brown and Maryland—and can the Yale team stop Princeton's open attack?

CAN YOU COUNT THE SHAKES IN A SPELL OF CHILLS?

Not a Pleasant Experiment, But the Coming Winter Will Bring the Trying Ordeal to Many.

Did you ever freeze one minute and shiver with a violence that caused your teeth to chatter—and then in an instant burn with a temperature that seemed like the very blood in your veins had turned to liquid fire?

If you have you know what chills and fever means. Influenza starts with a cold, sometimes accompanied by a chill and always by a high temperature. Frequently the victims of influenza develop pneumonia and in many instances the result is fatal. It has been said repeatedly that Spanish Influenza took more lives than German bullets. But Influenza in only one of the hundreds of winter ailments that are dreaded and should be guarded against. Disorders of the blood, liver, stomach and kidneys result in a weakened system that is easy prey to the germs of disease.

El Vigor is the prescription of Dr. R. L. Eaton, a physician of twenty-five years' active practice. It is particularly for the treatment of disorders of the blood, liver, stomach and kidneys.

Hundreds have testified that El Vigor has relieved them of rheumatism, constipation, auto-intoxication, dyspepsia, kidney disorders, sick headache, billiousness, nervousness, run-down condition, liver trouble and the various ailments that trace their origin to disorders of the blood, liver, stomach and kidneys.

El Vigor has no equal as a tonic to build up the system, set each organ functioning properly and aid the patient to throw off the attack of the many disorders that are prevalent in the winter.

El Vigor is sold in Atlanta by Chas. A. Smith Drug Company, Inman Park Pharmacy, McGahee's Pharmacy, Hammack Drug Company, Timothy & Buchanan, Brown Drug Company, Merritt's Drug Store, Irvin & Hill, Medlock's Pharmacy, Franklin Drug Company, Marshall's Pharmacies and by the leading druggists everywhere.—(adv.)

Jackson scored the high run of the day with an eight in the first inning.

Burke Seeks Reinstatement.

New York, November 13.—Seven applications for reinstatement in the Amateur Athletic union will be reviewed by the national registration committee at its meeting in Boston Sunday and finally passed upon by the board of governors Monday. Among the applicants is Patrick Burke, New Orleans, boxer.

News to McGraw.

A story was sent out of Boston the other day to the effect that the Braves soon would trade Shortstop Rabbit Maranville to the Giants for "a catcher, tw oinfielders and a heavy-hitting outfielder." When Manager McGraw was asked yesterday if there was any truth in the yarn, he replied: "It's all news to me. I never heard of such a proposition and it's too early to talk about baseball for next year!"

Maranville is a splendid fielder, but a weak hitter. Arthur Fletcher, the Giants' shortstop, seems good for at least one more season, and in view of his long and faithful service to the New York club it is generally believed that McGraw will keep him. The Maranville story would seem to indicate a busy winter for the baseball rumor factory!

Professional billiard players have moved into those high financial circles to which the income and other tax collections give special heed. This was revealed as Walker Cochrane, Koji Yamada and Jake Schaefer left New York for San Francisco to continue their play in the academy games there. Also some of the facts came to light as to the rumpus among some of the competitors just before the championship 18.2 balk line tournament, which threatened to disrupt it.

The three players named objected to a condition of the tournament agreement which provided for them going on tour for eighteen weeks of special exhibition competition throughout the country. They had been receiving in excess of $50 per day in the California academy. There was the certainty of higher pay and less exertion if they returned. In fact, with special lessons and private exhibitions, there was the surety of practically $600 a week apiece. All of which indicates that the top class billiard player is becoming one of the highest salaried artists devoted to sport.

Hoppe on Tour.

Willie Hoppe whose execution with the cue in holding the title indicated that he is in a class by himself, will go on tour from January to May. Probably Ora Morningstar will accompany him. Estimates vary, but it is conservatively regarded that the tour alone to net Hoppe about $15,000. In addition, the winning of the championship represents about $10,000, and so it seems likely that the young and masterful American is likely to get through without being unduly bothered by the old and well-known h. of l.

No secret was made of the fact that, with the exception of Hoppe, all of the American players are awaiting the opening of the academies in Paris to leave this country. The famous Olympia and other academies with their program of short games on which bettling is permitted offers a remunerative field for popular Americans. The usual arrangement is a salary and a percentage of the wagers, as all of the betting is conducted through commissionaires of the academy. Morningstar, who has had considerable experience in the Paris academies before the war, said that it was not at all difficult for an American to secure a sufficient number of private pupils, as the French are great lovers of billiards, so that all the income from the academy was "velvet."

Macon Mayor Attacks City Juvenile Court And School Lunches

Macon, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—That lunches served to children in the public schools are nothing more than trash and that the juvenile court of Bibb county "is the nearest thing to nothing Bibb county has," were two criticisms voiced by Mayor Glen Toole at a meeting of the Bibb county board of education today.

The mayor declared the ordinary lunches which the children are permitted to buy cause indigestion and put their stomachs in such condition that they will not eat their regular meals at home. It was brought out that candy and other things not considered nutritious food are being sold to the children.

In connection with his criticism of the juvenile court, of which Bridges Smith, former mayor, is judge, Mayor Toole said it is making criminals out of boys and that cases are not being followed up. Another former mayor, John T. Moore, defended the juvenile court and charged Mayor Toole with making misstatements.

PRIVATE REPORT AND MILL CONSUMPTION ESTIMATE

New York, November 13.—A private crop estimate of 10,400,000 bales had little or no effect on the cotton market. It was greatly depressed today, but a forecast placing domestic mill consumption for October at 531,000 bales against 441,354 last year, soon afterward encouraged fresh buying on reports that southern spot holders were refusing to follow the decline, and the market in the late trading was strong and excited, owing to the easier money rates.

New York, November 13.—A further decline during today's early trading was followed by a sensational rebound in the cotton market. About half of yesterday's losses were recovered and for the second day in succession the rule limiting fluctuations was brought into operation, as December sold up from 35.60 to 37.60, or 2 cents per pound from the low level of the morning, and 140 points above last night's closing figures.

That delivery closed at 37.45, with the general list closing firm at a net advance of 80 to 136 points, owing to the continued bullishness of spot and crop advices, and the improved tone of stocks and the money market.

The market opened easy at a decline of 21 to 56 points on the more active months and 115 points lower on August, owing to weakness in Liverpool and overnight selling orders. Reports of killing frosts in central and western belt sections failed to check selling at the start and the market soon showed net losses of 46 to 73 points, with January selling at 34.70 and May at 32.50.

Pressure slackened at this level, which represented a decline of about 300 to 400 points from recent high records, and the market turned firmer on trade buying, covering and rebuying by old longs, who had sold out earlier in the week.

SPOTS IN NEW YORK.

NEW ORLEANS RALLIES LATE IN AFTERNOON

New Orleans, November 13.—Cotton was weak on the opening today and fell off for declines of 42 to 50 points, but in the last half hour of trading pronounced strength developed and last prices were 91 to 112 points up, net on a very steady tone.

Closing prices were within a few points of the top. Early weakness was due to the carrying over of the selling movement of yesterday and the later strength was caused by a better feeling in the money market, by the refusal of spots to follow the decline in contracts, and by the extremely cold weather in the belt.

The opening slump was expected and was plainly due to overnight selling orders, which had accumulated with the commission houses. Just when the market looked very weak and predictions were going the rounds of further wide breaks to come, aggressive buying appeared for long account, based on freezing temperatures in the belt, and the market commenced to recover.

Yesterday's short sellers commenced to buy covers in a large way in order to realize profits and prices moved up to net advances. This upswing did not stop until the active months were 50 to 77 points over yesterday's close.

Then followed a period of nervous fluctuations, during which the market sank to small net declines again, but late in the day there was a rapid firming up to new high levels.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New York, November 13.—(Special.)—Additional liquidation was encountered at different times in today's market, but the tone was better and a rapid advance of over 100 points near the close was due to heavy covering and trade buying. Our interior advices depote that holders were withdrawing offerings on the decline and this helped to check the decline. We believe the market is well liquidated, but advise our friends to buy only on very sharp recessions.

J. W. JAY & CO.

New York, November 13.—(Special.)—Another sharp decline in the stock market brought further liquidation in our market and consequently a sharply lower opening. On the decline our mills were good buyers, calling cotton contracted for some time ago. The last of a large line of speculatively held cotton was sold in the early afternoon. A decided improvement took place in the stock market during the last hour, which caused short covering in our market, prices advancing quickly. A recovery such as took place today is quite normal and was to have been expected. As for the future, speculation has received a severe shock and it probably will be a long time before it recovers. That the action of the Federal Reserve bank in reducing the loans in the stock market will apply there alone seems improbable, for their object is to build up their reserve. To do so they must cause liquidation in all lines.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, November 13.—(Special.)—In a market as high as this and as broad as this it is but natural to expect cross-currents, for they will surely come. At the same time, it will be well to remember the present level is based on demand for actual cotton and demand is the only thing that counts. Planters will not be disturbed by reactions in the contract markets, for they know all things come to him who waits.

CLARK & CO.

New York, November 13.—(Special.)—With high money again this morning and further weakness in the stock market, cotton declined in sympathy therewith. With reports from the south that spot markets had not weakened and freezing temperatures over a large portion of the central and western belt, trade interests entered the market as large buyers on the decline. In the afternoon money rates declined from 16 to 6 per cent and buoyancy in the stock market followed. This also contributed to the strength of cotton. The decline in cotton yesterday and today was without consideration of cotton's intrinsic value. We believe that prices are still under the value of cotton and that higher prices are inevitable, although sharp swings both ways are probable.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

NEW ORLEANS LETTER.

New Orleans, November 13.—(Special.)—A very active market developed in cotton today, but on the opening weakness was displayed. The declines brought in aggressive support and wide advances were made. Nervous fluctuations followed, but late in the session the market moved strongly upward, closing at net advances of about a cent a pound. The buying was partly in the way of realizing by yesterday's short sellers and partly in the way of new long commitments based on favorable accounts from the spot department. Improvement in the money markets and the cold wave now passing over the belt and attended by frost and freezing. Official reports indicate that freezing temperatures were felt last night over a large part of the western division of the belt and the forecast calls for similar temperatures over a good part of the eastern division tonight.

DUGGAN & BOUDEN.

Cotton Seed Oil.

New York, November 13.—Following an early sharp dip under scattered liquidation, cotton seed oil firmed up on buying by the west and reinstating by recent sellers on account of the improvement in cotton and Wall street. The close was irregular, with prices 13 points higher to 30 points lower. The pit turnover was the heaviest since trading was resumed last spring, the total being 29,400 barrels. Tenders, 900 barrels. Prime crude, $19.00@20.00; prime summer yellow spot, $22.00; December, $22.15; March, 22.45; May, 22.50; prime winter yellow and summer white, $24.50, nominal.

Dry Goods.

New York, November 13.—Markets for cotton goods and yarns today were steady and more quiet. / English government linens in this country sold as freely as they could be allotted here.

The Atlanta division of the government army department has offered about 19,000,000 yards of cotton goods for sale.

STOCKS IN LONDON NERVOUS THURSDAY

(The Constitution—London Times—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

London, November 13.—The stock market opened nervously today, chiefly as the result of heavy declines in Wall street. There was disinclination to increase commitments and most markets remained dull and inactive throughout. Oil shares were notably weak at the close. Prices gave way further in market for gilt edge securities, but the tendency appeared to be a shade steadier in later dealings. Grand Trunk stocks rallied slightly on the whole. United of Havana advanced on an increased dividend, and there were buyers of shipping shares.

Floating supplies of credit were somewhat larger and market conditions were easier in the afternoon, money being offered at rates ranging down to 3¾ per cent. Discounts were firm and the market was described as "very stticky," banks not being buyers of any but very short bills. There was recovery in New York exchange, which closed at $4.13 3-9. The franc improved both in Paris and Brussels. German marks declined further. Appreciable recovery took place in lire and Scandinavian rates moved in our favor.

MATERIAL GAIN IN CORN MARKET

Rise Based on Better Stock Tone and Scarcity of Rural Offerings. Oats Advanced and Provisions Varied.

Chicago, November 13.—Corn advanced in price today, strengthened by the upward movement of the New York market and by scarcity of rural offerings.

The close was firm at 1½ to 2⅛ cents net higher and with December $1.32¼ to $1.32½ and May $1.26¼ to $1.26½. Oats gained 1⅛ 1⅛ to 1½@1⅝ cents. The outcome in provisions varied from 12 cents decline to a rise of 22 cents.

It was not until after midday that the corn market showed substantial gains. At the opening some weakness was evident owing to uncertainty over money rates and to the fact that the weather was ideal for husking. Signs, however, that declines in the price of corn had begun to curtail fresh supplies from the country led to a rally.

Then the market gave way under free selling by houses with eastern connections, but after midday the bulls obtained renewed control and during the remainder of the session the upward tendency of corn values acquired constantly increasing vigor.

Oats paralleled the action of corn. Toward the last there was active buying of May delivery on orders from the east.

Provisions were firm most of the time in sympathy with grain strength. Packers bought, and lower quotations on hogs received little notice.

Liquidation on Exchange Has About Run Course

BY R. L. BARNUM

(The Constitution-Philadelphia Public Ledger Service. Copyright, 1919.)

New York, November 13.—For the time being liquidation of the stock exchange has run its course. What will happen from now on to the end of this year depends entirely on the attitude of those who are tied up in pool and underwriting syndicates. During the early trading today there was heavy buying of stocks for the account of some very large and important Wall street people. Obviously these buyers are of the belief that the upward movement in prices can be resumed. Such expectations may be realized. It is safe to predict, however, that if the stock market during the balance of this year again gets active on a rising scale of prices, money will again get scarce and yesterday's performance will be repeated.

Call money opened today at 16 per cent against yesterday's 14 per cent. But today's demand was very light and the rate dropped in the last hour to 6 per cent, a number of large stock exchange houses which only a few days ago, before the violent liquidation began, were bidding frantically for call money, are now lenders of money on call.

Time money, however, remains high. Bids were made today as high as 8 per cent, with practically no loans being made. Brokers in search of time money were willing to pay even more than 8 per cent, but were told that no time funds were available.

Strong Holds Conference.

Benjamin Strong, governor of the Federal Reserve bank here, went to Washington last night to hold a conference today with members of the federal reserve board. Beyond a shadow of a doubt the position of the Federal Reserve bank here, as well as that of the Wall street banks and trust companies lending money on stock exchange collateral, has been greatly strengthened by the liquidation which began last Saturday, that the last week American Linseed sold at 89, the low price yesterday was 70, today it was 68.

American Locomotive dropped from 117¼ to 91½; American Tobacco from 314½ to 251⅝; American Woolen from 149⅞ to 113; Baldwin from 156¼ to 106; Chandler from 141¼ to 90; Crucible from 261 to 210; General Motors from 406½ to 280.

To carry these and other industrial stocks on a margin at the high prices recently touched called for an enormous amount of bank credit. Since last Saturday prices have not only declined an average of 50 points for the active shares, but countless speculative accounts have been closed. The result will be a favorable showing in next Saturday's bank statement.

Wall Street Gossip.

Cigars and telephones were in great demand in Wall street today. At times it took at least fifteen minutes to get a downtown telephone number. Brokers and their clients were holding post mortems. A trader who loses paper profits gets sore. One who loses paper profits and margins gets mad. Most of the losses for the past few days were paper profits.

Very heavy trading occurred today in United States government bonds, new low records for the year being shown for the fourth 4¼s and Victory 4¾s. A large part of this selling was for the accounts of traders in the stock market who received overnight calls for additional margins on their stock transactions.

Including odd lots which were not reported on the tape, yesterday's turnover on the stock exchange was more than three million shares. It was the first three million share day since December 21, 1916, when the turnover was 3,095,850 shares. That day marked the end of the wild war order speculation in the industrial stocks.

Steel Shows Advance.

Today's opening showed, compared with last night's closing, an advance of 1 point in United States Steel common, 1½ in American Locomotive, 1¾ in Baldwin, 9 in Mexican Petroleum, 15 in General Motors. Crucible was down 3 points. Besides the stock last named, Studebaker, Baldwin and a few others sold lower during the early trading today than yesterday. Around 1 o'clock a natural recovery started which carried U. S. Steel up 3¼ points from the low price of the day. American International 514, American Locomotive 6½, Baldwin 11⅝, Crucible 18, General Motors 45. In conservative banking circles the belief was expressed that the recovery from yesterday's low prices might run even further. But it was added that such a movement would possibly be followed by a secondary decline.

Wall street's eyes are still fixed upon money as the touchstone of the market. In brokerage circles opinion is well-nigh unanimous that the market cannot resume its advance in the face of tight money. The more conservative houses take little stock in the foolish talk of a "banking conspiracy to break the market," and of the federal reserve having failed to "function." The truth of the matter is that the federal reserve functioned with deadly effect. One of the purposes of its establishment was to regulate the money market and a break in the stock market may be, unfortunately, an incident in such regulations. Students of the stock market have about concluded that their most reliable indicator of future conditions will be the weekly statements of the reserve banks, and especially of the New York institution.

"Good" Buying in Market.

Browers reported this morning that unmistakably "good" buying had come into the market in the midst of yesterday's break. A big international house which is known to act for some of Wall street's shrewd bankers of the younger generation purchased a considerable amount of stock, for the first time in many weeks. The consensus of conservative opinion, is, however, that the market is still far from liquidated, if by that term is meant pools, underwriting syndicates and holders who had big profits and who were seeking to dodge the income tax had sold out. A great mass of this sort of holding is still undisturbed, which still leaves it a vital question, whether realizing sales will be made next January when the tax rate is reduced.

At today's low prices U. S. government bonds were selling at prices offering income returns of from 3.47 per cent to 5.36. The figure first named was for the first 3½s. Both the second and third 4¼s offer more than 5 per cent.

Fluctuations in General Motors on the advance were followed shortly after noonday was violent as the decline of yesterday. Selling as low as 280½ during the forenoon, the stock got as high as 325 in the afternoon, being an advance of 40 points from the closing level of yesterday. That the large interests were badly pinched by the decline in this stock is indicated by the movement since Monday, in which time it recorded a decline of 126½ points. So urgent was the liquidation on the stock market that the managers of one pool were forced to sell their stock and demand immediate payment. This accounts for the numerous "cash" sales which appeared on the tape during the forenoon. This means that the sellers can demand payment at once rather than wait until tomorrow. This sort of selling is generally expensive, as the sales in many cases were made at from 1 to 2 points below the market.

Call Money Back Normal, Stock Market Rebounds

Break Came in Final Hour and List Closed at Material Gain—General Motors and Mexican Petroleum Led Recovery.

New York, November 13.—When call money rates broke to 6 per cent in the final hour of trading today the stock market rebounded from its low levels and closed at appreciable advances throughout the list. Trading was heavy before the closing and many stocks, notably motors, oils, steels, equipments, affiliated industrials and a score of miscellaneous specialties showed gains for the day of from 5 to 20 points.

Rates for call loans held at 16 per cent until about 2 o'clock. Then they broke to 12 and rapidly went to 6, the normal rate. This was believed to mark the passing of the stringent money period. Leaders in the spirited rally which followed were the issues which broke most severely yesterday and the day before.

The market was steadier at the opening today, but the initial high rates for call money caused an avalanche of selling in the next hour or two. Factors which contributed to the lower rates were the lending of money by brokers who offered their surplus funds, and announcement from Washington that the federal reserve board had taken no action on credit conditions here.

One of the leaders of the spirited rally was General Motors, which opened at a 15-point rise only to lose its advantage and finally advanced by leaps and bounds to 325, an extreme recovery of 45 points. Mexican Petroleum, in which support seemed almost altogether lacking yesterday, rose more than 30 points.

The extent to which the short interest involuntarily participated in the rebound by covering of contracts is naturally a matter of debate, but the market's recuperative power suggested that no small part of the recent reversal was due to bearish aggression.

Trading in bonds was confusing, recessions in industrials being balanced by the strength of rails. Liberty issues made up part of their early heaviness. Total sales, par value, totaled $17,850,000. Old United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Sugar.

New York, November 13.—The market for old crop sugar was unchanged at 7.28 for centrifugal to the refiner. New crops were unchanged, with no further purchases.

The market for refined sugar was unchanged at 9 cents for fine granulated. There was little, if any, in the situation, with buyers still finding it difficult to obtain sugar, although the committee is allowing it as fast as possible in order to equalize the distribution.

Coffee.

New York, November 13.—The market for coffee futures was much less active after yesterday's heavy liquidation, but showed continued nervousness and fluctuations were very irregular. The opening was 2 to 13 points lower under further scattering liquidation and March sold off to 16.20 right after the call, or 20 points below last night's closing figures. Lower milreis prices in Brazil encouraged the selling, but trade interests were moderate buyers and there were rallies to 16.55 for March and May during the middle of the day, with active months selling 15 to 20 points net higher. This met renewed liquidation notwithstanding the improved tone of the market and the close was 16.19 for both March and May, with the general list 12 to 23 points net lower. Closing bids: December, 16.04; January, 16.08; March and May, 16.19; July, 16.18; September, 16.04.

The spot market was neglected at 17c for Rio 7s and 26¾ to 26¾c for Santos 4s. Very few cash offers were reported in from Santos. Rio 7s were offered at 18.80 to 19, London credits, and Victoria 7s and 8s at 16¾, American credits.

The early cable reported a decline of 200 reis in the Rio spot market and of 100 to 225 reis in Santos futures. Later special cables were received reporting a rally of 25 to 150 reis in futures, but Santos 7s were quoted 500 reis below the last quotation in the spot market. Brazilian port receipts, 30,000; Jundiahy receipts, 8,000.

No Sweeter Story Ever Told Than in "Maytime" at Atlanta

Do you enjoy a romance, sweet-scented with the perfumes of lavender, lilac and heartsease? Do you like to revel in the tender stories of long ago? In the delicate memories of the days when the grandfathers and grandmothers of the present age plighted their troth beneath the shade of the willows and buried their hopes and secrets beneath the tender roots of young apple trees, planted in the first flush of their young love?

If you do, you simply must see "Maytime" at the Atlanta theater for the rest of the week. For some unknown reason the audience last night did not come near to packing the theater, which it should have done. For never has a sweeter story been more delightfully staged and acted, and never has lovelier music come to us via the legitimate stage.

From the moment when the orchestra—it is considerably augmented for the engagement, by the way, and is very good—played the first bars of the overture, it was evident that a very charming performance was to come. And when the curtain rose on the first scene, a garden in New York in the days of 1840, realization completely fulfilled anticipation and from that moment on there was nothing but pure delight.

The story covers three generations. The first, which tells of the love of the Ottilie Van Zandt and the Richard Wayne of 1840, is the prelude to a story of disappointed loves that, despite its sadness, is yet filled with a gem of old lace, of crinolines and daguerrotypes that warms the soul with its reminiscence of the "good old times." Of our forefathers lived as beautifully as such romantic stories depict, it is a shame that the twentieth century ever had to come.

Then, through four acts, the story progresses, stage by stage, until in the final scene the time is in the New York of today. And the grandchildren fulfill in their lives the happiness that was denied to their grandparents.

Incidentally, if a moral was intended, the moral does not speak very creditably for the present day manners. Maybe it is true, at that.

Of the many beautiful musical numbers, "Road to Paradise," which recurs throughout, is probably the prettiest. Another song which comes back time and again throughout the performance is "Will You Remember," an oldtime love song that provides the motif for the entire play. Probably the best remembered by last night's audience is "Jump, Jim Crow." Said song, by the way, is supposed to mark the horror which the good people of the 1850s felt at the introduction of the "horribly immoral dance, "The Polka!"

John Hayes, who appears in the first act as a gypsy singer, and in the second as "Signor Vivalla," Italian tenor, has a really remarkable voice and won encore after encore for his work.

The principals, Eileen Van Biene and Worthe Faulkner, gave performances that stood supremely forth as superior to nine out of ten of the best musical show principals ever seen here. They can both sing and are finished actors.

There were many other clever performances on the part of individual members of the cast, but space forbids mention of all. Harry B. Lester, as Mathew Van Zandt, presented an example of finished acting in every scene that is, sadly enough, becoming a rarity today. He provided the main portion of the comedy and was always good.

The dancing of Carmenita Fernandez in the second act was good. Likewise was the performance of Marguerite Van Keys in the fourth act. Lily Kenyon did a very delightful bit as "Angelica" in the second, while Isabel Vernor presented a charming appearance as "Alice Tremaine."

Two "bits" that stand out in the memory are the performances of Ben Probst and Alfred Hemming, the first as "P. T. Barnum" and the second at "The Auctioneer."

The chorus is unsually pretty and in the costumes of the different periods provides piquant setting for the scenes.

The scenery itself is prettiness in the extreme.

All in all, it is undoubtedly the most charming musical show seen here for a long, long time, and is so essentially "different" as to compel the utmost admiration from a reviewer.

RALPH T. JONES.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Lyric.)

Cahill and Romaine had 'em all laughing and applauding at the Lyric theater yesterday afternoon and last night. This pair of funmakers, in blackface and tan, give a performance that could hardly be improved upon.

Most of the acts of this character offer a straight and a comedian, but in this case both men are funny. Both have good opportunities and make the best of them.

What makes it even better is that there is such a variety of amusement features combined in one act. And when their time is over, they find it hard to leave the stage, for everybody seems to want just a little bit more.

The headline number presents a colorful picture of Venetian life, with elaborate scenic effects. There are seven gypsy characters, three men and four women, and all have voices better than the ordinary.

Adrian furnishes an oddity in comedy, songs and surprises; the three Genii, three women gymnasts, do well their part on swinging bars and rings, and Brown and Darby are good enough in "Happy Days."

Loew Vaudeville.

(At the Grand.)

An entertaining and well-balanced bill of five vaudeville acts is provided in the mid-week change of bill at Loew's Grand. Those who enjoy music as rendered on the steel string guitar will find the musical offering of Steve Freda one far above the average. The guitar is one of the hardest of musical instruments to master, but in the hands of Steve Freda it is wonderfully responsive. Rarely does a performer visit Atlanta with his ability on this instrument.

McGrave and Doyle have a humorous skit entitled "Motoring Difficulties" that abounds in clever lines. The scene setting is a unique representation of a gasoline filling station where a motorcyclist arrives to find a pretty girl in charge of the business. The dialogue runs through a strain of modern satire and gets a lot of laughs.

Tyler and St. Clair open the show with a pleasing selection of classical and popular music on the xylophone and introduce a number of syncopated melodies.

Downing and Bunin have a neat dancing and singing offering and the Spartans close the bill with sensational balancing.

Dustin Farnum in "A Man's Fight" is featured on the screen and is at his best in a part somewhat different from that usually assigned to him. The Loew weekly shows some interesting scenes of submarines sinking merchant vessels.

Alexander, "The Man Who Knows."

(Coming to Atlanta Theater.)

Perhaps the most skeptical of all scientists are the professors of psychology. It is practically an impossibility to get these learned gentlemen to accept anything that does not coincide with their own personal views. So when it is taken into consideration that Alexander, "The Man Who Knows," has successfully withstood all of the most vigorous tests, it is quite apparent that his demonstrations along psychic lines are worthy of consideration. Alexander, who will sponsor his own show of wonders, an organization of pretentious proportions, for an engagement of one week at the Atlanta theater, commencing Monday night, November 17, has for several years been a much discussed individual. He has won renown for his scientific efforts in his famed Simla seance, or crystal gazing, for it is in this that he has baffled those of the world of science, answering as he does hundreds of questions that have been written in the privacy of the office or home, in any language, and brought to the theater sealed in any formidable container the writer may wish. Aside from this more scientific portion of the program there are offered in the opening part new and original magical feats, novelties seen in the Occident for the first time, while the second allows for the introduction of Oriental dance creations by Lillian Marion and the Nartell Twins, foremost exponents of the seductive dances of the Far East. The third, and closing, is given over the seances and advanced test work. A special souvenir matinee for the ladies only is announced for Friday, and the regular matinees for the general public on Wednesday and Saturday. Seats are now on sale.

Elsie Janis.

(At the Criterion.)

Elsie Janis, who is featured this week at the Criterion in "A Regular Girl," has scored a flattering hit with patrons of that theater. Her work in this picture demonstrates the fact that she is an actress of unusual ability and the role she plays is one for which she is especially well fitted. The entire production is on a lavish scale and is a picture that is interesting from start to finish. The supporting cast is all that could possibly be wished. Added features on the week's program are Miss Ruby Hollingsworth, soprano; the Criterion orchestir, Dave Love, conductor; Fox News, and an amusing Mutt and Jeff comedy.

Harry Carey.

(At the Tudor.)

"The Rider of the Law," the vivid western drama in which Harry Carey has been starring all this week, will be shown for the last time at the Tudor theater Friday and Saturday, together with the novel two-reel dog comedy, "The Eternal Triangle." Harry Carey was never better than in "The Rider of the Law." His leading lady is pretty little Gloria Hope, and he is supported by an all-star cast, including the famous Harry Carey squadron of cowpunchers.

"23 1-2 Hours' Leave."

(At the Strand.)

Douglas McLean and Doris May, the new Ince stars, are rounding out today and tomorrow a week of the smartest little comedy bit of the season at the Strand, "23½ Hours' Leave," from The Saturday Evening Post story by Mary Roberts Rinehart. A steady pressure of "business" indicates better than anything else the popularity of this sprightly little comedy, put on with all the care and thought that characterizes the Ince productions, and giving Mr. McLean and Miss May their first chance at starring.

Fatty Arbuckle.

(At the Rialto.)

Big business continues steadily at the Rialto, where Fatty Arbuckle and Vivian Reed in a bill of as widely separated intent as the avoirdupois of the two stars. Mr. Arbuckle holds down his end of the show with "Back Stage," and includes in the cast a heavy villain of almost equal weight with himself. Few of his many admirers would have fancied he could be as acrobatic as in this picture. Miss Martin in "The Third Kiss" does a fine piece of acting, supported by a good company.

"A Sagebrush Hamlet."

(At the Vaudette.)

William Desmond, a proper type of gunman in a good cause, appears today and Saturday at the Vaudette in "A Sagebrush Hamlet," with a system of philosophy that has its foundation on steady nerves and a quick trigger finger—and real manhood, too. The plot is nothing extraordinary—it doesn't have to be, with the action that William puts into it. But it is a good, strong piece of the western type and there is some new stuff in the way of gunplay in it. One of those Sennett comedies goes in the same bill.

DOROTHY GISH OPENS IN A ROUSING COMEDY

The peculiar talents of Miss Dorothy Gish never were given more scope than in her newest release, "Turning the Tables," at the Forsyth today and tomorrow. It really is a pity this amazing comedy could not have been booked for a full week—it deserves a good, long run wherever shown.

The plot is too involved for verbal description. It includes spooks and crooks, lovers and lunatics, charming garden scenes and a screamingly funny effort at escape from an asylum with the versatile Miss Gish dangled about like a frog at the end of a long pole several stories from the earth.

Dorothy is a poor little rich girl whose aunt tries to get her fortune away from her to give to a fortune-teller. She has poor Dorothy put in an asylum, where she promptly converts the keepers into the craziest of the inmates and mixes things up in an excrutiating manner. She changes places with a trained nurse—much against the latter's will—and restores her sweetheart to so much health that he licks a prize-fighter in a first-class scrap. They wind up by kidnaping a stray preacher and escaping over the wall of the "sanitarium" like a troup of gymnasts.

OFFERS TO MARKET LOCAL GOODS ABROAD

A letter has been received at the Atlanta chamber of commerce from a Belgian brokerage firm, requesting the names of Atlanta manufacturers wishing to develop foreign trade on the continent.

The letter, written from G. Vitse & Cie, 54-56 Rue Gallait, Brussels, states that should the company be unable to handle the article themselves they will market it through their connections in all parts of the continent.

KIWANIANS TO FORM CLUB IN LAGRANGE

LaGrange will be the third city to have a Kiwanis club, members of the Atlanta club attending the first meeting there tonight to perfect the organization of the club.

Atlanta and Rome are the only Kiwanis clubs now existing in Georgia, but the LaGrange club is starting off with a charter membership of thirty-four, which is expected to spread until within a short time every city and town of any importance in the state will include one.

Henry C. Heinz, president of the Atlanta club; R. S. Wessels, district governor for Georgia; Dr. Sam Green and Frank T. Reynolds left Atlanta last night to organize the club.

REV. E. H. CROWLEY DIES

Brother of W. V. Crowley, Atlanta Banker.

Rev. E. H. Crowley, 31 years old, pastor of the Clayton, Ala., Baptist church, a son of B. M. Crowley, Omaha, Ga., died in a hospital in Birmingham yesterday.

Rev. Crowley is survived by his wife and one daughter, mother and father, one brother and two sisters. He was a brother of W. V. Crowley, cashier of the Citizens' and Southern bank, of Atlanta.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

WILSON IS THINKING OF ANNUAL MESSAGE

Washington, November 13.—President Wilson is giving some thought now to his annual message to congress next month, it was said today at the white house. He probably will begin actual work on it within a few days, but whether he will write it himself or dictate it to a stenographer will depend upon the condition of his health.

CANNON FORBES SUED BY GIRL FOR $100,000

New York, November 14.—(Special.)—Asking $100,000 for breach of promise, Miss Laura Sligh, of this city, has filed suit against Cannon Forbes, of this city and Atlanta. Miss Sligh sets out in her suit that Forbes has wasted the best years of her life and that now, after she has waited for him six years, writes her that both are in the prime of life and can stand disappointments.

BERGER NOMINATED BY THE SOCIALISTS

Milwaukee, Wis., November 13.—Socialists of the Fifth Wisconsin congressional district have nominated Victor L. Berger as the party candidate at the special election December 19 to fill the vacancy caused by the house of representatives' refusal to seat Berger on his certificate of election obtained a year ago.

The Burmese woman has the pirvilege of appearing in law courts to represent her husband.

RACES IN BATTLE AT WILMINGTON

Trouble Caused by Killing of One Policeman and the Wounding of Another by Negroes.

Wilmington, Del., November 13.—Rioting between whites and negroes broke out here tonight, following the killing of one policeman and the wounding of another by negroes whom they were questioning regarding a recent robbery.

Angered by the double shooting, bands of whites roamed the streets tonight. A clash occurred when three hundreed suddenly came upon four negroes. Both sides opened fire, and Bannel Field, a negro, fell, with a wound in the head.

The whites then closed in on the other negroes, who were saved only by the prompt arrival of police. The patrolmen used their clubs freely, while the three negroes, breaking away, fled. Later police reserves were ordered to patrol th negro quarter and break up gatherings.

Meanwhile the negroes alleged to have been implicated in the shooting of the two policemen were taken from the jail in which they had been placed and sent to Philadelphia under heavy guard because of fear by the police that an attempt might be made to lynch them.

GRADY HOSPITAL WILL GET SUGAR FROM SAVANNAH

Quick action by Senator William J. Harris following the appeal of Steve R. Johnston, superintendent of Grady hospital, has resulted in the sugar boards sending telegraphic orders to a Savannah refinery to furnish the Atlanta hospital with sugar.

Although the situation at Grady has never been desperate, it has been necessary to use brown sugar, and the relief promised by the information received by Mr. Johnson from Senator Harris on Thursday will materially assist. Mr. Johnston wired to the senator a few days ago, when he saw the possibility of a serious shortage at the hospital, and almost immediately he was assured of a steady supply.

STOLEN MACHINE HITS SMALL HOUSE AND IS CAPTURED

A large touring car was being held at police headquarters at an early hour this morning pending the identification of the owner.

It is said the car was stolen from in the front of the Auditorium last night while the Budd-Avera boxing contest was in progress. The thief, who has not been apprehended, was speeding out Hendrix avenue with the car when it evidently became uncontrollable. It crashed headlong into a small house on Hendrix avenue near the Southern shops. Two pillars were knocked from under the front of the house, and the car was considerably smashed up.

The last reports from police headquarters were that the car had not been claimed by anyone.

Atlanta Women Will Watch Naturalization Ceremony on Friday

The first of its kind in Atlanta, a naturalization committee, will watch the naturalization ceremony that will be conducted in Judge Newman's court this morning at 10 o'clock, in which several foreigners will be examined as to their capabilities for American citizenship.

Mrs. David Woodward, regent of the Atlanta chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, recently appointed the Americanization committee. The chapter, of which she is regent, is the oldest in Atlanta, and the second oldest in the United States. Mrs. James L. Logan is chairman of the committee, and the objects of the organization are to take such an active interest in the foreign-born people that come to Atlanta that their friendliness will be won, and the tendency toward strict loyalty to American ideals and customs will be won.

The various elements of foreign-born citizens that Atlanta possesses are looked after by organizations of their own in most cases, there being many in Atlanta who cannot speak English.

The Jewish Alliance looks after the welfare and patriotic education of the large numbers of Russian and Spanish Jews that are here, and the Greek and Syrian colonies have their own churches. The Presbyterian churches of Atlanta have taken an active inteerst in the Americanization of the latter.

Members of this new committee who will attend the naturalization ceremonies upon special invitation of the court are Mrs. David Woodward, Mrs. Charles F. Rice, Mrs. Willis Timmons, Mrs. Lollie Bell Wylie, Mrs. Drury Powers, Miss Cora Brown, Mrs. Ben Wylie and others.

FINE TICKET SALE FOR PERFORMANCE OF VATICAN CHOIRS

Ever since the ticket sale for the single performance here at the auditorium armory on Wednesday, November 19, there has been a long line of people waiting for a chance to buy seats for the vatican choirs.

This will be the first time in 1600 years that this organization has been heard outside of Rome, coming now with the blessings of the Pope. It is admitted to be the finest choir in the world today and thousands are anxious to hear these superb singers. Seats on sale at the Cable Piano company.

ALLIES DISPLEASED BY RUMANIA'S NOTE

Paris, November 13.—The supreme council today discussed the note to be sent to Rumania in response to Rumania's recent note. The allied reply, it is forecast, will be firm in tone, the Rumanian note being regarded as evasive and unsatisfactory—notably so as concerned the demand for the evacuation of Hungary by the Rumanians. The allied note will be forwarded to Bucharest within two days.

The report received from Sir George Clerk, the allied commissioner to Budapest, was considered as showing that political conditions in Hungary were much improved and that there were indications of a coalition government being organized shortly in Budapest with which the peace conference could deal.

Another subject taken up by the council was the elections recently held in Silesia. A note to Germany was framed advising it to disregard these elections. A note was sent to Germany warning the Berlin government that the sale of Germany aviation material is a violation of the armistice and will not be tolerated.

To persevere is one's duty and be silent is the best answer to calumny.—George Washington.

DIXIE SASH, DOOR AND MILL WORK MAKERS CONVENE

Forty-five members, representing all southern states, were in session Thursday at the Piedmont hotel, at the annual convention of the Southern Sash, Door and Mill Work Manufacturers' association.

The reports of the members showed that the building operations of the past year necessitated the running of their mills to full capacity.

Several addresses were heard, all of which were filled with optimism, and expectations of big business, good prices, and relief in the labor situation.

William Otis, of Columbia, S. C., is president, and Charles Harman, of Atlanta, is secretary of the association.

DRAINAGE CONGRESS TO MEET IN ATLANTA

Edmund T. Perkins, of Chicago, Unanimously Re-Elected President.

St. Louis, November 13.—Atlanta was chosen as the next convention city for the National Drainage congress, at its closing session here today. Edmund T. Perkins, of Chicago, was unanimously re-elected president of the organization. The treasurer, secretary and board of directors will be chosen by the executive committee.

TRAINS SUSPENDED TO BALK BOLSHEVIKI

Coblenz, November 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—The suspension of passenger traffic in the interior of Germany until November 15, was a master stroke of Gustave Noske, minister of defense, to handicap threatened bolshevik outbreaks, according to information in the hands of the American authorities here. Reports from various sources reaching Coblenz confirm this belief.

Despite the announcement from Berlin that train service was suspended because of the scarcity of coal through Germany, and that the curtailment of this service would help to save coal, the real reason for cancelling passenger traffic, it is declared, was due to the determination of Noske and other governmental authorities to eliminate, as far as possible, the danger of a repetition of the events of ayear ago, when the revolutionists used trains out of Kiel and other cities and traveled quickly to points where outbreaks had been planned.

Precautions have been taken by the Americans, British, French and Belgians in the occupied areas, but actually no trouble of any nature is expected. All meetings of a political nature, or having a tendency in any way to excite the radicals, have been prohibited by the Americans until after November 20.

The Coblenz newspapers have also been prohibited from discussing the revolution of 1918, or its results, the German editors, apparently, agreeing with the Americans that perhaps it was best to try to forget.

TEN GEORGIA MEN ENLIST IN ATLANTA FOR ARMY SERVICE

At the army recruiting station ten men were accepted yesterday. They are as follows: George Simpkins, Albany, Ga.; Carl P. Ragsdale, Cartersville, Ga.; Cliney Buchanan, Glester, Ga.; Fred Black, Cleveland, Ga.; John W. McCoy, Cartersville, Ga.; Leon Bumpers, Columbus, Ga.; Lee A. Stone, Rome, Ga.; Abraham E. Centralia Outrage May Spur Congress To Act on Bills

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, November 13.—In the general realization that the existing federal laws are inadequate to properly deal with the present I. W. W. menace, the mere matter of deportation being only a partial remedy, it is interesting to note that there are today pending in this republican congress 52 bills which were drafted to give the government all the authority needed to deal with the bolsheviki, anarchists and other anti-American organizations now operating in this country.

There is nothing to indicate the early passage of any of these laws, although it was predicted in some quarters today that the Centralia outrage would spur congress to quick action. Attorney General Palmer has urged some of these measures with all of the persistency at his command, and pointed out in advance the possibility of just what occurred in Washington state. It is a shame upon the party responsible that only state laws can deal with a situation such as confronts the nation in Washington. The laws governing sedition and conspiracy at sedition, with their penalties, are as child's play in dealing with such thugs and murderers as now threaten the country under the red banner of bolshevism, and yet the lack of proper legal punishment is traceable to one and only one responsible source.

AIRMAN RUDD KILLED WHILE TRYING TO LAND

Temple, Texas, November 13.—Lieutenant Charles Rudd, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Rudd, of this place, was killed near Stockton, California, early today in an airplane accident while trying to make landing according to a message received here by relatives. Lieutenant Rudd was a star football player on the Rice Institute team at Houston in 1916 and 1917. He was stationed at San Diego.

1919 A LOSING YEAR FOR THE METHODISTS

Richmond, Va., November 13.—Gains made among Catholics, Jews and Protestants in America last year were more than 500,000 fewer than those of 1916 and the Methodist church in this country actually lost slightly, according to a statement made tonight by the Rev. Dr. Edgar Blake, one of the leaders of the denomination, in speaking to the Virginia conference now in session in Centenary church.

Brunswick Politics.

Brunswick, Ga., November 13.—(Special.)—City politics are warming up considerably just at present, and what at first appeared would be rather a mild campaign promises to be quite a spirited one, but it will be short, as the city primary will be held next Tuesday. There are seven candidates for the four aldermanic places to be nominated, there being two candidates from each ward, except the fourth. The candidates are: First ward, T. E. Hampton, P. C. Wood; second ward, M. L. McKinnon, M. J. Gordon; third ward, Sam E. Brown, C. A. Averitt; fourth ward, Jasper Harvey.

Lever Act Would Not Be Used Against Labor, He Claims Was Promise.

Washington, November 13.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, today reiterated his charge that former Attorney General Gregory had given union leaders assurance in 1917 that the conspiracy provisions of the Lever food and fuel control act would not be used against organized labor.

Mr. Gompers flatly asserted that Mr. Gregory virtually promised federation officials that United States district attorneys would be instructed not to apply the act to the workers. A. Mitchell Palmer, the present attorney genral, announced recently that not record of such instructions could be found in the files of the department of justice, and Mr. Gregory's only comment has been that he did not remember distinctly yhat was said and done on the subject at that time. Mr. Gompers' statement follows:

Gregory Denies Promise.

"Now comes former Attorney General Gregory, who says that he did not give assurance that the Lever bill, if enacted, would not be applied to the workers.

"A few days ago Mr. Gregory declared, through the public press, that he remembers having had the conference with Mr. Gompers and Mr. Morrison regarding the Lever bill, but added that he had no recollection of having made a statement that its provisions would not be so applied.

"Mr. Gregory, as well as every one else in the administration and in congress and elsewhere, knows that the Lever bill was intended to prevent speculation and profiteering in food and fuel, and that it was not intended to apply to working people engaged in an effort to improve wages, hours and conditions and standards of labor and life.

Gave Assurance.

"At the conference with the attorney general in 1917, Mr. Gregory stated emphatically, speaking for himself and for the government, that the provisions of the Lever act would not be applied to such workers, and that he would write to the United States district attorneys that they, too, should be governed by that assurance.

"Whether Mr. Gregory carried out his pledge to write his subordinates, I am not in a position to say, but that he gave the assurance that he would do so, there is absolutely no question.

"In the official report of the executive council to the convention of the A. F. of L. in 1917, that situation and assurance was fully recorded. Copies of that printed report were sent to every member of the cabinet, including the attorney general. It was sent to the newspapers of the country and, not until this day has the accuracy of that report been challenged by anyone."

LANSING DENIES PEACE DELEGATES TO LEAVE PARIS

Washington, November 13.—Announcement from Paris that the American peace delegation will be withdrawn in December, when the peace conference will come to an end, is premature, it was learned at the state department today. Secretary Lansing said it is "possible," but not yet decided when the conference will conclude its work.

The supreme council, which has been the real peace conference since the treaty with Austria was signed, has been unable to conclude treaties with Hungary and Turkey, and has failed to solve the Rumanian and Adriatic problems. The entente powers, it was learned, desire that the questions remaining to be settled after the supreme council dissolves shall be handled by a diplomatic council to sit in Paris and to be composed of the ambassadors of the allied and associated powers, with the French foreign minister as chairman.

The state department is opposed to that arrangement and favors a plan whereby each government shall treat the matters still to be considered at their own respective capitals, and it is the opinion of officials here that this plan will carry.

It is known that lately the lack of progress in the supreme council has been a subject of dispatches from Mr. Polk to the state department. On one occasion Mr. Polk advised that the United States government bring pressure to bear upon the governments of Great Britain, France and Italy to effect a settlement of the Adriatic problem conformably with President Wilson's ideas. President Wilson was taken ill immediately after receipt of this message, and his confinement suspended any changes of policy which otherwise might have been made concerning the negotiations at Paris.

Later, Mr. Polk advised the state department of a lack of frankness at Paris, and in this message he expressed his conviction that unless the powers in their dealings with one another, or rather with the United States, become more frank he did not see how the United States could be of assistance to Europe, either financially or politically. There was an intimation in his dispatch that the league of nations itself might not succeed unless the powers displayed greater frankness.

PRINCE SIXTUS WEDS DAUGHTER OF DUKE

Paris, November 13.—Prince Sixtus of Bourbon de Parma and Mademoiselle Hedwige de La Rouchefoucauld, daughter of the Duke of Doudeauville, and granddaughter of Prince Constantine Radziwill, were married yesterday at the Church of St. Francois Xavier.

Prince Sixtus is a brother of the former Empress Zita of Austria. He served in the Belgian army during the war and was decorated by King Albert with the grand cordon of the Order of Leopold.

The American ambassador, Hugh C. Wallace, Marshal Joffre, Prince and Princess George of Greece, General Bendoulat, military governor of Paris, and the heads of all the diplomatic missions in Paris were present at the ceremony.

Prince Felix of Bourbon-Parma, brother of Prince Sixtus, was recently married to the Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg.

EXPULSION OF JENKINS ASKED BY MEXICANS

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

Washington, November 13.—A petition has been sent to President Carranza signed by three men who declare themselves to be representatives of the "liberals of Puebla" asking that the United States be asked to withdraw the consular status of William O. Jenkins, who was kidnaped by Mexicans last month and released after the payment of 300,000 pesos ransom.

The petition asks Carranza to expel Jenkins from the country "as a pernicious foreigner."

PARAGUAY ADHERES TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Asunsion, Paraguay, November 13.—The senate has approved the adhesion of Paraguay to the league of nations and to the international labor organization.

The Safety and Tax Exemption of Joint Stock Land Bank 5% Bonds

and the meaning of these features to large investors

SAFETY: These bonds are issued under the Federal Farm Loan Act. They are declared to be instrumentalities of the United States Government, and are prepared and engraved by the Treasury Department.

The bonds are secured by Government approved first farm mortgages, or by United States Government Bonds or Certificates of Indebtedness.

The bonds are a legal investment for all fiduciary and trust funds under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government, and are acceptable as security for Postal Savings Deposits and for all deposits of Government funds.

The constitutionality of the act and the validity of the provisions exempting the bonds from taxation, have been approved by the Attorney General of the United States, as well as by some of the most eminent legal talent of the country, including Geo. W. Wickersham, Esq., and Wm. G. McAdoo, Esq.

The Federal District Court at Kansas City on Oct. 31, 1919, dismissed the suit attacking the constitutionality of the Federal Farm Loan Act and the Tax Exemption of the bonds, thus in effect establishing the validity of the Act and all of its provisions. An appeal from this decision has been taken to the supreme court which has been asked by all parties to advance the case for early hearing.

TAX EXEMPTION: These bonds are exempt to the same degree as the Liberty Loan 3½'s—in other words, they are exempt from all taxes, excepting only inheritance taxes. This includes exemption from Federal Income Tax and local personal property taxes.

The value of the exemption from Federal Income Taxes alone, to individuals of large incomes, is indicated in the following figures, which would be further increased if the exemption of the bonds from other taxes were considered:

Net Yield of Joint Stock Bonds

Taxable Incomes	4½% (To Optional Date) Equivalent to	5% (From Optional Date to Maturity) Equivalent to
80,000	8.33	9.25
100,000	10.22	11.36
200,000	12.50	13.89
500,000	15.52	17.24
1,000,000	16.07	17.86

The top line represents the net rate realized from Joint Stock Land Bank Bonds, regardless of the income of the holder. The remaining figures represent the gross rate which must be realized at varying incomes from taxable securities to procure the net rate at the top of the column.

$5,000,000 Dated May 1, 1919. Optional May 1, 1924. Due May 1, 1939.
10,000,000 Dated Nov. 1, 1919. Optional Nov. 1, 1924. Due Nov. 1, 1939.

MURDER OF CORDOVA LAID TO WHITFIELD

New Orleans, November 13.—Andrew J. Whitfield, arrested today at Alexandria, La., on orders of Superintendent of Police Mooney, of New Orleans, in connection with the murder of Dr. Leopoldo Cordova, Jr., former Honduran consul general, and the attempted murder of his wife will be brought here tomorrow and charged with the crime, according to an announcement by the superintendent tonight.

Although Whitfield, according to reports of the police department here, denied today implication in the murder Tuesday night and said that two strange foreigners, who spoke Spanish, got into the car before he left it, Superintendent Mooney said tonight that two witnesses had identified the jewelry found in the former room of Whitfield here as that of the Cordova family.

Diamond Ring Identified.

Miss Marie Vaniac, cousin of Dr. Cordova, late today identified a large diamond ring found in Whitfield's room by the police as the property of the slain man, police headquarters reported. Marie Melendez, maid in the Cordova home, identified not only the ring, but other pieces of jewelry found in the room as the property of Dr. and Mrs. Cordova, the superintendent said. He also stated that he had seen Whitfield in the crowd at Lee circle, where the Cordova automobile collided with a street car the night of the murder and that the police had found a bloodstained empty revolver and a bloody suit of clothes in Whitfield's room here.

With this evidence in hand Superintendent Mooney maintains that the motive was robbery and not political, as was hinted frequently.

Whitfield, according to the police, admitted that he was in the automobile after the collision at Lee circle when arrested today, but said that he got out when he became suspicious of the two foreigners who got in with him.

Mrs. Cordova, who is still in danger from the bullet wound in her head, talked of the fatal trip again today. The police said she related that one man drove the automobile after the accident with the street car and that he stopped it at the scene of the crime and was joined by another man, who came from the woods. It was then, according to the police officials, from her Spanish version of the murder, that the chauffeur shot Dr. Cordova and her.

John Thomas, who, police said, had rented the house with Whitfield, was held as a dangerous and suspicious character. He will be used as a witness. Police officials said that the suit case containing the bloodstained suit had been left with him by Whitfield to be shipped to Alexandria.

Whitfield Makes Denial.

Alexandria, La., November 13.—Andrew J. Whitfield, a former resident here, was arrested late today on orders from Superintendent of Police Mooney, of New Orleans, in connection with the murder and robbery there Tuesday night of Dr. Leopold Cordova, former consul for Honduras, and the serious wounding of Mrs. Cordova.

Whitfield told local authorities he knew nothing of the case except what he had read in newspapers. He arrived here yesterday. New Orleans officers will take Whitfield in charge tonight.

JOHN BARLEYCORN BROUGHT TO LIFE

Island and Kentucky, it was officially stated tonight at the department of justice. The government's contention that the war-time law is valid, it was added, will be vigorously defended until final decision has been handed down by the United States supreme court.

While enforcement of the law is estopped in the two states, United States district attorneys, acting on prior instructions, will proceed with prosecutions of violators in other communities, officials declared.

Department officials differed as to the results of the injunctions. Some held that, during the life of the restraining order, there was nothing to prevent open sale of all intoxicants as covered by the order. Others did not agree with this belief.

With regard to the effect on the constitutional amendment by the Ohio referendum overturning the legislature's action, Attorney General Palmer's view was said to be that action by the Ohio electorate would not change the date on which the prohibition amendment to the constitution goes into effect. Unless the number of states ratifying the amendment falls below thirty-six the department will not concern itself with the changes in their identity, according to the opinion expressed by the officials of Mr. Palmer's staff.

Reports of a new attack to be made by anti-prohibitionists in an effort to stave off constitutional prohibition have reached the department of justice from several sources. This assault is expected to be based on the reversal of Ohio's stand, it was said. Officials, however, said they felt sure of their ground. None believed that more than a reissuance of the proclamation of ratification could be forced, while a majority held firmly to the suggestion that so long as thirty-six states remain in the dry column the government need take no heed of the names of the states.

RHODE ISLAND WETS IN JUBILANT MOOD.

Providence, R. I., November 13.—Rhode Island liquor dealers were jubilant today over the preliminary injunction issued by United States District Judge Brown forbidding government officers from enforcing the provisions of the war-time prohibition act affecting the sale of beer.

They are, however, undecided as to when they can place 4 per cent beer on draughts. A warning issued by Internal Revenue Collector George F. O'Shaunessy has been taken to mean that saloonkeepers who take advantage of the court's action and sell stronger beverage than one-half of 1 per cent will become liable to prosecution later, should an upper court reverse Judge Brown's decision.

The Narragansett Brewing company, through whose petition yesterday's action was taken, was reported today as ready to deliver 4 per cent beer as soon as it is considered safe to do so. Company officials declined to reveal their plans, however, declaring that the decision "may and may not" result in a resumption of the distribution of 4 per cent beer.

Long before the decision was made known yesterday liquor dealers were lined up at police headquarters, where applications for new licenses were being received. In addition to the 204 applications filed Tuesday, 33 were filed yesterday. There were 311 licensed saloons previous to the closing by law.

Applying for Linecnses.

The saloon men are applying for licenses under the old state law permitting sales of intoxicating liquors, and also under the Saugy law, which allows the sale of beverages containing not over 4 per cent alcohol. The necessary advertising will begin today and before the new license year opens on December 1, it will be determined which license it will be possible for the board of police commissions to issue.

A decree making operative the injunction against the enforcement of war-time prohibition, granted yesterday by Federal Judge Arthur L. Brown, was entered here late today in the nUited States district court. By its terms federal officials in this district are enjoined from enforcing title one of the national prohibition act against the Narragansett Brewing company.

Immediately after the entry of the decree, United States Attorney Harvey A. Baker notified the court that he would appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals in Boston and asked for a supersedeaes to stay the execution of the injunction until the appeal had been heard. This Judge Brown refused to grant. Next Tuesday was named as return day for the filing of the appeal in Boston.

FIGHT ON DRYNESS IN MASSACHUSETTS. . .

Boston, November 13.—The first step in an attempt to prevent enforcement in this state of the Volstead prohibition enforcement act was taken today when the New England Brewing company filed in the federal court a bill in equity seeking a preliminary injunction restraining United States District Attorney Boynton and Acting Collector of Internal Revenue Casey from enforcing the act against them on the ground that it is unconstitutional.

Judge George W. Anderson will give a hearing on the bill on November 17.

The bill alleges that the national prohibition act is unconstitutional in that it seeks to enforce and provide for national prohibition during the period which must elapse before the eighteenth amendment of the constitution will become effective and because it violates the tenth amendment.

TENNESSEE LIQUOR ACT DECLARED TO BE VOID.

Nashville, Tenn., November 13.—Judge J. D. B. Debow, in the Davidson county criminal court in the case of the state against William Hartman, today held the state storage act of 1917, making it unlawful for any person or firm to have or keep in stock in any warehouse intoxicating liquors for sale as a beverage, to be unconstitutional, and ordered the immediate return to the defendant of 68 sacks containing bottles of whisky seized some time ago under the act.

Judge Debow announced that he would try no more cases brought under the storage act until the Tennessee supreme court had passed upon the act's validity. The grounds upon which Judge Debow based his decision were: That the caption was not broad enough for the body of the act; that the provision allowing searches and seizures without affidavit or warrant was violative of both state and federal constitutions; that the statute penalized the person without penalizing the corporation, firm or principal, making it further violative of both constitutions; that the provision making subsequent violations a felony was vague and indefinite.

CHICAGO "WETS" GETTING READY FOR "WET" RULING

Chicago, November 13.—So certain were Chicago saloonskeepers today that federal Judges Carpenter and Fitzhenry would decide against the war-time prohibition and enforcement acts that they were arranging for delivery of liquor stocks. Among liquor men it was hoped that bars would be selling liquor as of old by Saturday night.

District Attorney Clyne issued a warning that should the liquor interests be successful in the suit, profiteering in whisky would be prevented. He also declared that accepting orders for delivery of liquor conditioned on the issuance of an injunction preventing the government from enforcing prohibition was illegal.

Decisions in Kentucky a ndRhode Island favorable to the liquor interests caused saloonkeepers here to expect a similar decision in the local district court, where injunction suits filed in Peoria and Chicago were combined.

Filing of briefs by attorneys for the petitioners and the government today completed the case and the court announced a decision would be given on or before Saturday.

The two suits were combined for convenience and Judge Louis Fitzhenry, of Bloomington, sat with Judge Carpenter. Attorney Levy Mayer, of Chicago, counsel for Woolner & Co., of Peoria, and Hannah & Hogg, of Chicago, conducted the attack on prohibition, while Assistant District Attorneys Frederick Dickinson, of Chicago, and Clark B. Montgomery opposed the suit.

The granting of an injunction by Judge Brown in a similar case at Providence, R. I., was reported to be made reference to it in his argument. He based his argument on the following points:

Violates Constitution.

That war-time prohibition and the enforcement act violates the tenth amendment to the constitution by usurping the police powers of the state.

That the enforcement act violates the fifth amendment by depriving citizens of property without due process of law or just compensation.

That both acts are void because they were passed to meet an emergency that has passed, the war being over, and President Wilson having vetoed the enforcement act, it was contended, had declared the army demobilized.

"Many things were done by congress during the war which went by unchallenged," said Attorney Mayer. "Such things were conceded to be war measures, but now that day is past when such justification is acceptable, the day of reckoning is here.

Violates State's Rights.

"The constitution was not suspended during the war. The power of the United States to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor lies with congress during the period of the war. But the war is over. Congress now has no right to interfere with the police powers of the states."

Counsel proceeded to say that ten days after the president advised congress of the cessation of hostilities congress tacked on to the agricultural bill the war-time prohibition measure prohibiting the sale for beverage purposes of any distilled spirits from June 30, 1919, until the president proclaimed demobilization ended "for the purpose of conserving the man power of the nation and the increasing of efficiency in the production of arms, meats, ships, food and clothing for army and navy."

"This is a palpable falsehood," declared Mr. Mayer, "and is indulged in for the purpose of giving the color of legality in the exercise of the war power."

At the conclusion of oral arguments the court announced a decision would be rendered not later than Saturday.

PROPPED UP IN BED, WILSON MEETS PRINCE

the president noticed that his visitor was looking closely at the massive old bed and told him its story—how the prince's grandfather had slept in it when he was entertained at the white house by President Buchanan and of it being the same bed in which President Lincoln slept during his years in the white house.

The president inquired of the prince as to his father, mother and grandmother, and mentioned particularly the pleasure with which he received a cablegram today from Queen Mother Alexandra.

The meeting between the prince and the president was much the same as might occur between any healthy normal boy with a keen sense of humor and a middle-aged statesman whose cares have not driven the gift of laugnter from him. The president laughed heartily at the vivid and humorous account the prince gave of his experiences since his arrival on the American continent. The British heir was very enthusiastic at the warms of the reception he had received in the United States.

The conversation between the two covered a wide range of subjects and after the prince had left Rear Admiral Grayson, the president's physician, said the president's spirits had risen as the result of the visit and that he had enjoyed it greatly.

At Tomb of Washington.

The prince was accompanied to Mount Vernon by Vice President Marshall and Secretary Lansing and he seemed to enjoy the drive through the autumn-tinted Virginia woods, with the sun shining for the first time since the royal visitor entered the United States.

Arriving at the entrance of the grounds of the Washington mansion, Prince Edward passed through a long lane of infantrymen at "present arms" on his way to the tomb. He remained there only a few minutes and passed on to the Washington mansion.

Examining the relics within the prince showed both a youthful curiosity and a student's interest, and was particularly attracted by a photograph taken of his grandfather when he visited Mount Vernon. Looking at the photograph closely, the prince remarked:

"I see grandfather wore a plug hat. I wonder if I should have done the same?"

Before leaving he signed the voluminous register of guests beneath the names of King Albert, Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Brabant, and was introduced to Miss Alice Riggs, of Washington, a survivor of the party which welcomed his grandfather to Mount Vernon in 1860, who told the prince how his grandfather had picked her up in his arms and kissed her.

Prior to the trip to Mount Vernon the prince decorated eighty American officers and conferred nine and seven Red Cross nurses. Tonight he was the guest of honor at a dinner at the British embassy and later members of the diplomatic corps greeted him at a reception given by Viscount Grey, the British ambassador.

The prince will conclude his visit in Washington tomorrow with a call on Mrs. Marshall, wife of the vice president, who has been unable to attend the functions given in the royal visitor's honor because of illness, and then he will go to Annapolis to see the Naval academy and review the midshipmen.

Prince at Small Dance.

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

Washington, November 13.—Following the reception at the British embassy this evening, H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, with members of his staff motored to the Country club, just north of town, to a small dance given by the speaker of the house and Mrs. Gillett.

The dance was hastily arranged, with the guests the contemporaries of the hostesses, daughters by a former marriage, the Misses Frances and Louisa Hoar, and the younger diplomats.

This most exclusive of suburban clubs is a roomy old mansion, with extensive gardens, with all the advantages of a private house. Its rules prohibit more than one member entertaining at a time, so there was no danger of intrusion upon Mrs. Gillett's well chosen company.

His highness also found time to make several unofficial calls, one being at the home of Mrs. C. C. Calhoun, whose daughter, Miss Margaret Simmons, was one of his partners at the unofficial tea-dance given by Mrs. Joseph Leiter on Wednesday afternoon.

Macon, Ga., November 13.—(Special). — At last a home has been found for the Macon Commercial club, recently organized and which already has a membership of more than 200 Macon business men. Arrangements have been made for the adding of a roof garden to the new Bibb Realty company's building at Cherry and Broadway, the garden to be enclosed with glass during the winter season and so arranged that the enclosure can be removed for the warm season. The rooms will be equipped from the initial membership fees and the cost of upkeep will be met from the monthly membership dues.

JERRY GANTT IS NAMED TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION

J. R. Robinson Indorsed for Appointment as Georgia Tax Agent.

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, November 13.—Separation of income tax work from the direction of raiding of illicit distilleries and the enforcement of prohibition law in general, has been made by the internal revenue service, and Jerry Gantt, the present revenue agent, in charge at Atlanta, has been named supervisor of the enforcement of the new prohibition law of the five southern states.

Indorsement of J. R. Robinson, of the internal revenue service, stationed in Atlanta for the appointment of special tax agent in Georgia, has been registered with Daniel C. Roper, the commissioner of internal revenue, by Representative Wright and Senator Harris, of Georgal.

Mr. Robinson has seen long service in Atlanta with the department and it is a strong probability that he will receive the appointment for the new post.

Baker Reduces Sentence Of Sergt. Claud Smith, Convicted in France

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, November 13.—A. H. Freeman, a prominent attorney of Newnan, Ga., who came to Washington for the purpose of conferring with the secretary of war in regard to obtaining the secretary's endorsement of a recommendation of the clemency section granting a reduction in a ten-year sentence of Sergeant Claude Smith, of Sargent, Ga., announces that Mr. Baker has approved a three-year sentence in lieu of the original penalty.

Sergeant Smith was sentenced to the Fort Leavenworth penitentiary while in France, on the charge of taking absence without leave. The action of Secretary Baker reduces the sentence to three years.

Mr. Freeman has been in conference with several high officials of the government during his visit here and expects to leave tomorrow for New York.

MONEY TO LOAN

LOANS ON FURNITURE

AT LAWFUL RATES

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

It is universally true that nearly every start made by the ordinary person toward the possession of property has been made by incurring a debt that called for the payment of certain sums on certain dates. Such obligations are met without hardship as a rule, and when the debt is paid the property is owned by the borrower.

Such persons never had a more fair and generous creditor than the Citizens' Loan Company and never were offered better terms.

YOU CAN AFFORD TO BORROW

A Pair of Glasses

To the uninitiated one pair of glasses looks pretty much like another and too many people do not realize the importance of ascertaining beyond question the capability of those from whom they buy glasses.

Thousands of people are wearing glasses that do not exactly suit them and are suffering to a greater or less degree in consequence without knowing the cause.

Our optical service of fifty years development is yours without extra cost and our personal attention is given to every detail of the work.

GET TICKETS TODAY OR DINE ELSEWHERE

Only Limited Number Left for Georgia Products Day Meal.

If you want to be among those present at the great dinner to be given at the Auditorium Wednesday, November 19, buy your tickets today or make up your mind right now to enjoy your meal at some other place.

This year only a limited supply of tickets was printed and on each one is indicated the table and the plate of the purchaser. This means that when the supply is sold out there will be no way to accommodate the eleventh-hour man or woman. There will be no extra tables put into use at the last minute.

At present it is stated that the majority of the tickets have been sold. Only a certain number remain, and, in all probability, these will be disposed of today. So you'd better hurry.

The dinner will be a notable affair. There will be present representative delegations from a number of Atlanta's leading civic organizations. And the most prominent men and women of the city will be there in their individual capacity.

The feast is given under the auspices of the state chamber of commerce. The ladies of the Joseph Habersham chapter of the D. A. R. will be in charge and tickets may be bought from any member of the chapter.

WEST END COUNCIL J. O. U. A. M. HOLDS ROLL CALL TONIGHT

West End council, No. 13, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold a roll call and homecoming this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the council chamber in the Junior Order hall, 28½ Capitol avenue.

The committee in charge has arranged an extremely interesting and instructive program, which consists of speechmaking, music and refreshments.

Ernest G. Bentley will address the meeting, as will also Professor Meecham, of Clarkston, Ga.

At this meeting the victory drive for members will be launched. It is expected that plans for the campaign will be laid and the entire membership organized into a campaign committee to double the membership in the first week of December, which is the week designated by the national councilor as Victory Drive week.

It is expected that the entire membership will be present. Several of the sister councils will attend in a body and a very enjoyable and profitable evening is expected.

Mrs. Willie Cooper, 36 years old, died at her home, 413 Main street, East Point, Thursday morning. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Wilson; two sons, Jack and Claude Wilson, of East Point; two sisters, Miss Susie Wilson, also of East Point, and Mrs. J. G. Marian, of Union City, Ga.

Mrs. Laura May Granted Divorce In San Francisco

Husband Deliberately Plotted to Lure Her Into Compromising Position, Says Former Atlanta Woman.

San Francisco, Cal., November 13. (Special.)—Accusing her husband of having deliberately plotted to lure her into a compromising position in order that he might secure grounds upon which to predicate a suit for divorce, Mrs. Laura May, former prominent Atlanta woman, has obtained a divorce here from C. H. May.

Mrs. May introduced in evidence an affidavit signed by Professor J. B. Hanson, of Atlanta, in which he states that while he was a guest in the May home in 1914, May proposed that he feign illness and get Mrs. May to his room and that when he did this May would rush in, accompanied by a detective.

The scheme was carried out, Professor Hanson swears, just as planned, but it failed to work, apparently, for Mrs. May told Superior Judge Morgan that shortly after the incident she instituted and won an action for separate maintenance, being awarded a $10,000 property settlement and the custody of their minor daughter, Laura Leight May.

Mrs. May's suit for separate maintenance was filed in Savannah, in November, 1914, both Mrs. May and her husband living there at the time. Professor Hanson formerly taught in an Atlanta school, it is stated, but is not in the city at present.

"Deestrick Schule" To Be Held Tonight In Oakhurst School

Such a hit was made by "The Deestrick Schule," as performed by local talent at the Oakhurst school auditorium in Decatur Wednesday night, that the performers have been asked to repeat the play tonight and have consented to do so.

The affair was arranged by Mrs. Georgia Johnston for the benefit of the Oakhurst Baptist church. An admission charge of 25 cents is made, which goes to that church. Among the performers whose histrionic talent proved so agreeable to their friends that an encore has been called for are Mrs. Dave Fricks and Mrs. Charles A. Green, Dave Fricks, W. Owen Slate and A. T. Harris.
